BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 541, on third reading, entitled:

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL ON THIRD READING AMENDED

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 550, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections three and four of the act approved the thirteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven (P. L. 988) entitled "An act providing for and regulating the State registration of nurses and licensed attendants the annual recording of registration certificates and regulating the profession of nursing and repealing certain existing laws" by temporarily changing qualifications for registration

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendments.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President, may we have the amendments read before we pass on them?

(The amendments were read by the Clerk.)

Amend title of bill, line 8, by striking out the word "temporarily"; Amend Bill, Section 1, page 2, line 11 by striking out the part word "-one"; Amend Bill, Section 1, page 2, line 15 by striking out the words "or one," all of line 16 and on line 17, the word "States;" Amend Bill, Section 1, page 3, lines 16 and 17 by striking out the words "or one of whose parents is a naturalized citizen of the United States."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. SHAPIRO. I object to the amendments, Mr. President, the reason being that this bill was considered in committee. The purpose of inserting those words was to make sure that any person who became a registered nurse would have at least one parent who was a citizen of this Commonwealth, when she reached the age of twenty. The effect of these amendments is to open the door to qualification of nurses at the age of twenty, even though neither of the parents might be a citizen.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, the effect of these amendments is to require an applicant for nurseship to be a citizen; regardless of what the parents are but the person herself must be a citizen.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, this bill was introduced to take care of a situation which requires correction. In one particular case a nurse who was about to graduate, and who will be qualified, is not a citizen because she believed that she was a citizen by virtue of the fact that her father was a citizen. This bill goes further than the stated purpose, because in the case of a nurse whose parents are citizens, and the nurse is not a citizen she will not be able to practice, she will not be able to register, even though she has completed her course.

Certainly, Mr. President, the whole purpose in introducing this bill was to bring about the effect of relieving such a situation. Here are young girls who have studied for years and are qualified to become registered nurses, and they assumed, therefore, by virtue of their parents' citizenship that they could practice, the parents have been citizens for ten or fifteen years, and yet the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, contends they should not be allowed to register, which would be a shame.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, the law has always been that in order to be a registered nurse, one had to be a citizen of the United States. If the purpose of this amendment was to open the door to a person whose parents were not citizens of the United States and the person herself was a citizen, we do not want that amendment. All we want is to lower the age limit from twenty-one to twenty, and that is the purpose of this amendment.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER SENATE BILL No. 550

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 550 passed second reading.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. RUTH. I suggest, Mr. President, that if they want to amend this bill further that they amend the first two lines on the first page, which includes my name, because this is not my bill any more.

I am not opposed to the twenty year provision at all. In our training school we have a girl who thought she was a citizen until she applied for registration, because her father was naturalized, and under the law up to January 1940, all children under twenty-one were naturalized when the parents were naturalized, but January, 1940, Congress changed the law so that only children under eighteen were naturalized when the parents were naturalized.

This girl of whom I am speaking thought all the time that she was a naturalized citizen. She is ready to go int the armed services, she has offered her services to the country but she can not be accepted on this basis and, accordingly, that is the only feature in the bill that I introduced. Therefore, Mr. President, I think my name should now be taken off the bill, because it is not my bill any more.

There are very few girls in the state that would be affected, but here you have the case of a girl who graduated from a training school, after three years of hard work, paid her tuition, with the idea of becoming a registered nurse, because she believed she was a naturalized citizen, through her father being naturalized, but, of course, Congress changed the law in 1940, during the time she was in school, so that only children under eighteen were naturalized when the parents were naturalized and I feel it will not hurt the state.

We have heard the Governor say that girls should study to be nurses. We need nurses in the armed services and we need nurses in the hospitals. If you try to hire a nurse to come into your home today you can not get one for money or anything else, because they are not available. That is the only feature of the bill in which I was particularly interested and I feel it is unfair to take that provision out of the bill.

Mr. WOODWARD. Before a vote is taken on the amendment, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WOODWARD. I have a case at home, and I simply wish to know how this bill, together with the amendment, would apply to this case in my own home, where the husband and wife are citizens, but a daughter, aged twenty, who was a volunteer nurse, is not a citizen—she is an alien; will this strike her down, that is what I want to know? What possible objection can there be to this very intelligent girl of twenty, a volunteer nurse; will this bill put her out of her position?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, this bill will not put her out—she is already out. This bill was an attempt to help her, but the Caucus decided they did not want to go that far and thought that only citizens should be nurses.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, the thing I dislike about that situation is this: here is a twenty year old girl who is a volunteer nurse, here within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and whether she is an alien or not she is one hundred per cent a good girl as a nurse.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, consent to be interrogated?

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, is it not true that under the law a girl whose parents are naturalized or citizens, and the girl is an alien, she may become a citizen by a simple petition for derivative citizenship; is that not true.

Mr. KEPHART. Would the gentleman from Schuylkill repeat his inquiry?

Mr. WATKINS. Is it not true, Mr. President, that a girl who is eighteen years of age and under twenty-one, whose parents are naturalized or citizens, can petition for derivative citizenship under the law?

Mr. KEPHART. I do not know the answer, Mr. President.

Mr. RUTH. I can answer that, Mr. President.

Mr. WATKINS. I may be wrong, Mr. President, but it is my understanding of the law that in the case of these girls whose parents are citizens, although they fail to come within the rule that they be under eighteen years of age in which case they automatically would become citizens because of the citizenship of their parents, they still can petition for derivative citizenship, which does not require a wait of two years, and I just wondered whether that was the law.

Mr. RUTH. I can answer that, Mr. President. Just as soon as this girl of whom I was speaking was told that she could not take the state board examination, she immediately made application for citizenship and she was turned down because they do not accept applications from aliens during this war.

The prothonotary in our county is the man who brought this bill to me, because he knows the circumstances and he tried to help that girl become a citizen, but she will not be accepted until after the close of hostilities. Therefore, there is no other way by which this girl can become a registered nurse, unless we pass this bill in the way it is at present.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, while I do not think it is good legislation to pass a bill for one particular person, after I made all this trouble in the Caucus —I am really the one who was responsible—I am wondering if we can not help Reverend Ruth some way. If this bill went over in order until tomorrow, maybe the Republican Caucus might approve the bill and we might thereby help our friend Senator Ruth. If it would be of any help to the gentleman from Berks I will make such a motion.

The PRESIDENT. For the information of the gentleman from McKean there is now a motion before the Senate.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. What is it, Mr. President?

The PRESIDENT. There has been a motion made and duly seconded, to reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 550 passed second reading.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. If I thought it would be of any help, Mr. President, I would ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, to withdraw that motion. Maybe we could help this girl and if we could I do not think either Republicans or Democrats want to sit here and be technical and keep some poor girl, in these times, from continuing her education and training and obtaining her standing as a nurse.

I want to freely admit that probably I am more at fault than anyone else and if there is any way of helping this girl, I am willing to help her.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, the amendment I introduced concerning this bill is the result of our Caucus action and if the bill should go over in its order it will fail of passage; it is a Senate bill, it will only be on second reading tomorrow, it will not pass third reading until the following day, and, therefore, it will fail of passage.

It was the thought of the Republican Caucus that while the age limit could be reduced from twenty-one to twenty years of age, only citizens should be eligible to be nurses, even though one of the parents may be an American citizen.

I understand there is one girl involved in this particular instance and the reason that she can not avail herself of the privilege of electing to become a citizen is because she is an enemy alien—her parentage is German. It is unfortunate that is the situation, but it seems to me this bill would be of great benefit to many citizens of the Commonwealth, and the desire is to have the bill passed, reducing the age limit from twenty-one to twenty years of age, which is the purpose of the amendment, and I feel this bill should not be held up by reason of this one particular person.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, will recall that his colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Woodward, also mentioned a girl in similar circumstances.

Mr. WOODWARD. I am for these alien girls, because I am impressed with this very attractive girl I am talking about who joined the W.A.A.C. and went out to Des Moines, and she was doing very well until they discovered she was an alien and they threw her out and then she had to go to Canada and she did join the W.A.A.C there.

(The Senate was at ease.)

AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I desire to withdraw the amendment I previously offered, in order to present another amendment.

The PRESIDENT. There is already before the Senate a motion properly seconded, to reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 550 passed second reading.

BILLS RECOMMITTED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 597 on third reading, entitled:

An Act to add Section 699.7 to the act, approved the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine (P. L. 872), entitled "An act to consolidate, amend and revise the penal laws of the Commonwealth," prohibiting the buying or selling of Federal ration stamps, coupons or other indicia or tokens necessary for the purchase of food, clothing, footwear, fuel or other commodities or articles; prohibiting the acceptance of such stamps, coupons or other indicia or tokens with knowledge that they have been bought or sold; and providing penalties be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Heyburn.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HEYBURN. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Delaware state the reason for recommitting this bill?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, there are two reasons. There are two bills here, Senate Bill No. 597 and Senate Bill No. 598, which are companion bills. The Republican Caucus felt that we should not attempt to regulate strictly federal matters, for one thing, and another thing, as the gentleman from Philadelphia well knows, we have several constitutional lawyers down in our Caucus, and on page 3 of Senate Bill No. 598, Section 5—I assume the Senator from Philadelphia has read the bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Yes, I have, Mr. President.

Mr. HEYBURN. And being a lawyer, I assume the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, agrees that makes the whole thing unconstitutional

Mr. SHAPIRO. I do not agree with that, Mr. President, but I do agree that having lawyers down in the Caucus, is bad enough, and when you have constitutional lawyers it is even worse.

I would like to suggest that these two bills are very important bills. One of them enables the state to aid the Federal Government in enforcing price ceilings, and the other enables the state to enforce the number of points, and it seems to me that the state of Pennsylvania can do a good job in assisting the Federal Government in its war effort. That is right in line with the Governor's policy to help the war effort.

It is almost physicially impossible for the Federal Government to prevent without assistance from the state, the various violations that occur in price ceiling fixing and in point rationing, and it strikes me that if these two bills can possibly be passed they should be.

If there is objection to a section, if lawyers as usual can not agree on the constitutionality of a bill maybe that bill can be fixed up. If it is the intent that this bill shall be amended, it should be done and done quickly. If it is the intent to send the bill back to committee and let it die there, I think this is one of the first evidences of our failure to see an opportunity to render real service to the Federal Government in its war effort.

Mr. HEYBURN. I might add, Mr. President, that the members of the Republican Caucus agree that the spirit and the motives behind these bills are entirely proper but, as I say, I would like to refer the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, to section 5, page 3 of Senate Bill No. 598. That is the reason for the motion to send them back to Committee.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I assume from the remarks of the gentleman from Delaware that he proposes to make a similar motion with respect to Senate Bill No. 598 and accordingly what I have to say will apply to both bills.

In a Session noteworthy because of its lack of any war legislation I am a bit surprised that the Republican Floor Leader would send back to committee the only attempt in the present Session of the Legislature to curb black markets.

My friend from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, is in the habit of saying that if you have termites in your home it is a mistake to burn the house down to get rid of them. If there is any provision in this bill that renders it of doubtful constitutionality, that ought to be deleted, but certainly we ought not send the bill back to committee during the dying days of the Session for the obvious purpose of bringing about its death by strangulation in committee.

These bills came from the Office of Price Administration, they are very important measures, and I think that within the last two months the assembly of New York state passed a similar bill to curb black markets, which abounded in that particular state.

In addition to the provisions which are incorporated in Senate Bill No. 598, the bill passed by the state of New York provided for price fixing, which is not attempted in this particular bill.

I want to register my vigorous protest against sending these two bills back to committee.

President Roosevelt said on one occasion, and I think he summed it up very nicely, if the boys across the pond are to have what they need, we can not have what we want, and this bill attempts to put into law that philosophy so well expounded by the President of the United States.

I ask for a roll call and I ask my colleagues to vote against sending these bills back to committee.

Mr. WOODRING. I am heartily in accord with what has been already said by the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Coleman, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro.

It seems to me that we ought to remember, in the closing hours of this session, just as we voiced our sentiments in the beginning of this session, that during this session we are not Democrats or Republicans but that we are Americans.

Here are two bills which we are talking about, the first of which, Senate Bill No. 597, definitely was promoted to aid in the federal prosecution of this war. That bill adds a section to the Penal Code; and it provides penalties for the illicit buying or selling of ration stamps or coupons, or accepting such coupons or stamps with knowledge that they were bought or sold.

Mr. President, I do not care what our political complexion is tonight but it seems to me that if we are serious with the boys we have sent out from this Commonwealth and from our very families, we ought to vote "no" on this motion.

I understand the Senator from Delaware, Senator Heyburn, to state that the objection to Senate Bill No. 598 is that there is some constitutional doubt about that bill, and in that connection I say let us take the next bill in order, but in this bill, gentlemen of the Senate, it seems to me, our serious patriotic duty is to vote "no" on this motion and let us pass the bill.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lackawanna.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lackawanna permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. COLEMAN. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Is it not a fact, Mr. President, that the Federal Government now has made provisions to prosecute any of those who tamper with rationed goods through the so-called black market and that there is no need for a law to govern that subject now.

Mr. COLEMAN. The best answer I can give to that, Mr. President, is that all of the various legislatures in America have passed legislation to bring about the curbing of black markets and those engaged in hoarding food and selling at and excess profit. That appears to me to answer the question of the gentleman from Cambria, because obviously there is no federal legislation which will enable the Federal Government to properly prosecute those men.

Mr. HALUSKA. Would it not be incompatible, Mr. President, to place upon our statutes in the Commonwealth any law which would interfere with the federal law?

Mr. COLEMAN. The gentleman from Cambria, Mr. President, is getting into the domain of a lawyer—I am a poor but honest layman and I can not get into that particular problem—but I would say that the impelling force behind the introduction of such bills is that the Federal Government has a tremendous amount of work to do in its various jobs in prosecuting the war and the Federal Government is asking the state agencies and the state government to aid them in arresting and prosecuting men engaged in black marketing and persons who illegally use ration stamps.

Mr. HALUSKA. Has there been any direct request from the Federal Government asking for such help?

Mr. COLEMAN. These bills came from the O. P. A. representative in Dauphin County. I had understood from my conversation with him that he got them from the O. P. A. office in Washington, which would suggest to me that this legislation is necessary for the proper prosecution of those engaged in black market operations.

Mr. HALUSKA. I thank the gentleman from Lackawanna.

Mr. President, I see no need for such legislation at all. I am satisfied that we have now sufficient federal men covering the country and if any one is tampering with black markets they will be dealt with accordingly and I see no reason why we should act upon any such legislation now.

I will vote with the majority to send this bill back to committee.

Mr. WATKINS. First, Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Haluska, has put his finger upon one of the objections to these bills, but there is a further objection because the Federal Government is handling all the regulations and all the orders which are changed daily and almost hourly, and if we in Pennsylvania put upon our statute books a law which says these things are crimes in Pennsylvania, what is a crime at nine o'clock tomorrow morning may be changed and be entirely innocent at ten o'clock, by some order of the Office of Price Administration.

I think the people who make the orders and control rationing and all the other items that deal with black markets, should also be the punishing power and the penal code of the Federal Government will take care of the situation very well.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I think that possibly the sponsors of these bills do not realize just what the bills do. In Senate Bill No. 597, page 2, section 699.7 there is a provision which states "anybody who knowingly does a certain thing," and anybody who has had experience in the prosecution of cases knows that it is almost an impossibility to prove absolute knowledge, unless you get the other person who is involved in the crime to make a confession, and that does not often occur.

Senate Bill No. 597, as it is worded, is not worth much from the standpoint of the prosecution of law, and I would suggest to the sponsors that they get a bill that is worded properly, if they are sincerely interested in endeavoring to assist the Federal Government in putting a stop to these so-called black markets and offenses in connection with the rationing of goods.

The other bill, Senate Bill No. 598, I say is a dangerous bill; instead of being a helpful bill in connection with the prosecution of these matters, it is a dangerous bill for the citizens of this state. On page 2, section 2, it provides:

"Any person who in the course of trade or business or for profit sells, or in any other way transfers a commodity" and so forth. This section does not provide at all for a person doing a thing intentionally or wilfully, but if a person does it accidentally, he then is subject to a fine of not more than $300 or more than thirty days imprisonment or both for every offense.

As my colleague from Schuylkill, Senator Watkins, has stated, these rationed articles are being changed almost daily. Today some articles which are rationed will be unrationed tomorrow, and vice versa, so that it is a hard matter for individuals to keep track of what is rationed and what is not rationed, and if a person accidentally should make a mistake in connection with one rationed article, under section 2 of Senate Bill No. 598 he would be subject to a fine of $300 or thirty days imprisonment, or both. For those reasons I say that that bill is a dangerous bill to the citizens of this Commonwealth.

Mr. WOODWARD. Since the Caucus instructed me how to vote on these bills, I have read in the newspapers that the Governor has stated publicly that he would do all in his power to co-operate with the Federal Government to help settle the coal strike because it retarded the progress of the war effort, and as I listened to the debate on these bills it seems to me this is in the same category and I should think the Governor would like to co-operate with the Federal Government in this instance because this also interferes with the war effort, and therefore I think I shall vote against recommittal, and probably not be able to go to the Caucus any more.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, these bills do not deal with new crimes, as there are people being punished every day in all the states of the union for doing the acts which are made the subject of these bills. The citizens of the Commonwealth are in just as much danger without these bills. The regulations of the O. P. A. are, in effect, the same without these bills as they are with them; the regulations of the O. P. A. are in effect the same as these bills. Any lawyers who are doing any work along this line know that the O. P. A. not only prosecutes people who sell at higher market prices but they also prosecute those who buy. I can get twenty lawyers together and they will find twenty reasons why these bills are unconstitutional, but if we arrange the thing properly the same twenty lawyers will agree they are constitutional. It is all in the way you approach it.

These bills do nothing more than make a Pennsylvania crime out of something that has already been made a Federal crime. It is not unusual for one person to be prosecuted for a single offense by two authorities. Anybody who had had any experience knows that a state bank can prosecute for an offense committed by one of its employes and if that bank has federal deposit insurance the Federal Government can also prosecute for the same offense.

These two bills are not dangerous to the people of Pennsylvania, but they are important to the people of the United States, they are important to all the soldiers who are fighting because if we admit the basis of the whole proposition it is this, that unless we keep prices down, unless we prevent inflation, unless we prevent hoarding, we are going to interfere with the war effort. How can you say or how can you honestly argue that anything that tightens up that proposition and makes it more difficult to sell below the prices fixed, or makes it impossible to hoard or acquire a commodity without a ration coupon, how can you say that makes it dangerous to the people of Pennsylvania?

Let us get down to facts and stop talking about this, just because we do not like the way in which the bill was drawn. I do not say the bill is perfect. These two bills were passed by the Commonwealth of New York. These two bills have now enabled that state to take off the hands of the Federal Government a tremendous amount of prosecution, a tremendous amount of work. It is physically impossible for any one single administration, with the amount of work that this federal administration has, to enforce this law single-handed.

I have yet to see any bill that is enabling this Governor to carry out his promise to co-operate with the Federal Government. If there is one I do not recall it and it there is and I do not recall it, I am sure it is because it is not as specific in the direction of aiding the Federal Government in the war effort as these two bills are. They have been here since April 20 and I have seen bills amended tonight that have been here a shorter time. If the Republican Caucus objects to any provisions, those objections can be corrected; if the word "knowingly" is important, it can be inserted.

If you read these bills with an eye to the objective, namely, to assist the Federal Government—you are talking about the danger of these bills to the citizens of Pennsylvania, should they be passed, but you are forgetting the danger to the citizens of the United States should you fail to give all the assistance that you can to the Federal Government.

Mr. TALLMAN. I am sorry that in the course of this discussion there again seems to have crept into it this matter of politics which has been going back and forth on the floor of this Senate for a long time. I regret, too, that in the consideration of these bills there seems to be a lot of fervor or patriotism—so called—that has been prevalent on the floor of this Senate.

Concerning the statements that the Federal Government is doing everything possible within its power to enforce O.P.A. regulations, I should like to remind the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, that it might have been very healthy for him, in the light of what he just said on the floor of this Senate this evening, to have been in Court Room No. 6 in the United States District Court last Friday, with regard to prosecutions that the Federal Government and the O.P.A. were conducting with regard to violation of ceiling prices set by the O.P.A.

I do not believe honestly that this thing that is proposed in these two bills is a matter that should be regulated by this Commonwealth. As has been suggested here tonight, the O.P.A. change rules and regulations, ceiling prices and rationed articles, almost daily, almost hourly. I believe that the Federal Government is in a better position, a far better position than the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to treat with this subject matter. With regard to all the flag waving that has been done about these bills and about what the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania should do to aid in the prosecution of this war, I have just one comment to make and that is this, that if the people of this nation need to be rationed and if the enforcement of rationing has got to be by laws passed by the forty-eight states in this nation, and if the people of this nation are not going to realize their obligation to the boys at the front, the obligation that they owe to the people of this nation in the prosecution of the war effort, then God help us and God help the boys at the front.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I do not want to carry this thing beyond the realm of decent argument but I, too, like the gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Tallman, am amazed sometimes to discover General MacArthur standing over there on the battle front waiting for us to pass some bill here, and I do not think this is one of the bills General MacArthur is waiting for.

The gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Coleman, who is one of the three sponsors of this bill, discussed it from a layman's viewpoint. I would like to direct the attention of the two eminent members of the bar who co-sponsored this bill, to one portion of Senate Bill No. 598 which rather interested me. One of the old customs in the rural community I come from is known as neighborly borrowing, somebody slips across the back lot and borrows a couple of teaspoonsfull of coffee or a pat of butter.

That is one of the foundations of this nation, the privilege of going over and borrowing, but here under section 2, page 2 of Senate Bill No. 598, if I drop over to a neighbor's house and borrow half a cup of sugar or a little butter or some coffee, lo and behold, I have violated a law of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, I am a black marketer, I am a scoundrel and a dog, and I have aided and abetted the enemy because I am retarding the war effort, because Senate Bill No. 598, page 2, section 2, says "Any person who in the course of trade or business or for a profit sells or in any way transfers a commodity rationed by any order or regulation—" and so on.

As has been so ably stated by the eminent gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Tallman, the government never knows tonight what is going to be rationed tomorrow and they are doing the best they can to bring order out of chaos. We are all in sympathy with the problems confronting the O.P.A., but if we are going to make a Gestapo out of all our neighbors in order to try to assist in a lame duck war effort, I think the sponsors of the bill ought to get up and say so, because this gives all my neighbors a grand opportunity to go down and tell the O.P.A. that a Republican woman, living in a Republican district, borrowed a cup of sugar last week and has not paid it back and she, therefore, has violated this bill, and that is one of the reasons I am opposed to legislation like this.

I would like to say also that early in this session representatives of, I believe it was the O.P.A—I am familiar with that alphabet only slightly and if I am wrong perhaps some of the gentleman on the left will correct me—presented me with an idea for legislation because the Federal Department of Agriculture was going to take over meat rationing, and they wanted the legislature of Pennsylvania to pass a bill and in substance this bill suggested that any rule or regulation handed down by the Secretary of the Department of Agriculture in Washington would be a component part of the penal statue of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and when I explained to them that since this Senate had gone on record in 1941, refusing to give a Republican Governor a blank check, that certainly now, with both the House and Senate in control of Republicans, we certainly were not going to give the Secretary of the Department of Agriculture in Washington a blank check so that some cold, stormy morning he could decide that he was going to change the penal statutes of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

I suggested to them that they hire fifteen or twenty lawyers in this Commonwealth to work for them and draft this bill so that we could pass it and their answer was, "we do not have the time, you do it," and there hangs the bill.

Mr. President, I respectfully suggest to the sponsors of this bill that if the O.P.A., or any other of those governmental agencies, have any concrete constructive suggestions as to how Pennsylvania can aid them in the troublesome problems that are confronting them, we will be glad to contribute the legislation that is desired, but that does not mean that we are going to get hysterical and give them a blank check to run Pennsylvania during this emergency.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro.

Mr. PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SHAPIRO. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, in the event that this proposed bill should become a law and a person was prosecuted by this Commonwealth, for taking part in black market dealings, could he be prosecuted also by the O.P.A. for the same act, when he had been once prosecuted by the Commonwealth?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Yes, Mr. President, that is not unusual. People can be prosecuted today in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and also in the Federal Courts for the same offense. It has happened before and I suppose it will happen again. I assume, however, that the Federal Government would be so glad to have Pennsylvania take over the prosecution that they would not bother with double prosecutions.

As a matter of fact, my experience in criminal procedure has been that where a conviction is obtained in one court, a second court usually permits the first court to impose sentence, and the second court does not take any further action.

Mr. HALUSKA. However, Mr. President, we have no assurance whatsoever that if a person is prosecuted by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that he will not also be prosecuted again by the Federal Government?

Mr. SHAPIRO. No. Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Thank you.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, the state of Pennsylvania has no authority under the Constitution of the United States to pass enforcement legislation of this character. The Congress has the right to declare and prosecute war but not the individual states, and regulations made by the President or any agency or department of the United States are enforceable only under the laws of the United States, and now that Congress has already passed laws which regulate and which provide for prosecution in the event of violation of those regulations, Pennsylvania has no right to pass laws to enforce the regulations of an agency or department of the United States.

A simple example is in case of bankruptcy, where Congress has the right to regulate bankruptcies, to apply the law of bankruptcy and to enforce bankruptcy procedure, which provides penalties for violations, and the state of Pennsylvania has absolutely no authority to do likewise.

Again, Congress has the right to coin money and to prosecute individuals who endeavor to coin money themselves, but the state of Pennsylvania has not the right to pass laws regulating the coinage of money nor to prosecute individuals who violate regulations made by the United States with relation thereto and, therefore, I say that these bills, if they were adopted, would be an absolute nullity; we absolutely have no authority or jurisdiction to do this.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Luzerne, Senator Jones.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Luzerne permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JONES. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, the gentleman from Luzerne stated that in bankruptcy cases the state of Pennsylvania has nothing to do with prosecution. I would like the gentleman from Luzerne to tell me whether he does not know as a matter of fact that it is a crime to issue a false financial statement in a bankruptcy proceeding.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, it is a Federal crime and there is a state provision which provides that you shall not issue a false statement, but that is perjury and that has nothing to do with the Federal statute.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am talking about one question at a time. It is true, is it not, that the issuance of a false statement in a bankruptcy court is a Federal offense.

Mr. JONES. That is quite true, Mr. President, that a man can not issue a false statement which results in bankruptcy—if he has done that he is guilty of perjury—and if he makes a false statement in the state of Pennsylvania in a bankruptcy court, or any other court, he is guilty of perjury but that does not have anything to do with the bankruptcy law, nothing at all.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I will leave the law for back room discussion. I do not agree with the gentleman from Luzerne, Senator Jones, but I would like to ask him another question.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Luzerne permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. JONES. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, did the gentleman from Luzerne, Senator Jones, vote for Senate Bill No. 32, which is the victory tax bill.

Mr. JONES. I do not recall, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to ask the gentleman from Luzerne, Senator Jones, if he does not know that this Senate passed a bill directing that this Commonwealth co-operate with the Federal Government in its imposition of the victory tax and directing the state to deduct the victory tax from the salaries of state employes?

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, that act will have to stand on its own legs. We are talking about this matter, and I do not detract what I said.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I repeat my question, Mr. President. I am not talking about these two acts; I am talking about the victory tax act that this Senate passed; is the gentleman aware of that fact?

Mr. JONES. I am not aware of anything about that at all and am not interested in it.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I should like to state for the benefit of the gentleman who is not interested, that all these arguments about our not passing any duplicate acts and our not being able to take the burden from the shoulders of the Federal Government do not hold much weight, when you realize that Senate Bill No. 32 provides that we shall co-operate with the Federal government in the imposition of a five per cent victory tax which the officials of this state shall deduct, and the next time the gentleman from Luzerne gets his salary check as a state Senator, I suggest that he look at it and he will find that the victory tax has been deducted.

Mr. JONES. Now, Mr. President, I understand what the gentleman from Philadelphia is talking about. He is talking about an internal regulation by the government of Pennsylvania in connection with the deduction from salaries of individuals of certain amounts of money which shall be applied for a definite purpose, that is true, but that exclusively is a state matter and could not be regulated by the national government because it affects an individual citizen of the state with reference to his employment within the state, and that is exclusively a state matter.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to read to the gentleman from Luzerne, Senator Jones, the preamble of the act.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro will, of course, recall that there is a motion now before the Senate to recommit Senate Bill No. 597 to the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. SHAPIRO. That is correct, Mr. President, and I am answering the argument that we have no authority to pass laws to enforce acts or regulations of the Federal government, and I answer it by calling to the attention of the gentleman from Luzerne, Senator Jones, this provision in Senate Bill No. 32, "Whereas, it is not within the power of the Congress of the United States to direct that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, its officers, agents and political sub-divisions withhold and deduct the victory tax from the salaries of its and their employes and transmit the same to the proper United States agency."

So far as section one of the bill is concerned, that begins "Every officer and agency of the Commonwealth or any municipality," and so on, down to line 19, and there it reads, "....and facilitate the making of the said victory tax deduction from such employes by the holding of the moneys derived from such deductions and the transmittal thereof to the proper United States agency...."

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, we have agreed to co-operate with the Federal government in every way possible and we want to do that and if there is something within the state that we have the power to regulate, we have the right to regulate it and, therefore, co-operate, but we certainly do not have the right to do something that the Constitution of the United States delegates specifically to the Congress, that is, we have no right to enforce or punish for a violation of the regulations of a United States agency.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Coleman and were as follows, viz:

Becker,	Farrell,	Letzler,	Thomas,
Bowers,	Geltz,	Mallery,	Tyler,
Carr,	Haluska,	Scarlett,	Wade,
Chapman,	Heyburn,	Snowden,	Walker,
Crider,	Homsher,	Stevenson,	Watkins,
Crowe,	James,	Tallman,	Wilson, H. I.,
Deitrick,	Jones,	Taylor,	Wilson, T. B.,
Ealy,	Kephart,

NAYS—15

Barr,	Gourley,	McGinnis,	Stiefel,
Coleman,	Holland,	McQuiddy,	Woodring,
Cox,	Jaspan,	Ruth,	Woodward,
DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Shapiro,

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The PRESIDENT. The bill is recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 598, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to aid the Federal Government in the enforcement of its allocation and rationing program; making it unlawful to sell or buy commodities rationed by Federal authority without receiving or giving the required coupons, stamps, certificates, ration checks or other ration documents or giving such documents that have been unlawfully obtained; empowering the Governor to designate commodities hereafter rationed to be subject to this act; and prescribing penalties be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President, as the members of the Senate vote on this motion to recommit Senate Bill No. 598, I would like them to try forget what was said in Caucus and think about the more than ten per cent of all the boys and girls in the armed forces of the United States who today are fighting our battles, and then not be bound by Caucus action.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I would also like to say, as the members of the Senate vote on Senate Bill 598, that they think of the type of person, who for the most part operates a little grocery or meat shop, particularly in connection with section 2, and then try and figure out whether that person could understand the wording of section 2 which is as follows:

"Section 2. Any person who in the course of trade or business or for profit sells or in any other way transfers a commodity rationed by any order or regulation which has been issued by the United States government or any agency thereof and is in effect on the date of the enactment of this act, without taking in exchange for the commodity the coupons, stamps, certificates, ration checks or other rationed documents, if any required by the order or regulation at the time of the sale or transfer, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be punished by a fine of not more than three hundred dollars or imprisoned for not more than thirty days or both for each offense."

I ask them also, Mr. President, to remember in connection with that section, that there is no provision in there as to knowingly or intentionally doing so, but if a person makes a slip and is mistaken he is subject to the same penalties as I have read.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. SHAPIRO and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—30

Becker,	Farrell,	Letzler,	Thomas,
Bowers,	Geltz,	Mallery,	Tyler,
Carr,	Haluska,	Scarlett,	Wade,
Chapman,	Heyburn,	Snowden,	Walker,
Crider,	Homsher,	Stevenson,	Watkins,

Barr,	Gourley,	McGinnis,	Stiefel,
Coleman,	Holland,	McQuiddy,	Woodring,
Cox,	Jaspan,	Ruth,	Woodward,
DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Shapiro,

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 604, on third reading, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to section two article twelve of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be recommitted to the Committee on Constitutional Changes, for the purpose of further consideration.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Geltz.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GELTZ. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I ask the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Geltz, whether this proposed bill aims to clarify the status of a state official who joins the military forces of the United States? Am I right in that respect?

Mr. GELTZ. That was the intent of these two bills, Mr. President, that is right.

Mr. STIEFEL. Thank you, Senator Geltz.

Mr. President, I believe that this session of the legislature ought to pass some kind of a law which will clarify the status of a member of the Senate, or any other state official, who wants to join the military forces of the United States, and our failure to do so will further complicate the status of members of this Legislature.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 605, on third reading, entitled;

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to section eighteen article five of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be recommitted to the Committee on Constitutional Changes, for the purpose of further study.

Mr. CRIDER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that House Bill No. 835, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend section ten of the act, approved the twenty-first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one (P. L. 149), entitled "An act imposing a State tax, payable as those herein defined as distributors, on liquid fuels used or sold and delivered within the Commonwealth, which are ordinarily, practically, and commercially usable in internal combustion engines for the generation of power; providing for the collection and lien of the tax, and the distribution and use of the proceeds thereof; requiring such distributors to secure permits, to file corporate surety bonds and reports, and to retain certain records; imposing duties on retail dealers, common carriers, county commissioners, and such distributors; providing for rewards; imposing certain costs on counties; conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments; providing for refunds; imposing penalties; and making an appropriation," appropriating one-half cent per gallon of said tax for the maintenance, construction, reconstruction, resurfacing and improvement of certain roads, streets and bridges in certain political subdivisions.

be recommitted to the Committee on Highways.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Majority Floor Leader.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HEYBURN. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. COLEMAN. I desire to ask the Majority Floor Leader the purpose of the motion to recommit House Bill No. 835 to the Committee on Highways, at this late stage of the game.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, there are now on the Calendar two methods of appropriating money to subdivisions. One bill provides for half a cent a gallon liquid fuel tax and another bill appropriates $8,500,000. It is a question, as I understand, of deciding which bill is to be passed.

As I further understand it, all bills having to do with highways go through the Committee on Highways. These bills, not having been in the Committee on Highways, it was suggested by the Caucus that both be recommitted and then the bill that it is decided be passed be reported out.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I do not want to see this bill go back to committee without having had an opportunity to register my protest. This is a bill which is the result of a six year study by the Local Government Commission. It is a bill somewhat similar to a bill which was passed and then vetoed by Governor James in 1941, giving to political sub-divisions, cities, boroughs and townships, which up to now have been denied a portion of the gasoline tax, that portion to which they are rightfully entitled.

If it is the intention of the Majority Leader to bring about the death of these bills, I want to register my vigorous protests, but I understand from the Chairman of the Committee on Highways that some attempt is going to be made to work it out since this bill is a part of the general scheme, together with the bill which would appropriate $8,500,000 to second class townships, and I have been led to believe that the Governor of the Commonwealth has been contacted on this particular bill and is in agreement with what we are trying to bring about by House Bill No. 836.

So, Mr. President, if I could have some assurance from the Majority Floor Leader that these bills will not die in committee, I will cease talking. Otherwise, I want to add two or three more words to by reasons for protesting against this bill being sent back to committee.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, it is not the desire or intention to kill this bill, but on page 45 of today's Calendar the gentleman from Lackawanna will find House Bill No. 931, which proposes to appropriate $8,500,000. It is a question of deciding which is the better method.

Mr. COLEMAN. While there is a relationship between the bills, because they are a part of the general plan, the bill referred to by the gentleman from Delaware proposes to appropriate money to second class townships, the same bill that has been introduced in every session since I have been a member of the General Assembly. That bill will not take care of places like the city of Pittsburgh, first class townships and boroughs, and the city of Scranton, and I would suggest to the gentleman from Delaware that rather than leave this bill go back to committee, why not wait until the other bill catches up with it and then arrive at some definite conclusion as to just how we want to handle this proposition.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I thought I made myself clear in my statement to the gentleman from Lackawanna, that this bill has never yet been in the Committee on Highways and it has been my understanding that such bills must always go through the Committee on Highways in the Senate.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, House Bill No. 835 was on the Calendar in the House—I think it rested there for some two or three weeks—in order to enable the second class township bill, appropriating $8,500,000, to reach it, and then both bills moved together.

I would like to ask the gentleman from Delaware if he would agree to withdraw his motion and permit the House Bill now on second reading to reach third reading, and then let us sit down with the people who have made a sincere study of this proposition. I have a sneaking suspicion that a bill sent back to committee at this late stage of the game, when we are racing against time, and as I understand it, intend to adjourn within some four or five legislative days, I can not escape the conclusion that there is a sinister motive behind the motion to recommit this bill.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, there has been a policy in this state for over fifty years to saddle taxes on home owners. In the city of Pittsburgh it costs us nearly a million dollars a year just to handle traffic, and here is a bill that at least is an attempt to take taxes off the home owners in the city of Pittsburgh, who pay this million dollars a year, in order to keep traffic going in the city of Pittsburgh, and have the state of Pennsylvania through this gasoline tax give us some relief instead of continuing to pile the burden on the home owners of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, the bill on the Calendar is a bill that I should imagine every member of the Senate would be glad and proud to sponsor. The bill is similar to a bill that was sponsored at the last session of the legislature by Senator Stevenson, Senator Coleman and myself. It is a bill that would allocate a share of the motor fund to the city of Philadelphia, the city of Pittsburgh, all of the third class cities in the state, all of the boroughs and towns and all first class townships.

It is a bill that my predecessor, Senator Williamson, fought to have enacted during all the time he was in the Legislature. It is a bill that is now sponsored by the Republican Floor Leader and the Republican Speaker of the House.

As the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Coleman, has stated, we are within one or two days, possibly three or four days, of adjournment.

This means a great deal to the taxpayers of all the municipalities that I have mentioned. The bill that has been referred to as making an appropriation to townships of the second class is not at all incompatible.

I ask my colleagues on both sides of the Senate to keep this bill on the Calendar and in due time pass it and, therefore, I ask them to oppose the motion to return this bill to committee.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I moved to recommit this bill because that was the action of the Caucus, and it is not an attempt to kill the bill at all. It is just a matter of referring the bill to the Committee on Highways, through which committee bills of this type always pass. The Chairman of the Committee on Highways is present on the floor of the Senate and it is my understanding that he intends to hold a meeting of that committee tomorrow to consider this matter.

Mr. COX. I think this matter is of sufficient importance to all the members of the Senate, so that rather than have the question of which of the two bills the Senate would like to have passed be decided by the committee, that the members of the Senate would like to have that opportunity.

I would suggest that the gentleman from Delaware withdraw his motion, that we then have a motion that this bill go over in order, and then tomorrow both bills will be on third reading Calendar, we will all have had a day to study them, and certainly we can determine which is the better bill.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, as I suppose the Senator very well knows, I stand here carrying out the recommendations of the Republican Caucus. The Republican Caucus voted to send these two bills back to the Committee on Highways, not with any purpose of killing them at all, but for the purpose of having the Chairman of that Committee check the proper budget authority and so forth, and determine just which bill should be passed or what amendments should be made, if any.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, may I ask the gentleman from Delaware whether it is possible to take at least five minutes at ease to see whether, perhaps, the Caucus would change its mind.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The question is: shall House Bill No. 835 be recommitted to the Committee on Highways?

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred.)

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Request has been made to have the roll verified.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted "aye."

MOTION TO TAKE RESOLUTION FROM TABLE

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr. Mr. Speaker, last Wednesday there was presented on the floor of this House a motion to reconsider the vote by which House Bill No. 57 failed to pass finally. At that time there was a following motion made to table the motion to reconsider. It is my personal feeling, and the feeling of those identified with the purposes of House Bill No. 57, that this bill should be reconsidered.

I, therefore, move that the motion to reconsider which was laid on the table be taken from the table, and I ask that only those who respond to their names be recorded as voting.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. CORDIER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Lackawanna will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. CORDIER. Mr. Speaker, will the Chair state whether or not it requires a majority of those voting to take this motion from the table or a constitutional majority?

The SPEAKER. It requires a majority of those voting, not a constitutional majority.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The SPEAKER declared the ayes appeared to have it,

Whereupon, a division was called for, seventy-nine Members having voted in the affirmative and forty-two in the negative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MODELL. Mr. Speaker, the Schuylkill River which supplies water today to six municipalities, including Philadelphia, is threatened with utter ruination because of the continued practice of coal operators discharging into the river some two mililon tons of coal silt a year. This is in accordance with the latest reports of the United States District Engineers.

Back in the summer of 1941, the President, in passing this river, noticed the horrible stench and suggested an inquiry to ascertain the effect upon the defense program from the standpoint of health, water supply and navigation.

Mr. Speaker, the primary authority in Pennsylvania charged with the correction of pollution of the streams is the Sanitary Water Board, and at that time they assured the auhorities that they would act in the matter, and as a result the Federal authorities refrained from action.

The Sanitary Water Board, though possessing the power to outlaw this practice by simple decree, has so far refused to act, on the specious plea that there are no practical means known to abate this nuisance. Their plea is contrary to all reports made on the subject, including that of the United States District Engineers and even to the coal operators' committee which admits that they can reduce the coal waste discharge to the extent of five-sixths or eighty per cent. The matter today has become one of grave concern to the Federal government's war efforts because the war industries need an abundance of water, which may be denied them during the period of the summer droughts. The city has difficulty even now to keep its three water intakes clear, and has a vast burden of settling off the fine coal before filtration. Citizens have been repeatedly asked to use water sparingly. Now the government's burden of directing the channel of the navigable waters of the Schuylkill and the Delaware is vastly increased at a time when the channel is most needed and additional dredging equipment is impossible to obtain.

Mr. Speaker, the docks of essential war industries are so choked that barges and ships in some places cannot berth except at high tide. These docks must be dredged by private enterprise and private dredging is almost impossible to obtain. Even worse is the fact that the city fire boats, should an explosion or a fire occur, would not be able to get close enough to effectively fight a conflagration that might easily get beyond control.

The Federal laws are being violated and if the state authority won't act the government must. If the present state administration will do nothing and the United States engineers request it, action will be taken in the United States District Court.

If the present state administration will do nothing, I say to the Members of this House, and especially those who are always telling us that they desire the Federal government not to interfere in the state's business, they will find that the United States government will take steps to stop the throwing of silt into the Schuylkill river. It is up to the Members of this House to see that they protect this state if they claim they don't want interference from the Federal government by immediately passing this bill.

BILL POSTPONED

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I move further action on this bill be postponed until later today.

The motion was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, Senate Bill No. 177 is possibly one of the most important pieces of legislation that has come before this House in this session. It is important because more than any other legislation which we have to consider, this bill is a part of Pennsylvania's post war program or policy. It is such, because we must be careful to see that post war conditions in America and Pennsylvania are approached with a great deal of caution and a great deal of care.

Recently the National Resources Planning Board submitted a report to the President of the United States, a report which is commonly known as the cradle-to-the-grave report. It covers in scope very much what the Beveridge report in England covers. It is regrettable that in Pennsylvania this House refused to accept the amendments offered to our War Planning Commission for the study of Unemployment Compensation or Social Security.

To date, Mr. Speaker, I don't know whether the so-called cradle-to-the-grave plan is sound, I don't know whether it is unsound, but I would be willing to study the plan and after giving it careful and thorough consideration come to a conclusion, but I would approach the problem very carefully and very cautiously, and since unemployment compensation does so vitally affect post war Pennsylvania, I would admonish all the Members of the House to consider their action carefully for several real reasons.

Unemployment compensation as a social proposition is now firmly embedded in our system in Pennsylvania. It has its effect upon our economic situation because it takes money from industry and it pays money to the unemployed workers. That money in turn immediately goes into our economic life blood, and anything that does follow that route must be carefully weighed, especially at this time. We are attempting to say today what the conditions may be in Pennsylvania after the war, and if there is any doubt at all in your minds as to what part this bill will play in post war Pennsylvania that doubt must be resolved against Senate Bill 177.

Briefly Senate Bill 177 is what is commonly known as the Texas Plan, because if my memory serves me correctly it was first initiated by the State of Texas. On January first of this year Pennsylvania concluded a four year Texas plan, and I don't believe that many people were too happy with that addition to the Texas plan. Let me say, Mr. Speaker, that if the purpose of merit rating is to give relief, or to preserve a fund which has its rightful place in our economy, don't look at Texas because the fund in Texas is broke. Don't look at Michigan because the fund in Michigan under merit rating is in bad shape. Don't look at some twenty-four other states in the Nation which have the merit rating plan because every day it seems those industries which would be compelled to continue paying the maximum have to increase their percentage of payments, up to twelve per cent in some instances, while some other industries who have stable employment are receiving the benefit of the reduced amount.

Let us attempt to define what unemployment compensation insurance is by chasing out of our minds the word "insurance." It is not insurance. It is not insurance in the sense that we are asked to believe that a person should pay a premium commensurate with the amount of loss he sustains or the amount of loss which is involved. Unemployment compensation is a contribution by all employers to a fund for the benefit of all workers to the end that the economic reverses occasioned by unemployment shall be cushioned and softened so that the entire blow on industry and on our economic system shall be softened and shall be cushioned against severe shock. That is not insurance. It is a banding together of all of the employers for the benefit of all the employers and for the workers.

I have heard it said, that the merit rating plan would tend to stabilize employment. Let us forget about that for the moment because it fails, the argument is weak, there is not an employer in Pennsylvania, there is not an employer in the United States who for one moment feels that he must stabilize his employes because he will get a reduction in his unemployment tax contribution. He stabilizes employment because it makes it easier to run his plant. He hires more workers because he can make more money. There is no employer in Pennsylvania who will hire more workers to get a reduction in his contribution. He will hire more workers to make more profit. There is no employer in Pennsylvania who would not want to spread his employment over the entire year if he could, because it gives him a sounder basis and a sounder foundation upon which to work to plan for the future. There is no employer who if he looked far enough ahead but would find that he was running into a eventual chaos if he supports any plan to reduce or cripple this fund.

It has been said, Mr. Speaker, that there is safety valve in this bill. What sort of safety valve is provided? It is said when this fund reaches a million dollars below the three million dollars the merit rating automatically ceases and everyone goes back to the maximum contribution. If that is safety, do the figures prove it? Is it safe when we know that of the millions of men in service today Pennsylvania must take back its own sons when the war is over. That figure has been estimated on this floor a year ago at two million. Let us say that one million of them will come back. The soldiers of the Army are coming home and so are the soldiers of industry coming home when war production must cease.

Let me quote something that was said on the floor of this House one year ago. I am quoting the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rose, who, when he spoke concerning a bill which was being considered for the payment of partial unemployment benefits said:

> We have to deal only with estimates; we were unable to tell how many men are going to come from the war or know how many of them will be entitled under this bill to payment of unemployment compensation benefits. The estimates run as high as two million persons. Two million times two hundred dollars is four hundred million dollars in one year, and that would wipe out the fund.

So, Mr. Speaker, is three hundred million dollars safe? I wouldn't say that four hundred million dollars is safe. I wouldn't know what figure was safe, and I defy anyone to say what figure would be safe. Because this is what is going to happen in a broad way: Men are going to come back, the workers are going to be unemployed until industry can transfer back to peace time efforts. We may or may not be ready when the war is over. Certainly we never will be ready if the war would end tomorrow but we don't know when the war will end. We don't know when the men are coming back; we only know it will end and everyone then hopes to be ready for it. If, let us say, in two years the war were to be concluded, and these men were to come home, the workers were to be thrown out of employment this Legislature would then have a problem of how to provide for them.

If the fund were to have five hundred million dollars at that time, or six hundred million at that time then we would feel reasonably assured that there will be enough money over a year's time or possibly slightly more than a year's time, to pump four to five hundred million dollars into Pennsylvania's business. If the money is not there to pump into Pennsylvania's business then we in the Assembly would have to meet the problem of taxes for relief. We did not have such a fund in 1935 or 1937 to fall back on. We were under the most terriffic pressure to determine the policy of a tax program to keep people from starvation. I want to prepare against such a possible happening. I want to be sure that we do not have to scurry around and tax people and industry then under pressure when we do not have any long time or long range view of taxation and have to do it to keep the people from starving, to keep people from suffering.

Mr. Speaker, that is what I am concerned about now. I want to be sure that if and when another emergency tax program is necessary that we will not be rushed into it to complete a tax program which has been villified, which has been discussed politically for the past several years. That to me would not be sound cooperation with the people in Pennsylvania. The people at that time will not have earned a severe jolt to their morale in their desire to go on and keep Pennsylvania out in front. The people will have looked to us to prepare in advance a war program that will keep them from being kicked around by political parties and by politicians generally. If we are not to look ahead, if we are to sow that way now, we shall certainly reap a whirlwind then.

May I further comment briefly on the socalled promises and pledges of liberalization of unemployment compensation? It is history now in Pennsylvania that the last administration pledged liberalization, and it is history that that liberalization never occurred. It is history that at a special session of 1942 one of the calls of that session was for liberalization, and as we know now the liberalization proposed by this side of the House to pay benefits for partial unemployment that would have taxed the fund to the extent of five million dollars a year was turned down. Liberalization of unemployment compensation has been turned down when it meant liberalization for the unemployed workers. But certainly when there was a question of so-called liberalization for industry, there was a terriffic rush, and a terriffic urge to liberalize when the passage of this bill might mean the withholding from this fund of anywhere from fifty to seventy-five million dollars per year. Big business,—I find myself in a very peculiar position, I find myself advocating what big business wants. Big business can see ahead; they want to pay this money into the fund when they are making money. They want to take the huge profits of today and set aside a portion of it to take up the slack after the war. Big business wants such taxes to spend when the war is over and when the profits are not high. Big business wants to pay that tax on that huge profit now, and with them on that score I agree most heartily. I, therefore, find myself upholding the hand of big business. If whatever big business has done in the past has been the book for the Members on the other side of the House, then let us be the verse today. They are the geniuses of business of America. They have seen ahead and they can see ahead. They want to spend the money now and to lay it aside for the rainy day when the war is over, to take up the terriffic impact on the economic situation and to take up the terriffic impact on the employment of the workers. With that I heartily agree, as much as I disagree with the so-called long range program for tax benefits for big business, but with this item I agree most heartily.

Let me point out that the greatest amount of war time salaries today have to do with munition manufacturers. That should be enough to prove to us conclusively that upon the termination of the war the unemployment rolls must be high. Money must be saved now. I would not be afraid if this fund were to reach one billion dollars to have ready for post war purposes. There is no political issue in unemployment compensation, and there should be no political issue in unemployment compensation. A very fair appraisal of the situation would be to put it in this shape: that once the war is over, Philadelphia, Delaware county, Montgomery county, the coal regions, Allegheny county and all the steel producing counties would immediately have on their hands a terriffic number of unemployed persons. The local relief agencies, with the assistance of the state, would have a staggering problem. The local relief agencies would have to call upon the Commonwealth for help for those living within those areas especially, and also most of the other areas to a lesser degree in order to provide money to buy clothing, and food and shelter for those who cannot work and cannot possibly have it because industry will not be ready for them. That is the problem that ought to be considered carefully.

I have received and many other Members have received many communications. I can see in those communications only one thing. As I said on this floor some time ago in my comment on the fact that the Gallup poll had indicated that 91 per cent of the American people were in favor of the Ruml Plan, I said that 91 per cent of the people would naturally take something for nothing. If anyone approached me with a proposition concerning which I knew nothing, and if thereby I was to get something for nothing I would most certainly be for it. I think that to a great extent many business men in Pennsylvania have been given the facts without figures, and have been given the story without the background. They have been promised a reduction immediately, and since that is so they are for it without looking ahead.

I received a communication from a group of people in Pennsylvania who in behalf of some two thousand members said they favored the principle of the merit rating bill. It happens to be a small trade association, and of the two thousand members in that association I would safely say that eighteen hundred have no employes whatsoever, so that they would have no contribution at all to make to the fund. That is the sort of misleading pressure that is being exerted on the Members of the House. I would urge every Member of the House to not only consider but to weigh carefully these views of the over-all problem involved. Can we honestly today say that we shall not pay contributions when profits are high and people have trouble spending money, and say that when the depression hits Pennsylvania and the Nation we shall then be compelled to promote more taxes from industry and they shall be then making less money. If that is what is wanted and if this is a good medium and a good bill, then you should vote for it, but if that is a thing that we are attempting to avoid if possible, then we should move with caution and we should vote against Senate Bill No. 177.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker, I have listened to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, with interest that grew as his remarks progressed. I feel that Mr. Cohen has said so many true things in his remarks that it is very difficult indeed to segregate those parts of his remarks which might indicate an opposition to this bill. I find in the first place that he as an opponent of the bill is in complete agreement with the proponents of the bill as to the philosophy that underlies unemployment compensation; that he recognizes the purposes of unemployment compensation, just as we all believe they were intended to be set up when the Federal government inaugurated its unemployment compensation program along with other social measures. We can all recognize that in approaching the discussion on Senate Bill 177 the bill deals solely and alone with unemployment compensation funds and the contributions that are made thereto by the employers of Pennsylvania who are liable to unemployment compensation tax of three percent under the Federal law and two and seven-tenths percent credit against that tax under the state law. We can easily recognize that nothing in this bill changes or alters anything that presently has to do with the matter of benefits or the payment of benefits toward the unemployment compensation fund. We can also recognize from the language of this bill very easily that in no sense does it preclude now or in the future such alterations that may be made to the state law from time to time to liberalize unemployment compensation benefits, to protract the waiting time or to in any other manner liberalize the Pennsylvania law. Those things we are in complete agreement upon.

I am not going to endeavor to answer Mr. Cohen in his remarks with respect to most of the motives and purposes of what he terms big business in Pennsylvania. I am not quite clear from the manner in which he discussed the motives and the purposes of big business with respect to this bill whether he wished to indicate that big business is for or against the bill, but I do want to say this, that the immediate purpose of Senate Bill 177 is to give to all employers of workers in Pennsylvania relief from what has been proven by experience to be a rather excessive high rate of contribution to the fund.

Insofar as that relief may be applied to big business, I think that we can all say that big business, when we talk about big business, is today engaged about one hundred percent in the war effort, but we are not saying what we mean by big business, and therefore let us think of big business only as those great corporations which probably can be counted upon the fingers of both hands. Let us get down to who in Pennsylvania it would really benefit and who would have relief from an excessively high rate of contribution, if Senate Bill 177 becomes law. We have often said of individuals, and we have heard it more often said that the strength and the backbone of our state and our national economy is the medium and the small businesses. That is not an idle statement, but that is borne out by government statistics that are available from the time that statistics have been kept. The big businesses in this state or in any other state can be counted upon the fingers of both hands. They, of course, make a very great and improtant contribution to the economy of the whole, but their contribution is overwhelmed, vastly overwhelmed by the contribution that is made by medium and small businesses, businesses that are employing anywhere from two or three men to seven hundred men. Those are the businesses that really make our state and nation great. Of all these medium and small businesses how many of them would you say are making hugh profits today? Therefore, they would like to find the means of distributing some of the future cost business over these years of high and great prosperity. Mr. Cohen knows and every Member of this House knows that for every ten businesses that are able to contribute something directly to the war effort there are at least fifty businesses who are hanging on by their eyelashes, who have no control, either now or in the immediate future, over what will become of their business. There are more businesses counted by number today that are on the edge of despair than ever before in the history of this state, and we are very well aware of that fact. These businesses that constitute the strength and the backbone of our country, under Senate Bill 177 will be the great beneficiaries of a lower rate of contribution to the unemployment fund. That will be true for another reason, the labor turnover, as is very well known in any industry or business, will be less in the very nature of things in small or medium sized businesses than in a great corporation employing thousands upon thousands of people.

I want to take this opportunity to compliment Mr. Cohen on the very scholarly and thoughtful manner in which he presented his opposition to this bill.

There seems to be but one open question of very great importance, and that is the question of adequacy of the fund.

Mr. Cohen has said, and with a great deal of truth, that no living man can make final predictions in these times, but I want to go back to the time when the unemployment compensation law was enacted. At that time no living man could say that a three per cent tax was the right tax to set. At the time when the three per cent tax was set there were no statistics such as are necessary for the administration of an unemployment compensation law, and at the very best the tax of three per cent was set as the result of thoughtful guessing. Now, it is curious, but that three per cent has turned out to be a rather good guess, because in all the experiences of all the states up to this day and hour three per cent has been more than adequate. Three per cent has resulted in all but two states in this Union having compensation out of their fund a total of more than fifty per cent of the total contributions. In other words up until the middle of 1942, it was the broad, all-over experience of unemployment compensation that on the basis of a three per cent tax and a two and seven-tenth per cent credit against that tax that no state save two had paid out of their fund a total of more than fifty per cent of all the moneys contributed. Therefore, the prediction that three per cent was right has in a sense been a safe prediction. I hope that Mr. Cohen would not believe that men would work for years in trying to arrive at a prediction of what individual merit rating systems might do without going into all available statistics, just as Congress went into everything they had at the time they set the three per cent tax.

I will say, Mr. Speaker, that this bill which Mr. Cohen has referred to as a kind of Texas plan,—and I will pass over his inferences concerning Texas and its practice for the moment,—has been developed out of not only thoughtful study in the light of every available factor that could be brought to bear, but it has also been measured now in actual operation in a number of states in the Union. There can be no question, because it can be mathematically proved that under even the most adverse conditions that we have known in the United States that were not war conditions, the fund as it has been set up will always continue to grow. It can be proven mathematically that under the most adverse conditions we will find under Senate Bill No. 177 that it will always be adequate.

Of course to demonstrate that would mean a very considerable recital of facts and figures, but if this House is desirous of having them and it is so indicated, I am willing to explain a hypothetical case such as I believe we will never have the misfortune to encounter in this country, and demonstrate that if Senate Bill No. 177 becomes law the fund will never be in any danger.

We can extend it further; we can take a reasonable view of what will happen when the war is over and when the men in the armed forces return and claim their proper interest and share in this fund. It is rather ridiculous of course to say that all the men who go out of Pennsylvania into the armed forces will come back and claim unemployment compensation. Such a thing I think Mr. Cohen knows is very unlikely. We were told some time ago that we were to have an army of eleven million men approximately and it was further indicated that Pennsylvania would contribute about ten per cent of the total, so if that is the case I think probably it is likely we will have a total of perhaps one million two hundred thousand men in the armed forces, counting the total time of the war.

Now, of course everyone who has ever had any experience with military statistics knows, and we regret very sincerely to have to recognize that there will be casualties, and if we bring down through those casualties our total return of men out of one million two hundred thousand to perhaps seven hundred thousand, and we say that we are going to be industrially just about like a dry sponge, those men coming back will in the main have no difficulty replacing themselves in gainful occupations. And further if we deduce that about two hundred fifty thousand men might for the period of their eligibility call upon this fund as a cushion between the time they return and the time they find gainful employment within the limit provided by law of two weeks, if such a thing like that were to happen,—and I don't believe it will, and it should happen on top of two years in succession of the worst tumble in industrial indexes and employment indexes that this country has ever experienced even then this fund could be in no danger whatever, and I seriously doubt if the safety factor would be reached whereby all employers would pay the two and seven-tenths per cent.

I think the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, has not used his pencil quite as much as he has used his head in reasoning out the argument that he has presented against this bill. I feel sure that if he will start with the known facts he will discover that before the payments for the first quarter of 1943 began to come in there were in this unemployment fund over three hundred fifty-two million dollars. Now, there is no question whatever that the fund will be contributed to, even heavier than it was in 1942 when we had contributions totalling one hundred twenty million dollars, and on a fund of that size the interest rate alone allowed by the Federal government amounts to well over eight million dollars a year, so that if every employer in the state of Pennsylvania under these presently existing conditions were to get a preference rate of one per cent of contribution, that would still yield forty-three millions of dollars to this fund annually under these conditions and there would also be approximately eight million dollars interest, or approximately fifty million dollars of income. What will the outgo be? Most certainly not greater than it was last year, and most certainly less than it was last year, or fifteen million dollars.

I recognize that to debate this bill statistically would be a long and tedious proposition. Nevertheless in justice to the bill, and if there is an indication that it should be done, I am prepared to do it, but for the moment I hope that a bit of reason may suffice to prevail here in this House. We are going to have by the first day of January next year a fund in this state, and that is the effective date on which this bill would be operative, of above four hundred fifty million dollars, and that is very conservative.

The safety factor that applies in Senate Bill 177 so acts that at any time a fund of that magnitude should fall below three hundred twenty million dollars roughly, every employer in the state would again return to a contribution of two and seven-tenths per cent. In the meantime, and with very good reason, Pennsylvania employers should have the benefit of a lesser payment into this fund. The money that is paid into this fund is not depriving the Federal government of a single penny, it is not depriving the beneficiary of unemployment compensation of a single penny, it is depriving no one of anything, and it is saving for the employers of Pennsylvania and particularly those who need it more sorely at this time a very considerable sum of money.

If we want to talk again for a minute about big business, it seems to me that it would be the proper thing for this General Assembly to place our corporations in a sound competitive situation with respect to the employers of other states. I think that the great corporations who exend their operations far beyond the geographic limits of this Commonwealth are entitled to be able to meet their competitors from other states on at least equal terms with respect to this tax.

If a Pennsylvania coronation seeks to get business, and in seeking to get business being successful provides more men with gainful occupation, then certainly a reduction in the contribution to this fund could scarcely be regretted.

The question of incentive to stabilize employment has been touched upon. It is a very debatable question, of course, but I cannot fail to see that when a corporation goes out to get business and because of conditions and taxes that that corporation must include in its cost of doing business it is in a fair competitive situation with the corporation from another state, then Pennsylvania is doing something that will be helpful and redound to the desirable position of stabilizing employment in the state.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that we have before us a measure in which Pennsylvania has been very tardy. The Federal government not only invites the states to adopt merit rating systems, but it sets up very definitely and in unmistakable terms the extent to which a state may offer its employers an inducement to stabilize employment. In Pennsylvania it will be very unfair until we have the experience of merit rating to say that employers have no interest in stabilizing employment.

I am afraid Mr. Cohen has not had to wrestle with the problems of an industrial organization. I know, and I know that the men in this House who are in industrial businesses are not only anxious but they are always willing to sit down with a pencil and find on which side of this problem they can save the most money, and if they can save the most money and they can make their prospects for getting business better by keeping men employed, even to the extent of absorbing at times some of the cost of that employment, it will most certainly work, I think, toward the stabilization of that employment.

Mr. Speaker, I feel and I hope that every Member of this House feels that we have a measure here which is due to the industrialists and employers of the state of Pennsylvania, and that it will receive the support of this House.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I should briefly like to reply to several phases of the debate of the gentleman from Delaware. First let me point out that in 1942, during the special session the votes on certain amendments to the Unemployment Compensation Law with respect to liberalization of its terms so as to deprive the fund of money was voted on strictly on party lines, so that I will ask the members on the other side of the House to adhere to the policy of the majority in this House on that very question, because this statement which I am about to read was made, and it formed the background of the contention on the other side, and I presume has formed the heavy argument which presumably caused the Members on the other to vote as they did then, and I quote a statement made by the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rose, who said as follows:

> This Unemployment Compensation Fund is large, two hundred thirty million dollars, but the members of the Legislature are trustees of this fund for the benefit of the workers of this State. We all would like to be liberal and take care of everybody that comes under it, but we dare not take a chance of making provisions that are such that the workers in the future, who may in two or three years find himself out of a job and apply to the fund for compensation, find that the cupboard is bare. We cannot let that happen, and any question of doubt must be resolved in favor of those who in the future will have need of it.

That, Mr. Speaker, substantiates the statement that I made earlier.

The gentleman discussed the question of the safety factor and the question of the corporations who do business in many states and the question of corporations who do business in this State, and in computing their costs what effect this tax will have on their ability to go out and get business. I suggest that we take the long range view. I suggest that in times when industry is making money, keep the taxes up. I suggest that if the time comes when business will not be making money because of recession in business generally, it will be then that our business will be sorely put to compete with corporations in other states. I suggest then that our corporations should not find themselves in the position of having to pay increased taxes should it be necessary for the safety feature of this tax to be turned out and taxes of so many of these industries rise. It is then that we should seek relief in competition and not lead them down the primrose path of wasting the money now and not saving it.

I find myself in another peculiar situation. Politically speaking all the Members on the other side are the ones who have called for and yelled for free enterprise in America. Basically, Mr. Speaker, this bill cuts a very sharp line between two very great parts of business and industry, the monopolies against those which are not monopolies, and orderly adherents and disciples of free enterprise.

Let me quote briefly from a statement and discussion that was had some time ago at a public hearing on the bill:

> The first simple division which suggests itself in business is that between pursuits which are monopolistic in contrast to those which are competitive.
> The monopolistic are stabilized. Their employment fluctuations are well within twenty-five percent. Likely they have done a good job on their own intiative in steadying their labor supply. If so, then the fact that they run up to twenty-five percent explains why their less favorably situated brothers in the competitive field would only break their teeth over the much tougher nut. They cannot be held responsible for negligence, when they have to adventure after trade to survive in the struggle for existence.
> To the extent the monopoly group seek their own private gain, and ignore the public purpose of unemployment compensation, they may yield to the blandishments of the merit raters. But such pursuit is short-sighted.
> In the meantime, what is the situation with the industries competing for business?
> For the most part, they have no mentionable control over output. Nearly all manufacturers produce and merchants buy, not on whim, but on orders. They have to adapt themselves to the tastes of the public. Their individual faults hurt. Their contributions help. If bad, they directly lose; if good, their processes are standardized and their advantages are normally and quickly integrated into the collective whole of the State's economy.
> Monopoly is not a virtue to be rewarded; free enterprise is not a vice to be punished.
> Fair play, it would seem, would suggest imposing the lighter burden on employers who risk most to build business and put labor to work, instead of those who sit pretty and stay put.
> Utilities, for instance, enjoy a monopoly. Return on investment is guaranteed. Rates are fixed by the public commissions. Employment is practically uniform in season and out. Why should they be given special consideration, on top of all that, when the government levies taxes for public unemployment compensation?
> By contrast, how is it with the employers in the competitive arena? They hazard their capital in an uncertain contest. They may have to risk new ventures. Admittedly labor turnover in these cases is beyond regulation. Because they cannot insure permanent jobs are their courage, effort and enterprise to be penalized by soaking them for their eagerness to promote industry and increase employment?
> There is no warrant for the supposition of the merit raters that employers as a class hire and fire workers at will in order somehow to get the better of the unemployment compensation system.
> Employers are compelled to keep close watch on their payrolls. Rapid labor turnover is an expense. Yet, it is often cheaper than the luxury of keeping workers on for idle weeks or even days. In the long run, they do the best they can.
> Merit rating might, however unintentionally, spur incentive among employers to flood the labor supply market, lower the terms of employment, curtail purchasing power and shove the country down into another industrial depression.

Now, let me say one thing further. I know the merit rating has been adopted in many states of the Union. Some time ago it received its incentive by recognition in Washington and by a then policy of the Social Security Board to at least not discourage merit rating in America. The argument up to this time has been made that if the Social Security Board is not against it, why should anyone else be against it? They are the experts, and we should follow. Let me quote a statement of Arthur Altmeyer, Chairman of the Federal Social Security Board, and which was quoted by George Creel in Collier's Magazine of April 10, 1943 as follows:

> The present time offers a golden opportunity to build up substantial reserves. War payrolls are pouring money into the pockets of workers, the amount of unemployment is small.

When eight or nine million soldiers return to civil life and some 20,000,000 war workers change back to peacetime production, postwar adjustments are bound to entail many hardships. Isn't it better to set up a comprehensive social insurance system, able now to meet every need, than to wait until the emergency is on us?

Here is another strong point. When the national income shrinks at the war's end, the steady and increasing flow of these benefits will go far to sustain the general purchasing power and maintain employment at high levels.

May I call to the attention of the Members, Mr. Speaker, the experience of a sister state, New York? The matter of merit rating has been a matter of continuous study in that state, and has been studied by a joint legislative committee under the chairmanship of Senator Ives, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Assembly in New York, and by the state Unemployment Advisory Council. They studied the subject comprehensively, and I shouldn't want to burden the House with a long list of figures, following the lead of the gentleman from Delaware in this respect, but after spending about a quarter million dollars in making studies they decided to stop merit rating as not being a feasible plan for New York and not being a feasible plan generally. These are the things, Mr. Speaker, that we should be careful about.

I want to thank the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. James, for accepting the basis on which the argument has been made strictly on what the facts portray and on what the situation in the future might be. We have kept it away from politics, we have kept it away from party lines, and I trust that the history of unemployment compensation shall not get a black eye by having political considerations determine its future course in Pennsylvania.

I am personally, and I know the Members on this side of the House are indebted to the gentleman from Delaware for maintaining a high standard of debate on this subject, but I want to urge, Mr. Speaker, that the position the gentleman takes is not substantial. I respect his sincerity in the position that he takes. I know that he as well as I have been very much interested in the subject. It is unfortunate that when we first agree on unemployment compensation, we must then take different routes and consider the methods of approach to a comprehensive plan of unemployment compensation differently. But with that, I respect him and I know that he respects my opinion, but conceding his sincerity and integrity in approaching this problem I ask the Members on both sides of this House to determine the question the same way, that if we are to have a real social system of unemployment compensation we cannot look at the situation today, but we must look at the situation as it may be and as some quarters say it must be in the years to come.

I think, Mr. Speaker, that there is nothing more important today than seriously to think of what the future may hold and attempt to meet the problem today so that we may be able conscientiously to say today that we are looking to the future, and when that future is upon us we may be able to look back and congratulate ourselves that we had the foresight now to anticipate a problem which can best be solved in the future by the maintaining of the unemployment compensation system as it now exists without merit rating. I would say this to the gentleman, that in the future once we have gotten over the post war period and conditions generally are stabilized and experience shows us that merit rating is a plausible and proper thing, I will be the first to join with him in advocating the system for Pennsylvania, but today I cannot in good conscience do so.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, there are a few things that I would like to correct for the record that were said this afternoon. The state of Texas was referred to and that in the state of Texas their fund was broke. I wish to inquire from whoever made that statement the source of his information. As a matter of fact, the fund in Texas is far from being broke at the present time. Likewise, the Michigan fund at the end of 1942 had a balance of between four and five hundred million dollars, which I think if you will look at the balance in our fund you will say would be adequate to meet all of the demands which would reasonably or normally be made, or even abnormally made upon the fund.

Reference was made several times to remarks which were read from the record, made by the present Majority Whip in the prior special session. I would just like to call the attention of the Members of the House that when these remarks were made, I would like to remind them of the conditions surrounding those remarks, namely, that they were made in opposition to partial unemployment payments and that those remarks were made in opposition to further depletion of the funds by further payments therefrom. It is obvious that if we were to pay out all the assets in the fund that the gentleman on the other side would be far from quoting the words used on the floor of the House today.

I would like to remind the Members of the House that if they will look at the last section of the bill,—the bill says it shall be effective up to and including a certain time, and the specified time is mentioned in the bill, in the amendment inserted in the Senate, and the bill as it is presently drawn says that merit rating shall be effective until and including the year in which the Assembly of Pennsylvania sits immediately succeeding the declaration by the President that war is over or that hostilities have ceased, whichever way the bill happens to be drawn. Now, that has this effect, Members of the House, that if the war has ceased in a year or two or three years from now, the President would make his declaration that peace now existed, then it would be incumbent on the then Members of the General Assembly to go into this bill and to decide at that time whether merit rating is proper in Pennsylvania. It seems to me that under the terms of the present bill it is enacting a bill which becomes effective January 1, 1944 and will last by its own terms until the end of the present emergency. I say, members of the House, in supporting this bill I am certain that the bill in its operation will prove so salutary upon our business in this state, and will prove so popular to the employers and to the workmen of the state that they will be only too happy to tell their Members of the Assembly in 1945 or 1947 or whenever it may be, that they are one hundred per cent endorsing this bill and instruct them by their votes to continue its operation. So, Members of the House, all the arguments made as to what would happen in a post war economy would seem to me to pale when we realize that this bill as presently drawn would only be operative until the emergency is over.

Personally I would like to see merit rating extend into the future without restrictions as far as time is concerned, but it was seen fit to insert these amendments in the bill, and I say it has not hurt in any respect the principle of merit rating.

I think this debate has been kept on a very high level and I would like to remind the Members of the House, and I would like to echo the sentiments that have been made by the prior two speakers,—and I am quoting the gentleman from Philadelphia now,—that this is not a political issue, and that unemployment compensation should never be mingled with politics so in soliciting your votes for this particular bill I would like to remind you that this is not a political bill, there are no political angles or tricks to it whatever. This bill simply stands before you on its four good legs, and for no other reason than the merits of the bill do I ask the House to support it.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I hesitate somewhat to talk upon a bill that includes the amount of money and the amount of figures that this particular bill includes. But I feel that I should make some statement on this particular bill. I attended the public hearing on this particular bill, and I asked one question at that public hearing on this bill. The advocates of this particular bill, when I asked this particular question gave me a somewhat confusing answer. I maintained that unemployment insurance is a social question, which I do not think anyone in this House denies.

Now, from the experience of the last depression that we had, which we are now only out of due to the fact that we are at war, we found in large industries in this state where they had what is called a sick benefit, which is contributed to by the workmen of that particular industry. We found that at the end of the depression the men who had contributed to the sick relief funds in the state of Pennsylvania could not be paid according to the original setup of those funds. That is one reason why today I get up to oppose this particular bill, because I feel that industry or companies who have to lay men off regardless of the reason is a sick industry, just the same as the individual in the plant who becomes sick and has to resort to sick benefits to live. We know from experience that that happened in our large industries in the state of Pennsylvania and we know why it happened. We know that due to the fact that those men were laid off in industries, that the revenues that came into the sick benefit funds ceased to come in, and the men who were sick and on relief could not be paid their sick benefits.

I say to you that this measure before us now will be the most unpatriotic measure that we can pass in the state Legislature for those men who come back from the other side and can not receive employment, and find that unemployment compensation must be reduced because there are not sufficient funds to pay that compensation.

That is the particular stand that I take on this bill, and I think it is only fair that we men stop and consider what will happen when the war is over. My friend over here says that this bill, this act of the Legislature, would only be in effect during the war or so long after as the President declares the war over. That is the very point that worries me. Now is the time to collect the money to protect the funds for those boys who are on the other side and who come back and may not find employment when they come back. Now is the time to collect, not when men are laid off in industry. This is a payroll tax, and if men are not working in industry the revenue will not come into the fund, because it is based on the payroll of the men who are working in industry.

I know that every labor organization in this state is opposed to this bill, and I think rightfully so, because they hesitate to think what will happen if these men who are now in industry find that industry has to close its doors against them, and they find then that our funds for unemployment compensation insurance are not sufficient to meet the demands of the day. I think all of us should give that consideration and vote against this bill. If there is a time when we can have merit rating, when we are not facing this problem, after the war, I myself would agree to go along with a merit rating system.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker, I want to answer for a brief moment something that has been said by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen. He referred to remarks from the record in the last Legislative session, when the debate was on the question of partials in our Unemployment Compensation law, and he referred particularly to the statement made by Mr. Rose at that time that we, the General Assembly of the State of Pennsylvania, are the trustees of this Unemployment Compensation Fund.

I am glad that he brought that matter up. I am glad that he refreshed our memories concerning that statement, because I want here and now to subscribe to that thought and reiterate that the General Assembly of Pennsylvania is indeed the trustee of the Unemployment Compensation Fund. If I for one felt that the enactment of Senate Bill 177 would be a breach of or in violation of that trusteeship I would be the last man in this House to consent to its passage. In furtherance of the principles involved in any trusteeship I have taken it upon myself, as I know other men here have done, to prove as far as it is possible mathematically that no breach of that trusteeship can be brought about and no dangerous depletion of this fund can be made by the enactment of this piece of legislation.

I can well appreciate my friend Mr. Lovett's concern with respect to the fund being ample at a time when it may be drawn upon heavily, but he is in error in one thought—not a statement, and that is that no matter what the drain on the fund is, as long as there is the slightest bit of activity in the state of Pennsylvania contributions will not cease. Under the most adverse conditions by the falling of the employment indexes and the manufacturing indexes to the lowest point that we have ever known, and adding on top thereof an exaggerated demand upon the fund after this war is over, and granting that under those conditions the safety device incorporated in the language of this bill would become operative, there could not possibly be a time when the trusteeship which we must all acknoweldge would be either breached or violated.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I was very much taken aback by the gentleman from Lancaster when he very speedily decided to tell the House that this is not a political issue. I don't know whether unemployment compensation is or is not, but I do know that unemployment compensation is the creation of the Federal Democratic administration, and I also know that an attempt is being made today in behalf of representatives of the Commonwealth to split it asunder. I don't know whether the gentleman from Lancaster knows that the merit rating bill is the creation of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association or not, but I know it is, and I know that lobbyists for the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association this afternoon have crept into the rear of the House and are awaiting—

The SPEAKER. So far we have engaged in a high type of debate and the Chair requests that the Members so continue. The gentleman will proceed in order.

Mr. LEVY. This is a high type of debate, Mr. Speaker. Lobbyists of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association do not suddenly come into the well of the House when they are not interested in certain pieces of legislation.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. HARE. The gentleman is not discussing the merits of the bill.

The SPEAKER. The point is well taken. The gentleman from Philadelphia will confine himself to the question before this House.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I am speaking on Senate Bill 177.

The SPEAKER. The Chair insists that the gentleman confine his remarks to the question. There is nothing in the bill that the Speaker knows of, or anyone else knows of, concerning lobbyists or manufacturers.

Mr. LEVY. What is the purpose, Mr. Speaker, then of the Republican majority in the Commonwealth of foisting upon the people of Pennsylvania a merit rating system? I think I know, and I think every Member of the House knows. The merit rating bill is another payment by the Republican party to the Pennsylvania Manufacturers, and that's what it is, gentleman, nothing more and nothing less.

The SPEAKER. The Chair insists that the gentleman debate the bill. For the last time the Chair admonishes the gentleman.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I insist that you permit me to go through with my debate.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I move that the remarks of the gentleman be expunged from the record.

The SPEAKER. The Chair cannot accept the motion at this time. The point of order was raised and the Chair sustained the point of order.

Mr. LEVY. They can't take it; they can't take it.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed in order.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, we have heard for several hours the Republican interpretation of the merit rating bill. I heard the gentleman from Delaware cry aloud for the small business man of Pennsylvania, and in his definition, not satisfied that the Minority Leader might not have explained what is meant by small business men, he proceeds to tell us that a small business man in his estimation is one with from two to seven hundred employes. I say to the gentleman from Delaware, an employer with five hundred employes or three hundred employes is a big business man in Pennsylvania, and I say to the gentleman from Delaware, that is the man who wants to get the benefit of merit rating.

The gentleman from Lancaster might make small of the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rose's, remarks in the special session of 1942, but I want to remind the gentleman from Lancaster that the good people of Lancaster County didn't re-elect him in the session of 1941 and 1942, and that he was not present in the Hall of the House of Representatives when the partial payments under the Unemployment Compensation Bill were discussed I do not believe that the gentleman from Lancaster recalls what the argument was all about, but we know what the argument was all about. The gentleman from Cambria, then representing the minority party, on the request of the majority to insert in the bill a measure dealing with partial payments said:

> We cannot afford to give more payments than the bill now provides, and we cannot afford to add classes to this benefit payment because if the payments were multiplied as the Minority Leader said by so many hundred it would then be obvious that the fund would deteriorate to such an extent that it would be classed bankrupt.

Now, I ask the gentleman from Cambria and I ask the Republican leadership in the House if partial payments under the guise of the bill in 1941 or in the special session of 1942 was too much for the fund to stand, how in the world does the Republican party compromise its attitude now when they attempt to take from the fund millions upon millions of dollars by alleviating the burden of the employers of Pennsylvania? Gentlemen, you can't compromise your position. The gentleman from Philadelphia very clearly said it is difficult to go into a maze of statistics, because no one can foresee what will apparently develop in the years to come. I say to the gentlemen of the majority if it is not their intention to bend themselves over in their attempt to serve Joe Grundy of Pennsylvania then they better definitely—they didn't like that either.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman persists I am going to insist that Rule 66 be enforced.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Somerset—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield? A point of order has been raised. The point of order is well taken. The gentleman well knows that he is engaging in personalities.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, permit me to advise you, that I have refrained—

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will yield. The Chair will not permit any advice. The gentleman will confine himself to the question before this House.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, permit me to inform the Chair—

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed under the question before this House.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. LEVY. May I not, upon objection by the Chair explain my reason for mentioning the name of so prominent a Pennsylvania citizen?

The SPEAKER. The rule prohibits personalities on the floor of this House.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a further question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. LEVY. Is it not true, Mr. Speaker, that the name of Joseph R. Grundy has been mentioned on this floor on numerous occasions?

The SPEAKER. That may be true. It is not in the bill and it is not a question before this House, and the Chair so rules.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman said that we on this side were servants of personalities. He was decidedly out of order whether he mentioned the names of the personalities or not, he said we were servants.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I said it was evident—

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, how did you recognize the gentleman on the point of personal privilege when one man has the floor?

The SPEAKER. The Chair did not recognize the gentleman. The Chair inquired for what purpose the gentleman rose which is the same position that the gentleman from Philadelphia is in now. For what purpose does the gentleman from Philadelphia rise?

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. O'BRIEN. On a question of information, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of information.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, can the Chair declare a point of order without a Member asking for a point of order?

The SPEAKER. The Chair can enforce the rules of this House.

Mr. O'BRIEN. On a point of information, Mr. Speaker, can the chair raise a point of order without a Member asking for the point of order?

The SPEAKER. The Chair has not raised the point of order.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, the Chair ruled on the point of order prior to the gentleman from Somerset raising the point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Somerset raised the point of order, and the Chair ruled that the point of order was well taken.

Mr. O'BRIEN. I say, Mr. Speaker, under the point of information that the Chair raised the point of order prior to the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Hare, raising the point of order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair cannot agree.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, can we ask for the stenographic notes on that?

The SPEAKER. On the question before the House, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, who still has the floor.

Mr. O'BRIEN. A point of information, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, yield?

Mr. LEVY. I will, Mr. Speaker.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of information.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, prior to the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Hare, raising a point of order, the Chair interrupted the gentleman from Philadelphia during the course of debate by raising the point of order himself.

The SPEAKER. The Chair did not raise any point of order. The Chair was simply enforcing the rules of this House.

Mr. O'BRIEN. There was no point of order raised, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has decided the question. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia Mr. Levy, who has the floor.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, let us state our positions very clearly. The gentleman from Lancaster says he is happy that this is not a political issue. I say to the gentleman from Lancaster that if this is not a political issue then why did not the Governor of the Commonwealth call upon the minority to sit in on the deliberations on merit rating like he promised in the beginning of this session on important war measures?

If this bill Senate No. 177 is the one bill of this session that the Republicans term non-political, then where was the Democratic representation in its deliberations on this measure? The gentleman from Lancaster knows full well that this measure was drafted many, many months before the session of the Legislature ever came into being. I recall quite vividly that merit rating was discussed at a meeting of the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce and at a meeting of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association long before the session convened in its opening in January at the beginning of this year. I say then, Mr. Speaker, if merit rating was to have been non-political, then it must have been the duty of the Republican majority to confer with the minority in the best interests of a fund which the gentleman from Delaware agrees is a trust held by the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and I say to the gentleman this evening, if the Legislature is trustee of the fund for unemployment compensation, then I say we better tread lightly, because we only have to take the word of the gentleman from Delaware himself when he said that we have no way of foretelling what is liable to happen when we make a drain upon this fund which may be big enough to cause it to explode or to drain to nothing. I say to the Members of the House that Senate Bill No. 177 is important enough that we might set aside a few more moments to decide whether we are doing the proper thing. I say to the membership if we are to be sincere in our guidance and trusteeship of this fund, let us defeat Senate Bill No. 177 this evening.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. James.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mf. JAMES. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman to say that he could insure me that this particular act would not allow the unemployment fund to sink to such a level that there would be no chance whatever of the fund being able to pay to unemployed workers under the present setup?

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker, I have assured myself by something more than 17,000 mathematical calculations, and I can therefore unhesitatingly assure my colleagues likewise.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, do I take from that statement that regardless of what may happen in the state of Pennsylvania after this war is over, regardless of how big the layoff may be in industry, that the unemployment fund will still be able to pay at the present rate to unemployed workers?

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker, I have not taken into my calculations acts of God, that is the only thing that I have omitted. Should we have an earthquake that would devastate this state in a great degree I presume that the fund would not take care of the situation. Should any other unforeseeable and almost unimaginable act of God prevail, then I make no guarantee.

Mr. LOVETT. That is all, I thank the gentleman. Mr. Speaker, if I understand correctly the enactment of this particular bill would give to those who have continual employment for their workers a reduction in the rates paid under this bill. Now I say again to you that past experience proved to me that in large industries in this state men have paid into sick benefit funds for fifty years and received no reduction for not being sick; we found that during the depression those same men could not receive the money that was set up under those sick benefits during the depression period. I say to you that this bill applies likewise. You here are saying to the industries in this state, who through no fault of theirs have to lay off their employes, you are penalizing those industries and giving to the well industries a reduction. Now, I say to you if that happened in industry in this state, which it did, and I defy any man to say it didn't, because I know it did, I will say to you then that we should tread very lightly when we reduce this fund, because as Mr. James says, and he doesn't know, there is no man living who knows, I say to you that it would be the most unpatriotic thing in the world to find these men coming back and saying to them "We cannot pay under the unemployment insurance fund the present schedule now set up." I say that we should tread very lightly when we consider those things; we should keep this fund in such a condition that those boys who are fighting for this country, rather than lowering their benefits, we may be able to say to them when they come back, in the next session of the Legislature, "We shall increase the benefits that you men may receive after saving the country".

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker we have before us the much discussed question of merit rating proposed in Senate Bill No. 177. May I at the outset say to the membership of the House a merit rating as proposed in this measure we have before us for consideration sets up a procedure which to my opinion and the opinion of many industrialists and many organization leaders in the state of Pennsylvania is not workable in a time of crisis and will not be workable and will not be on a solid foundation in a post war period

I certainly do not want to take the time of the House to discuss the procedure that has been studied for the past two years, but, Mr. Speaker we now have before us Senate Bill No. 177 proposed to the General Assembly under the sponsorship of Senator Homsher. The same provides for an experience rating procedure for unemployment compensation purposes. This plan is commonly called the "Cliffe" plan or the one that has placed Texas in the red column as concerns the feasibility of unemployment compensation. May I say, gentleman of the House, that Claude Williams, Director of Unemployment Compensation in the State of Texas, has charged that the provisions of their plan are a fraud on the intelligence of the people and therefore, Mr. Speaker, I say that this plan is certainly not proper and should not be adopted by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Now I am not going to endeavor to propose the proper procedure to the membership, as the material on this is in the files of the Advisory Council, and any person interested in the problem before us can obtain the same for the asking.

The following report of the committee appointed by the Chairman of the State Advisory Council on unemployment compensation to study the problem of experience rating was unanimously adopted by the Council members in attendance at their regular meeting

This is their summary of the proposal before us, Mr. Speaker. I quote:

> The Committee on experience rating believes it inadvisable to recommend legislation in the interest of experience rating at this time.
> That war has caused abnormal employment. Those who have patriotically responded should not be penalized.
> War operations should carry the expense for liquidating liabilities incurred.
> Any present possible savings would be largely absorbed by Federal Income Taxes.
> The plans for experience rating which have been considered for Pennsylvania would, in our judgment, neither provide an adequate incentive for employers to stabilize employment nor allocate the cost in proportion to responsibility for unemployment.

Supporting these conclusions are:

A. Summary of arguments obtained from various sources.

B. Brief of discussion of experience rating prepared by the Social Security Committee of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company is submitted as being typical.

Summary of Arguments Obtained from Various Sources.

1. Experience rating is inequitable because it penalizes employers for fluctuations in employmer beyond their power to control. It is a device for cut ting taxes for a few special industries rather than a solution to the problem of unemployment.

2. It cannot bring about stabilization of employment because an inducement of slight tax reduction would be ineffectual.

3. It is based on a false analogy with Workmen's Compensation because accidents are within the control of the employer, while unemployment is not.

4. It discriminates against and will inevitably lead to higher tax rates upon most industries, particularly the small employers who can least afford it.

5. It disregards the necessity for an adequate reserve and jeopardizes the solvency of the fund.

6. It would increase the volume of chronic unemployment by encouraging employers to adopt practices which would confine the available work to a smaller number of employees to avoid impairment of their record.

7. It penalizes the durable and semi-durable goods industry and the construction industry, the very industries to which we must look for recovery from depression.

8. There is a tremendous amount of administration work required under the experience rating plan.

9. The greatest awards are to industries which need make no effort to stabilize because they are stable by nature, for example, public utilities.

10. Experience rating plans actually impose a penalty on seasonable industries and pay a premium to public utilities, banks, and a small percentage of retail groups. Building and construction, mining and other industries which depend upon the weather, factories which produce for these industries, and garment trades which depend upon seasons and styles naturally irregular.

11. It penalizes industries which are going through a period of decline as a result of new inventions, shift of consumer demand, etc. Some industries which seem stable may be completely wiped out by technological changes. Most war industries will stop at the end of the war. New inventions are always changing industry and employment. The experience rating formula is especially hard on the employer as well as on the unemployed worker if there are several years of unemployment in succession. By hastening the death of such industries above, unemployment and the resulting social problems are increased.

Experience rating is undoubtedly the most controversial aspect of unemployment compensation, and although there are many strong and almost convincing arguments in its favor, I cannot disregard the case which has been made for the opposition. I believe the controversy regarding the principles of experience rating will be settled only the hard way,—by experience,—and that the most urgent question confronting us at this time is if Pennsylvania shall join in the experiment under the present abnormal conditions.

Even if I were convinced of the soundness of the experience rating principle, I do not believe that the present is an opportune time to introduce it in Pennsylvania. On account of the war program the number of covered employees has been greatly increased during the last two years. The increases are still continuing, and it appears they will be limited only by the number of workers which can be made available under the pressure of Government necessity. We cannot predict the level at which our economy will be stabilized in the post-war period, but it seems probable that the peak of war activity will be followed by a period of industrial as well as military demobilization which must result, at least during the period of reconversion of industry to a peacetime footing in wide-spread unemployment. No one can predict the volume and duration of such unemployment, but since most of the workers demobilized either permanently or temporarily will have acquired maximum benefit rights, the drain on the State Unemployment Compensation Fund will be at an unprecedented level. This suggests an inquiry into the adequacy of the State Fund. Some observers believe it is already excessive, and that a further build-up, inevitable during the war period, will offer a temptation to "raid" it through unreasonable increases in benefit standards. Frankly, I do not know what amount in the Fund would be excessive. I do not consider it excessive at present, and believe that I can rely upon the General Assembly to refrain from dissipating it by unwise legislation.

I believe that since the potential liability for unemployment compensation stems from the war-time operations, these operations should provide the funds for liquidating it. This is only to say that the cost of unemployment should be provided for during the period of employment which builds it up as a contingency. The alternate course only makes for low contribution rates during periods of industrial activity which must be compensated for by high rates during periods of depression. In my opinion, no reduction in the present contribution rate should be made until we can predict with some assurance that the State Fund will be adequate to meet the maximum demands upon it in the period of post-war demobilization.

In weighing the advantages to be gained from experience rating, employers should consider that such savings will be largely absorbed by Federal Income and Excess Profits taxes. For example: Assume a corporate employer receives reductions in his State Unemployment Compensation taxes in 1942 amounting to $100,000, and is subject to Federal Income and Profits taxes at an over-all rate of 80 per cent. He has a net gain of $20,000, but against this immediate advantage the State Fund has lost the entire $100,000. No thoughtful employer can be indifferent to this loss, as a depleted Fund can be restored only by increased contribution rates in the future. It is our opinion that some of the states will find their funds seriously impaired in the post-war readjustment unless their experience rating plans are suspended or substantially limited for the "duration": and at least one important industrial state is making intensive studies along this line.

Employers in experience rating states who have greatly increased their employment for operations under Government contracts on a cost-plus or fixed fee basis, or whose contracts are subject to re-negotiation are especially exposed to loss. These contracts can be charged only with the taxes actually paid at the low merit rating, leaving the contractor to absorb in the cost of his regular product the entire cost of unemployment resulting from the discontinuance of work on Government contracts.

The two principal claims made for experience rating are that it (1) gives employers a cash incentive to stabilize their employment; and (2) allocates the cost of unemployment to employers in proportion to their responsibility for it. The plan as proposed in Pennsylvania not only would not accomplish either of these purposes, but would effect exactly opposite results in both. All penalties fall upon the stable employers alone, since the more unstable are protected by the maximum rate. I do not know how the plan was evolved which reverses the claimed objectives of the experience rating principle by placing the only possible penalties of the most stable employers but we do not favor it.

I again say and submit to you, Mr. Speaker, that the Advisory Council of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation respectfully suggests that no legislation be enacted that would interfere with the growth of the Unemployment Reserve Fund during the war production period, in order that this fund may be sufficient for the needs of those who will inevitably be unemployed during the post-war period of readjustment.

In March, 1943, the Reserve Fund amounted to more than $352,000,000. Under the present provisions of the law this amount may be expected to increase as long as the war continues. The increase in employment together with some rise in wage rates and weekly hours of work materially increased by overtime have increased the current rate of collections to more than one and one-half times that of several years ago. During the same period the amount of benefits paid to unemployed workers has dropped to a rate less than one fifth of that of 1938.

The question arises as to how large a reserve fund is necessary to meet such claims for benefits as may be anticipated in the post-war period.

As a basis for preparing an estimate, certain assumptions must be made. One of the assumptions relates to the length of the war. It is, of course, impossible for anyone to predict with any degree of certainty when the war will end. However, the consensus of responsible opinion that has been publicly expressed would indicate that, in all likelihood, hostilities will not cease before the end of 1944.

An assumption that the war will end at the close of 1944 and will be followed by a period of general unemployment is conservative for the reason that by that time most emergency war-workers will have established credits entitling them to maximum weeks of benefits. It would, therefore, appear to be the part of wisdom and reasonable conservation to make estimates on the basis that the war will be consummated about the end of 1944.

The Social Security Board, using data made available by other federal agencies, estimates unemployment compensation taxable wages in 1943 as 15 percent higher than in 1942, and 9.1 percent higher in 1944 than in 1943. These estimates are for the nation as a whole and are in terms of current prices.

Contributions paid in Pennsylvania during the year 1942, excluding interest on the Unemployment Compensation Fund amounted to $122.8 millions. Applying the above percentages to this figure we obtain estimates of contribution income for Pennsylvania of $141 millions in 1943 and $154 millions in 1944.

Undoubtedly some of the benefits paid during the first half of 1942 reflect our transition from a peacetime to a war-time economy. The figures for recent months indicate that we may have approached the "irreducible" low in unemployment.

On the basis of the current rate of benefit payments, and assuming, of course, continuation of the war, it is reasonable to assume that benefit payments will approximate $8 million to $10 million for 1943 and a like amount or slightly less for 1944. During 1943, the amount of interest earned on the Unemployment Compensation Fund should also approach $8 million and for 1943 will be in excess of that amount. Thus, for purposes of these estimates we will presume that the amount of interest earned on the Fund during 1943 and during 1944 will equal the amount of benefits that will be paid during those years.

Therefore, if benefits will offset interest earned, the balance in the Fund should increase in about the same amount as contributions paid. The Fund balance at the end of 1942 was $322.5 million. Adding estimated contributions for the next two years, the balance would be $464 million at the end of 1943, and $618 million on December 31, 1944.

In accepting these estimates it should be considered that they are predicated upon current price levels. An increase in either wage rates or in average weekly earnings resulting from increased hours of work would increase payments into the Unemployment Compensation Fund.

A currently important factor in this connection is the movement to place all employment on a 48-hour week basis, with time and half-time pay in most instances for time over forty hours a week.

The next problem that arises in attempting to estimate reserve requirements during the post-war period is the severity and duration of the period of readjustment.

Opinions on this question will necessarily differ widely. No one is qualified to say how long after an armistice the momentum of war economy will continue before any widespread unemployment occurs, nor how soon thereafter the period of post-war reconstruction and rehabilitation will commence and how long it will continue. Moreover, while conversion to a peace-time economy may be relatively rapid in some sections of the country, there may be widespread unemployment in other sections. The conditions of the peace, the extent and rapidity of demobilization of the armed forces, and federal legislation granting aid both to business in converting to the new economy and to individuals in breaching the period of readjustment are all factors which must be considered.

Therefore, without attempting to answer these questions which are practically in the realm of the unknown, we will base our computations on what may be considered the maximum unemployment which can be expected under most adverse conditions.

Let us assume a total labor force of 3.5 million covered by unemployment compensation in Pennsylvania at the end of 1944, with one-third in non-war, and two-thirds in war industries. Unemployment among non-war workers should not exceed 25 percent and among war workers not more than 75 percent.

Employer	Labor Force	Unemployed	Percent
Total	3,600,000	2,100,000	58%
War	2,400,000	1,800,000	75%
Non-War ..	1,200,000	300,000	25%

The maximum benefits to which a claimant is entitled in a benefit year under the present law is $288. Because of the steady employment and long hours of work which will prevail for the duration, a large proportion of claimants will receive maximum benefits. An adequately high and conservative estimate is that claimants will average $250 in benefits during their first benefit year after the war. Applying this figure of $250 to an estimated possible 2,100,000 claimants, the fund would be called upon to pay $525 million in benefits in 1945. This would cover the first year of mass unemployment. Assuming that during 1945 current contributions reverted to the pre-war level of $75 million and subtracting this amount from $525 million leaves a net loss to the fund of $450 million for the year 1945.

Benefit payments at their highest during the second post-war year should not exceed half those of the first year, since many persons will have exhausted their benefit rights and will be unable to reestablish eligibility. Consequently assuming total benefit payments of $265 million during such second year and contribution collections of $65 million during the same period, the net loss to the period would amount to $200 million.

After the second post-war year disbursements should not exceed income, since most workers, excluding those in secure and permanent positions, will have exhausted all benefit rights.

Adding the net loss of $450 million for the first post-war year to $200 million for the second post-war year, the total reserve required for solvency would be $650 million. Although this is slightly more than the $6.8 million reserve estimated as of the end of 1944, in view of the fact that our computation of possible payments have been what we believe more than adequately high in all directions, it is believed that we may come to the very general conclusion that assuming the war to end at the close of 1944, the fund would probably be able to withstand all demands.

These figures, of course, assume no change in the rate of contributions (namely, no merit rating). They should not be considered as predictions, but merely what could happen under most extreme economic circumstances.

These computations are based on the belief that the assumed extent and duration of unemployment (namely approximately 3 out of every 5 workers over a period of sufficient length for them to exhaust all of their benefits) is the maximum that our economy can withstand. It is presumed that if any worse conditions occurred they would of necessity result in a complete revolutionary change in our political, social, and economic life, in which event unemployment compensation as we know it, as well as all other institutions which we recognize today, must collapse.

In conclusion, it would appear that if we are to protect unemployment reserves so that they may be sufficient to withstand any and all demands that may arise under our present form of economy, it is necessary to continue to accumulate such reserves on the basis of present contribution. Therefore, gentlemen on both sides of this house, I ask you in the interest of good government, as guardians of this social trust fund, and in behalf of the unfortunate unemployed peoples of our Commonwealth to give your consideration to this problem and vote against the bill which will tear down the very structure of our present act.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken.

Messrs. Lane, Russell E. Reese and Petrosky asked for a verification of the roll.

Will the House agree to the section?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Ways and Means for the purpose of further study.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. MADIGAN. Mr. Speaker, I object to having this bill recommitted. It has already been recommitted once to the Committee on Dairy Industries for further study and amendment. A public hearing has been held and the bill has been amended and brought out for consideration of the House. Under those conditions I oppose having the bill recommitted again, and I ask the House to vote down this motion.

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, in support of my motion for recommittal, this bill definitely affects state revenues, and I think it should have some study from the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. ELY. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the statement of the gentleman from Jefferson, I wish to state that the gentleman from the Revenue Department who has charge of this tax has stated that there is very little if any income to the state from this tax. The cost of collecting and handling it very nearly balances what little tax is received. I ask the Members of the House to vote down this motion to recommit.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Jefferson, Mr. Dennison.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Jefferson permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DENNISON. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman say that this is practically a farmers' cooperative bill?

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, the bill so states. May I read to the gentleman from page 10 of this bill, in which they asked for an exemption. They "shall be exempt from any state, county or municipal personal property or other tax upon mortgages, shares of stock, bonds or other securities owned by them in their own right, and they shall be exempt from any tax upon net earnings or savings."

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Yes, I read that section. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, not being a farmer that is almost the only section I have read in the bill, and I noticed that we have knocked off a lot of tax on automobiles, or license, and knocking off revenue on the big trucks and trailers, and now when you get to taking a little off on the farmer you want to recommit the bill. I don't know what is wrong with the farmers that are in the House, whether they know what bill we are considering or not, but I will ask the the Members on this side of the House to vote against recommittal of this bill.

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, may I interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Heatherington?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me about what amount of revenue would be affected by this bill?

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Very little, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DENNISON. Is that a guess or a statement?

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I think I heard the gentleman say a little while ago that it was very little revenue, is that not correct?

Mr. DENNISON. Probably somebody else, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, how about the gentleman telling me how much it would be affected?

Mr. DENNISON. I have no idea, Mr. Speaker, that is the reason I ask that this bill be recommitted, that the Committee may make a study of it.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman have any objection to leaving the bill on the calendar while the Committee studies it?

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, I think the proper place to study the bill is in the Committee.

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. Mr. Speaker, I think it would be a very grave mistake to recommit this bill, as my good friend, Mr. Dennison, proposes to do. This bill represents a study that has been carried on for five or six years by prominent agriculturists in Pennsylvania including all types of farmers and co-operatives to improve the co-operative laws. This bill has received the most careful attention by the Committee for some time. I think the Committee made a very good investigation of it and made a very fair attempt to study the situation. The further I went the more I felt that such legislation is really needed. I suggest to the Members on both sides of the House that they vote this motion down.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker that is just what I wanted to find out, whether we are going to get in here and holler "aye" and "no" on this kind of legislation when both sides are hollering what they are going to do for the farmer. I ask for a rollcall on this motion.

Mr. TROUT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Van Allsburg.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Erie permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TROUT. Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask the gentleman from Erie, since he has made such a careful study of this bill, just what is the business engaged in by these co-ops.

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. In the business of the various varieties of farming, Mr. Speaker, fruit growers and agriculturists of all types.

Mr. TROUT. And what is their line of business, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. That of growing farm products, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TROUT. Is that all, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. These are co-operatives, Mr. Speaker, largely so, in dairying, poultry raising and the raising of general crops, and fruit growing.

Mr. TROUT. Mr. Speaker, do they not also engage in a general line of merchandise?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. Not that I know of, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TROUT. The gentleman has not made a very careful study of the question apparently.

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. Mr. Speaker, I have made a careful study of the co-operatives in my own county.

Mr. TROUT. If we find they are in direct competition with the local merchants, Mr. Speaker, there is no reason in the world why they should be exempt from taxation any more than the people with whom they are in competition. I ask the Members of the House to vote to recommit this bill.

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. Mr. Speaker, it is news to me that merchants are doing business co-operatively. All I know of is farmers doing work co-operatively. I have never read where merchandising was done co-operatively. I have read the law several times and I am acquainted with it, and I think the gentleman is misinformed.

Mr. Speaker, I would conclude by saying that, as has been suggested by Members on both sides of the House, that we have an opportunity to do something for the farmers; let us do so tonight and vote down these amendments.

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Van Allsburg.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Erie permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me about the amount of business done by cooperatives in Pennsylvania in the past year?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. Well, no, I couldn't say as far as the whole state is concerned, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform both gentleman that this is a motion to recommit. They will confine themselves to the motion.

Mr. DENNISON. Would the gentleman state, Mr. Speaker, that this bill has an effect on state revenues, as I stated in my motion to recommit?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. The Department of Revenue is certainly agreeable to the passing of this bill, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DENNISON. That is not the question, Mr. Speaker. My question is, does it have any effect upon state revenues?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. Little or none, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DENNISON. "Little or none" gives very broad latitude. Does the gentleman have any idea as to what effect it might have?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. Mr. Speaker, I do not object to answering the question, but the gentleman is not talking on the question and is not asking questions which are relevant to the question before the House.

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman not feel that any measure dealing with state revenues should have some review by the Committee on Ways and Means?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DENNISON. Then the gentleman does not agree that the regular parliamentary procedure should be followed here?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. Will the gentleman please state his question again, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. DENNISON. I say, the gentleman does not agree to the regular procedure which we follow here that revenues be reviewed by the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. Mr. Speaker, this bill properly belongs to the committee which considered it, and I think it has no place in the Committee on Ways and Means. It is definitely a farmers' bill and was considered by the Agricultural Committee.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, on this motion to recommit I have heard gentleman in the House say "now is the time to do something for the farmer." I like to see people come into a court or into these legislative halls with clean hands, or as one of my colleagues says "He who seeks equity must do equity." House Bill No. 11 was introduced by me to reduce the oleomargarine tax on the small retail grocer. It is really not a necessity of life, and we haven't been able to pry that bill out of the farmers' committee. I say they ought to be accorded the same treatment and let us recommit this bill.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Dennison and Mr. Heatherington and were as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 1055 MADE SPECIAL ORDER

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I move that House Bill No. 1055, Printer's No. 559, on page 30 of today's calendar, bill on third reading, be made a special order of business immediately.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, this bill was discussed when it was on second reading and amendments were offered. At that time the sponsor of the bill was unable to give us real answers as to the amount of money involved in the changing of the laws provided by this bill. Last Thursday when the bill had passed second reading I immediately addressed a letter to the Unemployment Compensation Division of the Department of Labor and Industry, Mr. Shallow, Executive Director, requesting an analysis of the effects of this bill. This morning, about 10:30 or 11 o'clock I was told by my Secretary that someone from the Bureau came to my office, and finding I was not there said that they would be back at quarter to twelve. I waited until almost one o'clock, and since that time I have been in almost constant communication with the Bureau and I find that the Executive Director is out of the city for the week. I find further that the persons who were assigned to the task of analyzing the bill and submitting the information necessary to have an intelligent debate on the bill were to have come to my office. They never showed up. I still haven't got the information.

Mr. Speaker, the Governor told us early in the session if any of his departments from which information was asked by either side, failed to give it, we should come to him. I submit that we cannot intelligently debate this bill unless the information is at hand, and I respectfully object to the motion until such time as the information is made available to us.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I sympathize with the gentleman from Philadelphia, but we are in the final week of this session, and this is a House Bill. It has been on the calendar for quite some time. It was up for debate last week, and I think there has been ample time to secure whatever information is necessary to debate this bill. I, therefore, feel that we should discuss this bill at this time and send it over to the Senate for final passage. We should bring it to a vote at this time on final passage.

Mr. COHEN. If the majority insists on the immediate consideration of this bill, Mr. Speaker, and if the minority is put in the position where we have no information on which to discuss the bill, I for one will leave the hall of the House and will not return until the bill is through.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

(At this point the majority of Democratic members left the floor of the House.)

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I would like at the outset of my remarks while the gentlemen on the other side are filing out,—and I request that they do so very, very quietly so that it does not disturb the deliberations of the majority,—to pay particular attention to the merits of this bill. The gentlemen on the other side will proceed out very quietly, and I will be glad to discuss the merits of the bill.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lancaster yield to the gentleman from Allegheny?

Mr. ASLPACH. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. I thank the gentleman for yielding, Mr. Speaker. May I interrogate the Majority Floor Leader?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, would the Majority Floor Leader agree to pass this bill over for about ten minutes? There is a matter that has arisen that I think will work out and the House will not be thrown into confusion for the balance of the night.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I don't see any reason why the House should be thrown into confusion for the balance of the night. I informed the gentleman from Philadelphia that this was to be made a special order of business, and I believe we are at least an hour and a half behind the time scheduled for that purpose.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman agree to pass it over for ten minutes?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I do not see what we can gain by passing it over for ten minutes. We have waited, according to the Minority Leader, all day for the information he wishes to have at hand.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman agree to pass it over for five minutes?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. No, Mr. Speaker, I do not see that we on this side have done anything unusual or out of the ordinary in asking for this to be made a special order of business. We are pressed for time, and I believe the gentlemen on the other side will agree, and I feel that the gentleman from Philadelphia with his knowledge of unemployment compensation can very intelligently debate the bill.

Mr. BROWN. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I am sorry that the Majority Floor Leader will not agree to pass this bill for these five minutes. I believe in five minutes we could save a lot of time of the House. There is some confusion as to this bill; certainly five minutes will not hurt the bill and will not hurt the time of the House. I yield to the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, may I suggest that I speak for about five minutes while the gentleman does his negotiating or whatever it is he wishes to do?

Mr. BROWN. Well, if they are the best terms we can get, Mr. Speaker, I am willing to do it. I am sure that we all see that some disorder has arisen tonight, and I feel, just for the interest of saving time for the House, that the bill should be passed over for a short time. I have no interest in the bill one way or the other. I think the gentlemen can understand that exigencies have arisen, and if the gentleman will speak for five minutes I will see if we can get it straightened out. I thank you for waiting.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I will be glad to accommodate the gentleman. I do not care indeed to hold myself to five minutes.

House Bill 1055, Members of the House, is a bill amending the unemployment compensation act. Very briefly the bill does one or two things. In the first place it simplifies the method of reporting the wages earned by various employes to the department of labor and industry for the benefit of the unemployment compensation fund.

Second, it facilitates the determination of the benefits that are to be received; and thirdly it liberalizes the benefits which are paid and payable to the workmen, especially in the lower brackets.

Very briefly the bill does this, it provides for the computation of the benefits on the basis of the calendar year immediately preceding the present year instead of the first day of the last quarter which is the subject of the present computation. It provides that the year for determining benefits shall run from June 1 to May 31, and it likewise provides that instead of one-twenty-sixth of the employes wages being taken as a method of determining benefits payable, it provides for one-twenty-fifth, which is a liberalization of possibly four or five per cent. This is especially helpful in the lower brackets; in other words those men who would be entitled to receive as low as three weeks under the present act; the present amendment would provide that a man who is entitled to compensation at all would be entitled to a compensation of seven weeks, which all the Members of the House must concede will be and is liberalization so far as the persons receiving the unemployment compensation are concerned.

There are several other provisions here which are procedural in nature, which are for the purpose of simplifying the procedure in the department itself. I would like to call the attention of the Members to one particular thing, and that is at the present time it is necessary for the employer to file four times a year a slip of paper for each and every employe on his payroll. That is filed on Form C 2-A.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of information.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, is it permissible for me to ask for fifteen minutes' recess for the Democrats to have a caucus?

The SPEAKER. A motion for a recess is not in order.

Mr. LOVETT. May I ask the gentleman from Lancaster to yield?

Mr. ALSPACH. For what purpose, Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman wish me to yield?

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, to ask that we have consent of the House to have a Democratic caucus.

Mr. ALSPACH. I would object to that, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would suggest to the gentleman from Westmoreland, if the gentleman talks for fifteen minutes you can have your caucus if there is no objection. The Chair hears none.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, in answer to that I might say that we possibly are interested in what the gentleman has to say and would be very glad to come back in fifteen minutes to listen.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is very complimentary, but that begs the question.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, has the floor. The Chair has offered a suggestion.

Mr. ALSPACH. Five minutes is now past, Mr. Speaker. As I said, at the present time employers are required to file four times a year these little forms with the wage record of all the employers thereon. At the present time there are approximately five hundred thousand persons in the state of Pennsylvania subject to and covered by the unemployment compensation act. The members of course will appreciate that there are certain employments which are not covered by the act, and of those there are approximately one million five hundred thousand. That means that four times a year it is necessary for the department to process approximately three million five hundred thousand of these reports, segregate them and file them, and if necessary refer to them. That means in the course of a year there will be approximately four times three million five hundred thousand, or about fourteen million reports that must be processed and referred to.

This bill would eliminate the necessity for filing quarterly reports and require only annual reports, similar to the social security reports filed in Washington, making it on the calendar year basis and that will be a terrific saving in the department, and especially at the present time when they are short of help during the war emergency.

Furthermore, I might point out that during the month of August 1942,—using that not as an illustration only, but two per cent of all the returns of employers in the state were scanned by the department for the purpose of determining compensation which may be payable to any person entitled to receive the same. In other words, possibly ninety-eight per cent of all the returns filed remain buried deeply in the files of the department and serve no purpose whatever except to clutter up the file and give the department a lot of trouble and nuisance. The very same purpose could be served by having annual reports.

However, it is provided that in case the department demands them, of course, the reports may be and shall be furnished to the department in case of a contest as to what any person is entitled to receive. There are several other things included in this act which are merely procedural, shall I say, in nature to the department and a matter of efficiency.

In commending this bill to the Members on this side,—I do not see anybody on the other side, and possibly they are out of earshot of my voice,—in commending this bill to the House, I just want to call your attention to the fact that this act does just one or two things; first it provides for annual reports instead of quarterly reports, with all the elimination of red tape; secondly it liberalizes, especially in the lower brackets by raising from three weeks to seven weeks the compensation to which they are entitled; and thirdly it facilitates the determination of the amount that the employe shall receive by providing a base year and by providing a table on which every employee can determine ahead of time how much he woud be entitled to receive by merely looking at the table, and drawing his conclusion accordingly.

Mr. Speaker, I am not going to speak fifteen minutes. I have spoken ten minutes and I think in speaking ten minutes I have covered the outlines of the bill. If anyone has any questions to ask he may ask them. Otherwise let us vote on this bill, and I would ask the members of the House to vote "aye".

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Lancaster agreed to talk for fifteen minutes.

Mr. ALSPACH. I have the mandate, members of the House, to talk five minutes longer. It is suggested that I read the Bill of Rights and the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence.

At the present time this department covers approximately three million five hundred thousand persons. As I stated before, the number of claims processed are approximately two per cent of the total of those reports which are received. Now then, the proposed changes are effective in many of the states of the Union. As a matter of fact the proposed changes are effective in about forty states. In other words we are just getting in line with thirty-nine or forty other states of the Union. In the matter of calculation of the benefit year and the method of calculation of payments certainly it seems to me, that it would make for efficiency and economy if we would adopt and put into practice and into effect what was done in about forty other states, namely, that we would go on the calendar year basis.

I would like to call another thing to the attention of the Members of the House, the bill defines the method of computation of the payments by the high quarterly method, in other words, the highest earnings in any one quarter will determine the amount of compensation which a man is entitled to receive. This is a decided simplification, and likewise a liberalization of the present law in that it enables a man to take not his average high weekly wages, for instance, but his high quarterly wage, which in most respects will entitle him to receive a much higher amount than he normally would be entitled to receive under the old method of compensation, which was in the alternative, namely, one or the other.

Now that, of course, in itself makes for simplicity for the employe in determining the facts, and in determining ahead of time what his high quarterly wages are, instead of determining what his high weekly earnings are, and then go into a calculation of what his benefits might be when it would become possible for him to become taxed or not.

As I stated before, this bill is introduced simply for the purpose of simplification and bringing Pennsylvania in line with the other states, namely, approximately forty individual states of the Union.

I have spoken now fifteen minutes. I think all I have said could have been probably condensed into the first five or seven minutes, but I have consumed the fifteen minutes which was mandated to me, and I submit it to the Members of the House. If any member would like verification of this, I should be glad to answer any questions.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I understood the gentleman from Lancaster concluded his debate, and I would like to interrogate just briefly on this bill. If I am wrong I would be glad to yield to him for debate.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lancaster yield to the gentleman from Blair?

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I shall be glad to be interrogated if the gentleman wishes to interrogate me.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I should like to inquire of the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, if the returning veterans of the present world war are granted payments from the Federal government in the nature of unemployment compensation, whether or not, if after those Federal unemployment compensation payments cease they would not then be entitled to payments under the state unemployment act?

Mr. ALSPACH. The answer to that is in one word, absolutely yes, Mr. Speaker. If the Members will note on page 38 the amendments inserted in the special session of 1942 improve the fund as far as the members of the armed forces are concerned. Further down, in line 17 it provides that unemployment benefits which might be accorded by act of Congress shall be exhausted first by the particular man returning from the service and then he shall be entitled to benefits from the state fund. As an illustration of that my understanding is that it is contemplated that Congress, and the Social Security Board has suggested to Congress that the Federal Unemployment Act take care of the returning soldier. What the benefits of that will be nobody knows. It is merely a surmise at the present time. Now, if the states have acts themselves which would entitle people to receive benefits, it is conceivable that the Federal government would require that Federal benefits be paid first and then the state benefits next. This would take care of that situation. My understanding is that the Federal social security administration has requested the states to approve this particular provision in their act so that there would be no question about the returning soldiers receiving their benefits. This has nothing to do with the soldiers' bonus because the soldiers' bonus is paid to the soldier on the basis of military service and not on the basis of whether he was employed or unemployed. This particular act of course is on the basis solely of unemployment or employment. I think the gentleman's point is well taken, and that it should be brought out here so that all the Members might have that particular point clear.

Mr. AUKER. That is all, and I thank the gentleman for his fine and lucid explanation of this particular point, Mr. Speaker.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, is it not correct that after all the debate has been terminated in the House and no Member rises to debate the question either pro or con, the question before the House is, shall the bill pass finally, and the House then proceed to vote on this measure?

The SPEAKER. The Chair suggested to the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Lovett, that they meet in caucus while the gentleman was talking. The Chair feels honor bound to request the gentleman to continue talking a little longer.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I say that it is a happy moment in my life when I am instructed to talk. I do not think at the present time I should bore the Members of the House. I am no after dinner speaker of great moment, and I don't know any jokes at present that I might tell that would be germane to the issue.

Mr. Speaker, is it my understanding that I still have the floor and will hold it?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Lancaster still has the floor.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Would there be any chance at this time to have the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Dix, read one or two or three or four of his poems on unemployment compensation?

The SPEAKER. The question before the House is on House Bill No. 1055. That is the only question before the House.

Mr. BRETHERICK. One of his poems, Mr. Speaker, is on the subject of unemployment compensation.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would prefer to confine the discussion to the question before the House.

Mr. TROUT. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, yield?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. TROUT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. TROUT. Did I understand the Speaker to say that the proceedings of the House would be delayed for fifteen minutes while the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, was speaking?

The SPEAKER. That is correct.

Mr. TROUT. How much time has expired since the Speaker made that statement?

The SPEAKER. Approximately twenty-five minutes.

Mr. TROUT. Is it not time then, Mr. Speaker, that the House proceed with its business?

The SPEAKER. The Chair wishes we could proceed with our business and is endeavoring to be tolerant with all concerned.

Mr. TROUT. Who shall determine when we begin with the business of the House, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The business before the House is House Bill No. 1055, Printer's No. 599, and the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, is speaking on this bill.

Mr. TROUT. I understand Mr. Alspach has finished his speaking and I call for the order of the day, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inquire of the Majority Leader whether the minority has been informed that we are ready to vote on this bill?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Reese, informed the minority that we are ready to call the roll on this particular bill.

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection the Chair will instruct the Sergeant-at-Arms to inform the Democratic Caucus that we are about to vote on this bill.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. STOCKHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. STOCKHAM. Mr. Speaker, did not the Chair deny the right of the minority to hold a caucus, and by inference have they not done so, and by continuance of this process are they not holding up the rightful procedure of this House?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman from Bucks that the Chair suggested they hold a caucus during the time the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, was speaking if there was no objection. The Chair heard no objection.

Mr. STOCKHAM. Mr. Speaker, they requested a recess for the purpose of holding a caucus, and that was denied them.

The SPEAKER. That is correct.

Mr. STOCKHAM. Now, by implication they have accomplished their purpose, and the denial was unquestion-ably well-founded insofar as we wanted no delay. The Chair has been very gracious to the minority. I think we should proceed, sir.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of the record, did the minority request permission to hold a caucus at this time?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Lovett, asked for a recess for the purpose of a caucus.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I did not hear that.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House.

The SERGEANT-AT-ARMS. The Minority Floor Leader said "Do whatever you please".

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I call for the order of the day.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield? The Sergeant-at-Arms reports that the Minority Leader said that we should do whatever we pleased.

Mr. TROUT. I call for the order of the day, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken.

Messrs. Alspach, Taylor and James requested a verification of the roll.

BILLS CONSIDERED IN CALENDAR ORDER

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker, I move that any other bills considered or otherwise disposed of at this evening's session be considered or otherwise disposed of in the exact order in which they are printed on today's calendar.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. James.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JAMES. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, what is the purpose of such a motion?

Mr. JAMES. The purpose of the motion is, Mr. Speaker, that I would not like to feel that at any time in the future the procedure on the Republican side of this House was in question, because it might be said that they called up bills that were controversial out of the order in which they are printed on the calendar in the absence of the minority.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. BROWN. If this motion were not put, the bills would be called in their order anyway, would they not, Mr. Speaker, unless the Majority Floor Leader should ask for consent for the bill to be called up out of order?

The SPEAKER. That is correct.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman from Delaware to withdraw his motion. This motion can do nothing more than to have us break the rule later on. Those of us who have been here through the years know that during the closing days of the session there are bills on the calendar that ultimately will be dropped, there are bills that will be passed over, there are bills that will be sent back to committee, there are bills that will die on the calendar. I see no reason for this motion, and it seems to me that the gentleman from Delaware should withdraw his motion. We do not want any more confusion than we have; we have enough confusion now. We do not want anything that would add to the confusion, and if there are bills to be called up out of order, which we all recognize is frequently done during the session, let them be called up.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown, bills on tonight's calendar can be, as I suggested in my motion, otherwise disposed of, and that process can take place in order just the same as the reading and consideration of the bills. I insist that under these unusual circumstances under which we are operating tonight that the Republican side of this House shall do everything to avoid any odium or any responsibility for the shameful conduct that has been perpetrated by the Democratic side of the House tonight.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

REQUEST TO HOLD COMMITTEE MEETING

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent of the House to hold a meeting of the Judiciary Special Committee in the anteroom to the left of the Speaker's rostrum immediately.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Brunner, asks consent of the House to hold a meeting of the Committee on Judiciary Special in the conference room. Is there objection?

Mr. STOCKHAM. I object, Mr. Speaker.

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. BROWN. Are we not now on the calendar, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. We are on the calendar.

Mr. BROWN. Can the request prevail without unanimous consent a motion having been made that bills be taken up in order as they appear on the calendar?

The SPEAKER. That is correct.

Mr. BROWN. Can this request prevail without unanimous consent?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman from Allegheny that the only way a committee can meet during the session of the House is by consent of the House.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to any committee meeting. However, I do not think we ought to have our record cluttered up by the motion and then as we make the motion ask unanimous consent. I have no objection, but you see where we are going. Let us wipe this motion of Mr. James off the record. Let us proceed as we did before and we will get along better.

The SPEAKER. Does the Chair hear objection to the holding of the committee meeting?

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my request for a meeting at this time.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, may I first ask on a question of information, what action was taken on House Bill No. 1055 on page 3 of the calendar?

The SPEAKER. House Bill No. 1055 passed finally.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, will the Speaker inform me the vote on the bill?

The SPEAKER. The vote was 121 to 3. The roll was verified.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, at the time the motion was made to have House Bill No. 1055 made a special order of business I objected on the very solid ground that a Department of this Commonwealth had not supplied me with information as to the possible effect of this bill. I had very good reason, Mr. Speaker, to ask for that information, because if the truth were known the Members of this House might not have voted as they did. As I was saying at the time I opposed this motion to make this a special order of business as a result of the interrogation when the bill was on second reading on Thursday, the sponsor of the bill was only able to tell us that in his opinion and from information supplied to him the effect of this bill would be to pay an additional two to five million dollars to those persons in the lower groups under unemployment compensation.

I doubted that very much, Mr. Speaker, and as a matter of fact last Thursday I told the sponsor of the bill I thought his information was wrong and whoever gave him that information was leading him the wrong way. I suggested that he get the information verified. I then immediately, Mr. Speaker, addressed a letter to Mr. Frank L. Shallow, the executive director of the fund, in which I requested that the information be made available to me.

Might I remind you again, Mr. Speaker, that the Governor of this Commonwealth at the beginning of this session suggested that any information that any Member of the House wanted from any of his bureaus, secretaries, and so forth should be made available. That statement was made specifically at a meeting of the appropriation committee of the House and Senate in the new House caucus room. I assumed that what the Governor meant was that any information we wanted from the state departments we would be entitled to have. That information did not reach me today, although I understand that a representative of the department was at my office at 11:30 this morning and when he didn't find me there he said he would be back at a quarter to twelve. He didn't show up at a quarter to twelve, when I had to leave to attend a caucus. I left my representative at the office, and at three o'clock no representative of the department had come in. I immediately called the department on the phone and spoke to the secretary—he is the chief of the statistical department, Mr. Wallace, I believe, and was told by his secretary that the information was on the way over to me. I waited and had a secretary wait in my office and no one came. I called from here a little while later and was told again that the information was being sent over, but when it came past five o'clock I called another time and found that everyone had gone home.

I also ascertained today that Mr. Shallow would be out of the city for a week. He was in Washington for a week on official business. However, that did not mean that the information should be denied to me by the bureau.

Mr. Speaker, I say that my opposition to House Bill No. 1055 was based on the ground that the minority had not been able to get the proper information from the department of the government. When I walked out of the House, Mr. Speaker, I met the Secretary of Labor and Industry, and I complained to him that someone under him in his department had failed to cooperate with me on this vital information. He told me that he had mailed a letter this afternoon in which he had answered my inquiry. He then suggested that it was in my mail box. I just turned around, and there was a letter from the gentleman in my mail box. I had been there only an hour before and got two letters and a telegram. The letter I threw in the wastebasket and the telegram I read.

The letter from Mr. Chestnut was not made available to me until late this evening. The letter refutes the information given on this floor last Thursday that this bill will increase payments from two to five million dollars.

It may be that the bill would have passed anyway, but we didn't have a chance to put it on the record, and when I found I was not going to have information available from a department under the Governor in order properly to debate a bill I in disgust walked out of the House. I thank the Members on this side of the House who felt as I did and walked out with me, because I hope that this shall be a protest to the people of Pennsylvania that we in the minority are going to be a fighting minority. We want to fight this thing clean and we don't want to be bulldozed, and we don't want to have a juggernaut run over us.

We also insist, Mr. Speaker, that the minority representatives be recognized on the floor. Whether anyone agrees with them or not we insist that the minority shall have a voice on this floor if we have to stay here twenty-four hours a day, and we are not going to do anything for the convenience of anybody to get out of here in a hurry. A week ago we dropped our demand that all bills be read at length. He hoped that our action had brought a bit of sober thinking to the majority. Immediately we dropped that practice a flood of bills came out on the calendar. We know we do not have the votes to lick them and we know that you are going to put over anything you want to but, Mr. Speaker, we insist on our right to protest and fight. We have the right to be recognized on this floor if we have to stay until Christmas to do so, and if the attitude of the majority is that we have no right on the floor whether we are right or wrong, we will fight under the Constitution and Rules of this House and stay until Christmas if need be. We are not going to be steamrollered. If we are going to be licked, we are going to be licked like men. We are not going to be steamrollered. We insist on our right to protest, and we insist on our right to have information from the bureaus under the Governor. If the Governor wants the right kind of cooperation he will have it, and everyone knows I have done everything in my power to agree. I have gotten hallelujah on this side of the House in trying to be co-operative. I have been slapped on one cheek, and as the Good Book says, turned the other also, but Mr. Speaker, I am all out of cheeks; I have no other place to be slapped, and I am not going to be, and there is no one in this House who is going to do it. Mr. Speaker, that is the position of the minority; we insist on the right to be heard, whether we are right or wrong. The other side has said that the people are going to be the judges. If we are right we have a right to be heard and let the people be the judges of that, but we are not going to be steamrollered and we are not going to be pushed around all over the lot. That is our position, Mr. Speaker, and if that be treason make the most of it.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I ask to violate the motion of the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. James and make a very brief statement.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent? The Chair hears no objection. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I listened attentively to the statement of the Minority Floor Leader, and I am in the minority, as all the Members of the House well know. I did not walk out of this House as some of you well know, and while I concur in all of the protests that he makes I still do not agree with the attitude of my colleagues in walking out of this House. I consider the right to vote a mandate from the people. I consider that right as sacred as the soldier who puts his gun on his arm and goes to battle, and I could not agree that when the battle got hot and the battle was going against me that I was going to walk away from the battle and leave my gun silent. Therefore, I voted and will continue to vote as long as this Legislature sits in session.

I had a little opportunity over the weekend to peruse this question of majority rule and minority rights. It has been perplexing to all of us during this session, and I have found a pronouncement by one of the sages of Pennsylvania, a man whom we all revere, a man well known to all who know anything about our Constitution and fundamental liberties. I refer to none other than the distinguished patron saint of Pennsylvania, James Wilson, who gave us this brief summary in some of his writings many, many years ago.

I simply give this for the information of the minority party, and if the majority cares to have it, for them also, hoping from now on we will recognize, especially those of us in the minority, that the best we can do is to make our protest here in the hall of the House not elsewhere. Therefore, I am going to read this quotation from James Wilson because I believe it is sound and because I have found nothing else that would override his words said many years ago.

> In society when the sentiments of the members are not unanimous the voice of the majority must be deemed the will of the whole. A number of persons can do business in only three ways, by the decision of the whole, which is nowhere proposed; by the decisions of the majority or by the decision of the minority. The later is more reasonable and more equitable

Those are the words of a distinguished son of Pennsylvania, a man not only learned in the law but learned in the principles of government, and as long as I am in the minority, though I may be overruled, I think it is our duty to be here and to fight within the hall of the House. It is not my intention to castigate in any way the leaving of the House by the minority. I did not agree with it then and do not agree with it now. I do not expect to agree with it if it should happen in the future.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, in rising and trying to get this floor, I do not enjoy the favors that the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown enjoys.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia yield?

Mr. O'BRIEN. I will not, Mr. Speaker.

I made great efforts, Mr. Speaker, all in the interest of my particular district which I represent, and I represent equally as big a district as the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown, represents.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN. A question of personal privilege, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia yield to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown?

Mr. O'BRIEN. I will not, Mr. Speaker.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. BROWN. Is not the gentleman compelled to yield on a question of personal privilege, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Brien, has the floor on a question of personal privilege. The Chair recognized him for that purpose.

Mr. BROWN. I yield then, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. O'BRIEN. I wanted to point then, Mr. Speaker, continuing, that I had a great deal of difficulty in being recognized. I want to point out to you, Mr. Speaker, and members of the House, that the daily order of business is as follows, rule 14 of the House:

First. Prayer by the Chaplain.
Second. Reading and approval of the Journal.
Third. The referring to proper committtees by the Speaker of bills, letters, petitions, memorials, remonstrances and accompanying documents.
Fourth. The asking of leaves of absence.
Fifth. The receiving of reports of committees.
Sixth. Bills on first reading.
Seventh. Bills on second reading.

I will stop there momentarily, Mr. Speaker. I attempted to get the floor of the House to point out the fact that I wanted to call up a bill on second reading. At that time the Speaker said I had to get unanimous consent to call a bill out of order, which the Speaker had prevously called out of order. I contended at that time that there was not unanimous consent needed.

Again let me proceed:

Eighth. Bills on final passage recalled from the Governor.
Ninth. Bills on final passage. (Bills on the final passage postponed calender may be called up under this order of business.)
Tenth. Bills on third reading and final passage.

At the time we had not dispensed with bills on second reading. I could not be recognized, even though I had lost my voice in my endeavor to be recognized, yet the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Lichtenwalter, got up out of his seat and was immediately recognized, and permitted to make a special order of business of bills on third reading without dispensing with rule 8 or 9. Mr. Speaker, in my experience in this House I have served in the majority on two different occasions, and now this is my second experience in the minority. I have served, Mr. Speaker, under four different Speakers. I am unhappy to state that my experiences in the 1943 session are ones that I regret very much. The rulings and the procedure of the House have been so irregular and unusual that it really brings me to tears.

For your information, Mr. Speaker, and for the information of the House, I volunteered and had been approved by the United States Navy as of last summer for a non-commissioned job. I was perfectly willing to fight and defend my country. Unfortunately I broke my leg, which stopped me from going into that service. I say to you members on the other side of the House, I thought I made a lot of friends, but I say to you after your treatment of us on this side fo the House, maybe it's just as well I wasn't out there fighting for you.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. LICHENWALTER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, just to keep the record clear, the gentleman from Philadelphia stated that he had had no cooperation from the departments and the department heads. Then we were told that in answer to an inquiry to the head of the department, the Department of Labor, that he did receive a reply in answer to his inquiry. He also stated that he was told that the director of a bureau under that department from whom he was awaiting answers to inquiries was out of town—I believe in Washington attending a meeting of the directors from the various states in the Union—the directors of unemployment compensation. Then we were told that we were not giving the proper cooperation as a majority party to the minority party. We were also told about all the hallelujah he has received on his side of the House.

I want to say that I probably received the same, and for the same reason on this side of the House. If we are to be faced with a fighting minority—and I stated on the floor the other day we welcome a fighting minority, we realize their rights,—I do not think anyone in this session can raise a question that they have not been given their rights as a minority party. I think the record will disclose that as far as time consumed and cost per page of the Journal of this session of the Legislature are concerned, the onus will certainly fall upon the minority side.

I also want to say, Mr. Speaker, that it has not been the majority that has held up the procedure of this House. If we are to be faced with a fighting minority certainly I do not think the action that was displayed tonight was the type of action that we would expect to come from a fighting minority in walking out of the House because as they stated they had not received proper information to debate a bill.

As stated before we are fighting today for a democratic form of government. A democratic form of Government is ruled by the majority. We in no wise want to jeopardize the rights and privileges of the minority. We believe in a strong minority, they are essential to a democratic form of government. They have not at any time during this session, been steamrollered. Particularly coming from that side of the House, when we think back to the sessions of 1935 and 1937, I hate even to bring up that word "steamrollered", because if any one was steamrollered, we had the examples of it in those particular sessions of the Legislature. We here on this side of the House in no way intend now to take away any privileges of the minority that rightfully belong to them. Certainly they shall be recognized; we want them to debate these bills; we want them to point out what in their good judgment they feel are faults in the particular bills that we are considering, but we don't want, Mr. Speaker, in any way, shape or form, to be dictated to as a majority party, as we have had examples set forth in this session of the Legislature. We welcome the criticism of the minority party, we recognize their rights and privileges, and we in no way intend to curtail those rights and privileges in this session of the Legislature. But again, Mr. Speaker, the action of the minority in this House tonight does not reveal, I think, good judgment for the people of Pennsylvania as far as having a fighting minority in the halls of the Legislature is concerned.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, is it permissible under a question of personal pivilege to answer a Member who has challenged another member's standing on the floor of the House?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would state that it is permissible, but would suggest to the gentleman that he do not engage in personalities. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to engage in personalties except to answer the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Brien. I do so because I know when he said that he did not enjoy the reputation that I enjoy, he did not mean it as a compliment, but he meant it in the other way, as a reflection both upon me and upon the Chair. I know the gentleman well enough to know that he is not passing out compliments. I know that in the frame of mind in which he is in right now he would not be giving out anything except that which would come out of a mind filled with the hate and with enmity and with prejudice toward the Speaker. I am sorry the gentleman made that statement. It reaches a new low in our legislative procedure. Maybe the gentleman said it as a compliment. I would ask that the gentleman comport himself in the way that I comport myself and maybe I might be able to say the same thing for the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Brien.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, in response to the gentleman from Allegheny Mr. Brown, he pointed out—

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman wish to make a statement to the House?

Mr. O'BRIEN. Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I do.

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears no objection. The gentleman will proceed.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. O'BRIEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Allegheny pointed out his reasons for not leaving the House. He thought it was his fundamental right and his constitutional right to vote for his particular district that sent him to the legislature. I also think that as a member of the legislature I enjoy those same fundamental and constitutional rights, but when the Speaker does not see fit to recognize me I do not think I enjoy those rights. At the moment the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown, arises he is immediately recognized by the Speaker, and I lose my voice in my endeavor to be recognized on something that I thought was really fundamentally concerned with my particular district and on which I enjoy the same rights as the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown.

Now, I make no apologies to anyone; I have always in my association with the legislature spoken quite frankly. If I want to insult any individual I will do it as a gentleman. I won't enjoy or won't even attempt to use the floor of the House in that connection. I think any Member of the House who has known me knows that I always speak straight from the shoulder. This is an attempt to answer the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown, who attempted to justify his staying here when the rest of the minority walked out, and I say to you, Mr. Speaker, that I would have done the same thing under any circumstances when I cannot enjoy that constitutional and fundamental right of being heard on the floor of this House.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. GRANT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have been observing since I have been up here; since we started the session. I came up here figuring that I was coming to a House that was composed of a group of gentlemen. I recognized all the Members of the House as gentlemen, and to those gentlemen I say that gentlemen at all times should receive the same consideration I realize that the majority at all times should prevail, and I also realize that the minority also has certain rights that should be respected.

I make no apology for what we did here in walking out. I say that I personnally think in my humble opinion that we were discriminated against in this particular, and in some of the rulings that were made here. I say that I am not sorry one bit that I walked out of this House, because I walked out in righteous indignation because of the fact that the methods that are available to the majority are not available to the minority. They can do anything they want to under parliamentary practice instead practicing what they pulled on us here and I make no apology for walking out.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. LEVY asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have always agreed with the gentleman from Allegheny on questions pertaining to minority rights. I think personally there has been no greater advocate of minority rights and what minorities mean than the gentleman from Allegheny, and I say that, Mr. Speaker, with all the emphasis at my command. However, tonight the Minority Floor Leader in a protest against the actions of the majority walked from the floor, not intending to leave the floor of the House for the session nor for the day, but only as he stated on the floor himself, during the consideration of House Bill 1055.

Now, why did he walk from the House? Why did he intend to bring in question a certain action? So that the majority side of the House and the people of the Commonwealth might understand.

Mr. Speaker, last Thursday the gentleman from Lancaster made certain statements relative to the bill just passed by the House, and in those statements he made certain representations. As I said here a few weeks ago, if we are going to argue these bills on their merits, let us argue facts and truths so that when a Member making them is called upon to argue the question he may be in position to back up the statements he makes.

The gentleman from Lancaster made a statement last Thursday, and he made the statement like so many other statements have been made by some of the other Members of the majority, and it was on the basis of that statement that the minority leader asked the majority to hold up consideration of this bill on third reading and final passage until he received from the department head the statistical figures relative to the statement by the sponsor of the bill, Mr. Alspach.

What happened, Mr. Speaker? Let us review the facts. The Minority Floor Leader asked the Majority Floor Leader on his motion to consider immediately House Bill No. 1055, to hold the bill until he might have sufficient time to receive the information from the department. Remember, gentleman, I was also present at the joint session of the Appropriations Committee of the House and Senate when Governor Martin in his very earnest manner told the minority, and he directed his attention to the minority membership of the committee, and said that if any departmental head does not lend to the minority the facts and figures which the minority thinks it might use in its arguments on the floor of the House or in its debate on a bill, the Governor would see to it that the departmental head delivered the goods or else. Now, gentlemen, that is the exact expression used by the Governor of the Commonwealth. Surely we recognize the rights of the majority but what the gentleman from Alleg[illegible] doe[illegible] ot approve, the majority has at no time in its argument with the minority leader on House Bill No. 1055 recognized the rights of the minority. What were those rights? Simply the right of the minority to have called to its attention figures as promised by a departmental head under the supervision of the Governor of the Commonwealth. That is all and that is stated as simply as possible. Now, were these facts forwarded? It was only after the Minority Floor Leader had left the House that he was approached by the head of the Department of Labor and Industry who told him to look in his mail box and he would then find mysteriously placed therein a letter from the department. Well, mind you, gentlemen, the Minority Floor Leader made the statement on the floor and said that he had visited his mail box one hour previously and had found no such letter. So it leads one obviously to believe that the letter saw its way into the Minority Floor Leader's mail box one hour and no more before the Minority Floor Leader opened the box the second time.

I would ask the Majority Floor Leader who made such a beautiful speech on minority rights if that is the courtesy, if that is the right the majority party intends to extend to the minority party. I say to the Majority Floor Leader that it is a provocation not to walk from the floor of the House in disgust, when the sponsor of the bill only three days ago made certain representations on the floor of this House that have since been proven false. The Minority Leader was not able to get for himself the information from the Department of Labor and Industry.

Gentlemen, incidentally let me repeat what the gentleman from Lancaster said here last Thursday. He said that House Bill No. 1055 would mean more funds for the lower bracket people in Pennsylvania. The Department of Labor and Industry, from which department he was supposed to have received his figures, says plainly that that is not the case. In view of those facts I ask the majority are they according the minority side of this House the right which it is entitled under a democracy and under a republic such as we have in the Commonwealth?

PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEE TO MEET DURING SESSION

Mr. GATES asked and obtained permission for the Committee on Townships to meet during the session of the House.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. LOVETT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I realize that men lose their heads at times. I tried to have this House recess in order to give the minority of this House a chance to caucus and straighten out the difficulty but I was not granted that right. I heard the Majority Floor Leader of this House say how unfairly he was treated under the Democratic administration when they were in power. I want to say to you, gentlemen on the other side that I have served in this House and I want to agree with the floor leader on this side of the House when he said that he has never seen such a decision as was made in this House. I want to agree with him. I want to say to the men on the other side of this House that I know the men on this side of the House were more than fair during the time they were in control of this House. I stated to you here the other night that we reduced the number required to discharge committees in this House during the time we were in power in order that you could bring your legislation to the floor of this House and have it acted upon by the Members of this House. Now gentlemen I say to you that there is nothing more fair than that, and you gentlemen don't accord us that kind of fairness today. I say to you in all fairness that to me that is bending backwards to be fair with the minority as we did in the session of 1937, and I dare any man to get up and deny it.

Now, gentlemen I realize and I am sorry that I have to admit that never during my time in the state Legislature have I seen such decisions and actions by the majority of the House.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ALSPACH asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I do not think I am particularly thin skinned in any respect but I cannot let go unchallenged the remarks and insinuations of the gentleman from Philadelphia just made about some remarks which I made last Thursday. I made several statements on interrogation on second reading of this bill, 1055, and I made certain statements that the gentleman had all week-end from Thursday to Monday to find out whether or not those statements were correct. When the bill came up for discussion did the gentleman stay here and debate the bill or did he run out? He stated here, Mr. Speaker, and he charged that the figures and facts which I gave have been proven false. Now, Mr. Speaker, when we prove things we prove them by certain accepted standards, and I for one am not willing to take the rantings and ravings of the gentleman from Philadelphia as proof of anything.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HOFFMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, pardon me if I make reference to the reluctance with which we are compelled to sit here tonight to listen to this argument pro and con. The fact of the matter is that I do not think the Members of the House on both sides are in a proper mental attitude to continue further this controversy. We all try to be as tolerant and as fair and as considerate as we possibly can be, but we must remember that there comes a time when even forbearance ceases to be a virtue. I am afraid that we are taking the wrong attitude. We must remember that we are in a democracy and that a democracy is constituted of a two-party system, a majority and a minority. Now, a minority is not always in control. There occur instances when the people speak and the minority party does not, but somehow we get the notion in our heads when the minority becomes a majority it is hard for them to reconcile themselves to the actions when the majority takes hold and prevails. I think we have a job here to do and we ought to reconcile ourselves to the fact that we are sent here by the people to do that job, and not do it by delaying unnecessarily over controversial matters that have no real merit in the objective for which we are sent here. We can do a great deal better at home in serving our country in this time of war. We have industries that are engaged in war and our attention to their needs, and contact with the men who are employed in those industries is of far greater significance in helping to win the war than for us to be idly wasting our time in useless words when the situation ought to be met in a spirit of fairness and accepted in the challenge of the strength of real manhood. I believe the time is here for both the minority and the majority parties to recognize that we are the voice of the people and the sooner we can complete our job here and go back to our respective citizens, and industries and farms and do something really constructive we will be helping to win the war in a far greater way than what we are trying to do here tonight by these bills and the controversial issues that have no real substance or no real merit. I hope we will get down to real honest common sense and deal with one another in a spirit of real cooperation.

PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEE TO MEET DURING SESSION

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr., asked and obtained permission for the Committee on Judiciary Special to meet during the session of the House.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, just stated that the gentleman from Philadelphia accused him of making a false statement on the floor of this House last Thursday. Since I consider myself a gentleman from Philadelphia and perhaps the record might not be clear to prove who he intended the remarks to refer to, I should like to make this clear. I stated that the gentleman was in error, that the source of his material and statement was not right. I was fair enough to tell him that last Thursday. Now, Mr. Speaker, this is the record and let it be clear: The gentleman on interrogation last Thursday stated that the amendments to House Bill 1055 with respect to benefits would provide greater payments and more liberal payments to persons in the lower brackets and to persons entitled to benefits in the lower brackets. Upon further questioning he stated it would increase the benefit payments in the lower brackets from two to five million dollars a year. Let me read a letter dated May 3, 1943 addressed to myself which reads as follows:

> Dear Mr. Cohen:
> Benefit provisions under House Bill No. 1055 referred to in your letter of April 29 to Mr. Frank L. Shallow would apparently not increase the total amount of compensation which would be payable under the present provisions of the Law.
> The exact cost of benefit payments under the amended provisions are not ascertainable at this time. Moreover, the relationship of such amount to the amount which would be payable under the present benefit provisions of the Law will vary considerably depending on economic conditions at any particular time. As a different period of time is used as a basis for determining the amount of benefits payable to an individual claimant the amended provisions would appear to be more favorable to claimants during a period of declining employment and less favorable during a period of increasing employment. Consequently, as the rate and amount of benefits may be greater at certain periods in the economic cycle and less at other periods, there would be a certain tendancy for these two influences to offset each other.
> Sincerely yours,
> Secretary of Labor and Industry.

I never said the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, made a false statement on this floor. I told him privately last week that he was in error, that his source of information must be erroneous, and that if he looked into the matter more carefully he would possibly find that the payments would not be increased but may be decreased.

Now, the Department of Labor and Industry gives us a letter which is not too clear to me even at this time but it does at least say emphatically that these benefits would not be increased. The gentleman from Lancaster did not lie, the gentleman from Lancaster did not tell a falsehood. I said to him privately and I say to him now that the gentleman has been given the wrong information but the persons who seek the enactment of this bill, whether it be a private agency or a public agency, have certainly committed a fraud upon this House.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. ALSPACH asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say but one sentence. My remarks the last time I was on the floor of this House were not directed to the Minority Leader, Mr. Cohen, I did not have him in mind when I made the statement on the floor at that time.

PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEE TO MEET DURING SESSION

Mr. FLEMING asked and obtained permission for the Committee on Cities Second-Class to meet during the session of the House.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. COULSON (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 69.

In the House of Representatives, May 3, 1943.

The people of Pennsylvania, by a majority vote of the electorate, have approved the purchase by the Commonwealth of the few remaining, privately-owned intrastate toll bridges in the state and have authorized the issuance of ten million dollars of bonds for that purpose;

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth, in accordance with that mandate of the electorate, has enacted legislation establishing the procedure by which the necessary bonds can be issued and the bridges can be purchased;

Both the mandate of the people and the intent of the General Assembly have been nullified by failure to complete the process of acquisition of these toll bridges by the Commonwealth;

The continued operation of these toll bridges by private owners prevents Pennsylvania from having a completely free system of highways and bridges, and compels millions of highway users to pay more than a million dollars a year in toll-taxes with no prospect of the bridges ever being freed; therefore, be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, hereby requests and urges the proper executive officers of the Commonwealth to take immediate and appropriate action by which all privately-owned, intrastate toll bridges in Pennsylvania can be purchased with the proceeds of the authorized bond issue without delay, to the end that they shall become free bridges just as soon as the revenues from tolls have been sufficient to retire the bonds; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this Resolution be sent to the Governor, the Secretary of Highways, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

Shaw as chairman of the committee of the House of Representatives, appointed pursuant to resolution (Serial No. 12) adopted January 7, 1941 to investigate the circumstances surrounding the threatened failure of the Commonwealth to contribute to the W. P. A. Sewing Projects, and begs leave to submit the following report:

Your committee met on April 26th, 28th and 29th, 1943, at which meeting testimony was taken and full information covering the expenses of the Sewing Projects Committee and the application of the moneys appropriated therefor was received.

The members of the Sewing Projects Committee were Messrs. Shaw—Chairman, Scanlon, Reading, Bretherick and Stockham.

The committee held various meetings for the purpose of carrying out its functions, in Philadelphia, Washington and elsewhere, besides numerous meetings in Harrisburg during the period of time the General Assembly was in session. At all of these meetings expenses were incurred by the members attending the meetings.

On February 17, 1941 the committee filed its preliminary report which is printed at length in the appendix of the Legislative Journal for 1941 (Volume 6, pages 6443-4). No other written report was, at any time, made to the General Assembly by this committee. A statement in the nature of a final report was made by Mr. Shaw to the House on July 7, 1941 (Legislative Journal, Volume 4, page 4752).

An appropriation of three thousand dollars ($3000) was made "to the Special Investigating Committee of the House of Representatives, appointed pursuant to House Resolution, Serial No. 12, adopted by the House of Representatives the seventh day of January, one thousand nine hundred forty-one, to reimburse the committee for all reasonable expenses incurred by it in making its investigation and performing its duties in accordance with such resolution." This appropriation act was approved by the Governor on July 31, 1941 (App. Laws p-84, No. 63-A).

The full amount of this appropriation was paid to William A. Shaw, as chairman of the committee on August 7, 1941, with the understanding that an account would be filed with the Auditor General of the Commonwealth, covering the expenditure of the same.

No such accounting has at any time been made.

None of the expenses of any of the four members of the committee, other than Mr. Shaw, incurred in carrying out their duties as members of the committee, have been paid.

The regular session of the General Assembly for 1941 adjourned sine die on July 15, 1941.

Your committee served a certified copy of House Resolution No. 55 of the current session, under which it acts, on William A. Shaw by registered mail, at the same time requesting him to appear before your committee on Wednesday, April 28th at 10:30 A. M.

Mr. Shaw did not appear before your committee in response to its request, but instead, addressed a letter to the Chairman of your committee, enclosing therewith a letter from Paul D'Ortona, addressed to Mr. Shaw. Copies of both of these letters are attached to this report, marked exhibits "A" and "B" respectively, and made parts hereof.

By said letters, Mr. Shaw seeks to account to your committee for the expenditure of three thousand dollars ($3000), appropriated by the Commonwealth for the expenses of the Sewing Projects Committee, by showing payment to Mr. D'Ortona of four hundred fifty dollars ($450.00), on the basis of employment as secretary of the committee, and compensation as such at the rate of fifteen dollars ($15.00) per day for thirty days, covering a period from March 13th to July 30th, 1941 and the retention of the balance by Mr. Shaw as his own compensation, at the rate of fifteen dollars ($15.00) per day for one hundred seventy-two days, covering a period from January 8th to December 20th, 1941. Of these, 70 days were before and 102 days after final adjournment of the General Assembly.

During the period covered by the alleged services of Mr. D'Ortona a secretary of said committee, Mr. D'Ortona was a member of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The appointment of Mr. D'Ortona as secretary of the committee was made by Mr. Shaw, as chairman, without the knowledge or sanction of the other members of the committee.

Article II, Section 8 of the Constitution provides as follows:

> "The members of the General Assembly shall receive such salary and mileage for regular and special sesisons as shall be fixed by law, and no other compensation whatever, whether for service upon committee or otherwise. No member of either House shall, during the term for which he may have been elected, receive any increase of salary, or mileage, under any law passed during such term."

Your committee, therefore, finds:

That neither William A. Shaw nor Paul D'Ortona, who were both members of the General Assembly during the period of time covered by the services for which per diem compensation is claimed, were entitled to any compensation for any service upon the Sewing Projects Committee, other than the salary and mileage fixed by law for their services as members of the legislature.

That Mr. D'Ortona, not being a member of the committee and not having been properly elected as its secretary, is not entitled to reimbursement for any expenses which he may have incurred in performing any services for the committee at the request of its chairman.

That Mr. Shaw and the other four members of the committee are entitled to reimbursement out of the appropriation made for that purpose for all expenses actually incurred by them before final adjournment of the General Assembly on July 15, 1941, in connection with making the investigation called for by the House Resolution under which they served, upon the presentation of proper vouchers therefor.

That, since the life of a special committee of either House of the General Assembly expires with the adjournment of the session at which it was created, no member of the committee is entitled to reimbursement for any expenses incurred after July 15, 1941.

That the entire sum of three thousand dollars ($3,000), appropriated by the Commonwealth to pay the expenses of the Sewing Projects Committee, has been mishandled by William A. Shaw, and that restitution thereof should be demanded and enforced by the proper administrative agency of the Commonwealth.

Your committee recommends that the matter of recovering these funds, and the proper distribution thereof among the persons entitled thereto, be referred to the Department of Justice to take such action as the Department may deem necessary and proper.

Respectfully Submitted:

Hon. Adam T. Bower,
House of Representatives,
Harrisburg, Penna.

My dear Mr. Bower:

I give you herewith the facts concerning the investigation of the dispute between the Work Projects Administration and the Commonwealth conducted pursuant to the adoption of House Resolution No. 7 of the 1941 Session.

Resolution adopted seventh day of January, 1941 and Committee appointed. Members of the Committee were Messrs, Shaw, Scanlon, Readinger, Bretherick and Stockham.

Because of the seriousness of conditions in the Sewing Projects in Philadelphia it was decided to begin with that city as some of the radical elements there were promoting a "protest march" to Harrisburg.

Meeting in Philadelphia
Present—Messrs. Shaw, Scanlon, Bretherick

10 January, 1941—

Present—Messrs. Shaw, Scanlon, Bretherick

Present—Messrs. Shaw and Stockham

Meeting in Philadelphia
Present—Messrs. Shaw, Scanlon, Bretherick, Stockham

21 February, 1941
Meeting in Philadelphia
Present—Messrs. Shaw, Scanlon, Bretherick

The above-noted meetings were the only ones held by the Committee at any time except ones held in Harrisburg on days when the House was in session.

On 19 February, 1941, the Governor signed an agreement continuing the Sewing Projects for a two-month period.

On 17 April, 1941, the Governor signed an agreement for another extension of the Sewing Projects, this one being for one month.

Meanwhile, protests from all Sewing Projects in the Commonwealth had been pouring in and almost from the beginning it had been necessary and advisable to conduct investigations of these complaints.

Because of their private occupations it was not possible for Messrs. Scanlon, Readinger, Bretherick and Stockham to attend such investigations and I had to conduct the majority of them alone.

When House Resolution No. 7 was adopted, no mention of any appropriation was made nor was any such appropriation even considered, but in May when the task of composing the differences between W.P.A. and the Commonwealth had taken so much time and still was not accomplished, it was decided that a Bill covering such expenses should be introduced.

Meanwhile, because of the increasing work connected with the investigations and the impossibility of doing the work alone, I had, after consulting the Committee, asked Hon. Paul D'Ortona, Secretary of the Welfare Committee, to do some of the investigating of complaints.

In a verbal report during May, 1941 to the House, I told of the amount of work done by the Committee and by Mr. D'Ortona.

The dispute between W.P.A. and the Commonwealth was not finally disposed of until about the 20th of December, 1941, instead of within a few weeks as had originally been thought possible.

The Appropriation Bill was introduced in the House on 20 May, 1941. It was signed by the Governor on 31 July, 1941 and the money was not made available until about 9 August, 1941.

At no time, up to and including today, has any member of the Special Committee presented to me the data concerning the payment of the per diem expenses ($15.00) allowed for attendance at meetings not held when the House was in session.

Two days after the meeting in Washington on 15 January, 1941, Mr. Stockham sent a letter to the Chief Clerk of the House asking that he be reimbursed for his expenses on that trip, but was told by the Chief Clerk that no appropriation was available.

During the Special Session of 1942 I asked that the data be furnished so that the matter might be settled but received none.

During this Session, I again asked for the necessary information and on 29 March, 1943 I went to Harrisburg to meet with these men and none of them showed up for the meeting.

My records show the attendance of the members of the Committee at meetings as follows:

Scanlon—Jan. 9, Jan. 10, Feb. 14, Feb. 21
Bretherick—Jan. 9, Jan. 10, Feb. 14, Feb. 21
Stockham—Jan. 15, Feb. 14
Readinger—Attempted to attend the meeting held 15 January, in Washington but was not able to attend because of a storm.

The number of days spent by me as shown herewith does not include any of the times when I had to leave Harrisburg during the times the House was in session and travel to Washington for conferences with the W.P.A. officials, though this occurred about fifteen times.

The schedule of days spent by Mr. D'Ortona is enclosed, as is his receipt for payment.

Below is schedule of days I spent on the work:

January—8, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 20, 21, 23, 24, 25, 29, 30, 31

November—1, 7, 8, 11, 13, 14, 15, 21, 22, 26, 27, 28, 29
December—5, 6, 11, 13, 17, 18, 19, 20

I believe that this letter covers all of the essential matters in connection with the "expenses" phase of the Committee's work, but it does not attempt to cover the vast amount of detail work accomplished.

As for the necessity of the task I suggest that the newspapers published pretty accurate accounts of the entire matter during the first four months of 1941.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM A. SHAW

27 April, 1943.

RESOLUTION

Mr. BOWER offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, May 3, 1943.

Whereas, By the report of the committee of this House appointed to investigate the expenditures by William A. Shaw of the appropriation, made by Act 63-A of the legislative session of 1941, to cover the expenses of a committee which investigated a threatened discontinuance of W.P.A. sewing projects in Pennsylvania, it appears that the moneys so appropriated have been mishandled, and it is recommended that the matter be referred to the Department of Justice for action, therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives, hereby requests the Department of Justice to take such action as it deems proper in the premises; and that a copy of this resolution, together with a copy of the report hereinbefore referred to, be delivered to the Attorney General of this Commonwealth.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ALSPACH asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House:

Mr. Speaker, last Wednesday I believe it was I asked for leave of absence for the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Shaw. That was the first time I had heard that such a step was necessary in order to deprive this man of his mileage check. I understand that he lives at Pittsburgh and has been receiving twenty-five dollars approximately per week each and every week since the beginning of the session. I understand that he was here the first day and was sworn in, and since that time has been receiving his pay check and his mileage. Mr. Speaker, I think that is a mockery of the processes of this House, a mockery of justice that this man should be allowed to receive twenty-five dollars per week for mileage for not coming and not attending the sessions of this House.

Furthermore I think it is a mockery that this man should receive his pay as a Member of the House for not performing his services.

Furthermore, I understand, Mr. Speaker, that this gentleman is on the payroll of the General State Authority, and I understand that he is receiving twenty-five dollars a day. He is special liaison man between the General State Authority and the W. P. B. at Washington and I believe his onerous duties requires that he spend all his time in Philadelphia at twenty-five dollars a day. I do not know what procedure or what remedy need be taken as far as holding up his final pay check is concerned, but I certainly think that under no circumstances should this House grant or allow to be paid his final pay check which is normally paid to the members in good standing on final adjournment, until and unless he comes clean and faces this committee personally and makes a full explanation and restitution of the moneys which he has allegedly withheld, money which belongs not to you or me but to all the people of the Commonwealth.

I think the attention of the office of the Attorney General should be called to the dual positions that he is holding, and I think it should be called to the attention of the administration likewise that he is holding on to a job with the General State Authority. I don't know what the General State Authority means by keeping him on the payroll. I don't know what special or unusual work he could be performing which would require us to pay him twenty-five dollars a day, whether it is directly under the payroll of the state or under one of the quasi corporations.

I certainly hope that these remarks of mine are brought to the attention of the Attorney General and of the State Authority or whoever wields the ax over William A. Shaw, and I certainly hope that steps will be taken to withhold final payment of his pay check to this gentleman until he come clean with the Members of this Assembly.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr. Mr. Speaker, earlier in the day House Bill No. 57 was reconsidered and placed in position for final passage on today's calendar. At that time I made a motion that the consideration of the bill be postponed until later on in today's session. I feel there has been sufficient debate on this bill by everybody concerned, and I as sponsor am most anxious to see this measure considered. I am very much interested in it, but on the other hand I believe it has been debated fully on both sides, and unless some one wishes to oppose the passage of the bill on the floor of the House I see no reason why much time should be allowed to be taken before this bill is brought to a final vote. I at this time would like to call up for consideration House Bill No. 57 for final passage.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 57, as follows:

An Act to amend section three hundred ten of the act approved the twenty-second day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1987) entitled "An act to preserve and improve the purity of the waters of the Commonwealth for the protection of public health animal and aquatic life and for industrial consumption and recreation empowering and directing the creation of indebtedness or the issuing of non-debt revenue bonds by political sub-divisions to provide works to abate pollution providing protection of water supply providing for the jurisdiction of courts magistrates aldermen and justices of the peace in the enforcement thereof and providing additional remedies for abating pollution of waters imposing certain penalties and repealing certain acts" by including the drainage of silt in the provisions of article three thereof and suspending the enforcement of the act in certain cases

Section 1 Section three hundred ten of the act approved the twenty-second day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1987) entitled "An act to preserve and improve the purity of the waters of the Commonwealth for the protection of public health animal and aquatic life and for industrial consumption and recreation empowering and directing the creation of indebtedness or the issuing of non-debt revenue bonds by political subdivisions to provide works to abate pollution providing protection of water supply providing for the jurisdiction of court magistrates aldermen and justices of the peace in the enforcement thereof and providing additional remedies for abating pollution of waters imposing certain penalties and repealing certain acts" is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 310 Acid Mine Drainage [and Silt] The provisions of this article shall not apply to acid mine drainage [and silt] from coal mines until such time as in the opinion of the Sanitary Water Board practical means for the removal of the polluting properties of such drainage shall become known Provided That for the duration of the war no prosecution nor any action to abate the discharge of unclarified mine silt drainage shall be maintained in any case where the United States District Engineer of the district in which mine breaker or washery discharging the same is located shall certify that adequate means to abate such discharge cannot be constructed or erected because of war conditions

Section 2 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. STOCKHAM. Mr. Speaker, there have been many arguments pro and con concerning this measure. I have listened with considerable interest to some of the advances that have been made concerning the conditions in Philadelphia. We heard here on the floor today a statement that the President of the United States noted the stench in the river. We have noted, those of us who have been on these rivers for the past two years, that it is a terrible stench, but after all that does not come from the coal mines, that is Philadelphia sewage.

As to question of the silt, those from up the state who spoke on the side of the coal miner and the mining operations made reference to the fact that the silt was not all coal dirt. I am rather persuaded that the silting up of our rivers comes about from numerous causes that have to do with what we in turn in the defense of our soil stand for soil conservation, and much of the farm lands of the river valleys are washed into the rivers.

The Schuylkill River has a series of dams, and through the years these dams are bound to fill up, and there must of necessity be measures taken to care for the cleansing of the rivers.

There were other remarks made here today that had to do with the draught of vessels in the navigable channels of the Schuylkill in Philadelphia.

Let us face these issues as they may be fairly stated, and in their properly related positions. The channels in the Schuylkill and in the Delaware rivers are dug and maintained by the United States Government. The approaches to the docks and the piers and the slips beyond the lines of the channels maintained by the government must be maintained either by the city or by private interests, and the dock area, the area which has to do with the navigable channels in and around Philadelphia is constantly silting up. They are doing that in other parts of the Delaware, along the navigable channels. The conditions as they may exist in the Schuylkill area are conditions that need the attention of someone, whether it be the Federal government or this Commonwealth. Let us stick to the facts. Much of this information that has been given to us I believe is not relevant. It does not apply to the conditions under which this bill as it is before us is being advanced.

I have no quarrel with anyone, if you please, as to the physical conditions in the Schuylkill Valley. I have no quarrel with anyone as to the need possibly of taking certain measures that shall be necessary for the improvement of conditions against floods, of floods that may be caused by the filling up and the infiltration behind these dams that in turn may cause conditions which will bring about higher levels of floods than it would have otherwise. But please let us stick to the facts, please let us not bring into the picture the sewer problems of Philadelphia. I don't propose attacking Philadelphia on that score. It is a serious problem with them; it is one that will require a great deal of money on their part or someone's part to clear up, but nevertheless those are the facts, and when we speak of stench, do not let us put the blame for that on the coal miners whom we are accusing of filling up and creating stench in the lower reaches of the Schuylkill River.

Upon this basis and upon this premise I rather feel that the approach we are making to the subject is not altogether a sound one, and that there are other conditions that should be solved rather than putting at the feet of these coal mine operators the fact that all of these millions of tons of silt are coal dirt. If we but look into the Lehigh Valley we see in that Valley a condition of coal silt coming into the river bed. We do not hear the City of Allentown complaining about its inability to get its water supply, and we find in that area that craft are taking out coal from the river bed the same as they are in this river going by this city. If that is true, if there is marketable and merchantable coal in these other rivers then there must be silt that is going into the Schuylkill River that makes it unprofitable to go into the same kind of business with regard to the silt going into the Schuylkill River. Therefore, there should be some method of approaching this problem equitably for all parties concerned.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I intend to be very brief. I have listened to the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Stockham. I realized from the time that this bill reached this point for consideration that the gentleman for some reason was opposed to this measure. There may be other remedies available. Other remedies have already been proposed, mainly lawsuits against the coal operators. We have seen in the press of late that suits are proposed now against the coal operators. This is a question of State enforcement. The United States Army Engineers, as I have said before on the floor of this House over a period of two and a half years have made tests of the water going over the dams near the City of Philadelphia, and found that forty-five percent, if I remember correctly, of the contents was coal.

I don't know whether the membership of this House who live perhaps in more remote sections of the State realize what this stuff looks like, what is smells like and what it acts like. However, from a site above the city of Philadelphia sewage works there was obtained a sample of coal silt. It is nothing but a thick black soup. You multiply that by millions and millions of times the amount there is in the Schuylkill River—thirty million ton of that stuff. Is it any wonder that I and others have called this river a trough of Philadelphia? Let us assume our obligations as legislators, let us assume our obligations as representatives of the people; let this state take it just share of the burden and try to help out in the problem that is embarrassing, that is serious and of vital concern to all.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, in the first place I resent the statement made by the gentleman from Schuylkill or Bucks or whatever county he is from, that the filth in the Schuylkill river comes from Philadelphia's filth. The sewage in Philadelphia goes mainly into the Delaware River, and much of it is barged down the Delaware River.

The Schuylkill is not used as a depository for the refuse of Philadelphia. I am not interested in whether or not the banks of the Schuylkill are beautiful nor whether the Schuylkill river is not fit to bathe in. Those things we can take care of and we do take care of them, they are not vital. The vital thing involved here is human life. We were told that there were eighty thousand coal miners along the Schuylkill who made their livelihood mining coal, and that any attempt to pass this act would be to deprive them of their livelihood. Every member of this House knows that this is not the fact. The miners are making no complaint. The complaint is coming from the industrial interests who are mining coal, and Philadelphia is one of its main markets. When the time comes that money means more to our Commonwealth than humanity, the lives of the people to a large extent in the city, then we are in a sorrowful condition.

Fundamentally the duty that we owe to all the people in this Commonwealth is to take care of their health, because without health there can be no real substantial Commonwealth, there can be no real honest-to-God soldiers, there can be no real honest-to-God workers. What we are pleading for is one of the elements that was endowed upon other people by God Almighty; it was handed to us in a pure state and is one of the necessities of life. The effort on the part of a few mine owners to save a few dollars is not very laudable. The talk of eighty thousand miners not earning a livelihood we know is not true, but what we in Philadelphia are pleading for is the health and happiness of the two million people, one fifth of the total in the Commonwealth in Pennsylvania. We have been for years endeavoring to give to our city that which the Commonwealth owed us, that which the city owed us and that which God Almighty has said we are entitled to.

On last Saturday there was a meeting in the Mayor's office in the city of Philadelphia. At that meeting I think the chief engineer of the sanitary board of the United States government was there. At that meeting the Mayor of Philadelphia was there. At that meeting Jack Kelly, one of the outstanding Democratic leaders of Philadelphia was there. He is a commissioner of Fairmount Park. At that meeting he did not plead for boat races, he did not plead for swimming pools, he pleaded for the health and the welfare of the people. Mr. Kelly, as everybody knows was raised along the Schuylkill river. Mr. Kelly was at one time the champion oarsman of America. Mr. Kelly is interested in all kinds of sports, but at no time did he plead for the beauty of the Schuylkill river banks nor did he plead that we should have a national regatta on the Schuylkill nor did he speak about beautifying its banks in the city of Philadelphia. Mr. Kelly spoke for the welfare of the inhabitants of the city. This is not a Republican measure, nor is it a Democratic measure; this is a measure involving all the people, Democrats and Republicans and all the people in Philadelphia, and Democrats and Republicans demand that we get fair play.

The time has not come when men for selfish monetary reasons shall gamble with the health and the happiness of our people. I also find out that at times when the National anthem is sung and you see the men get on their feet, when they say "My country 'tis of thee" and listen to the anthem, they feel patriotic, and I believe there is sincerity in their patriotism, but to me in a matter such as this I think the halo over that spirit of patriotism has some black spots, and those black spots if my vision is right only represent human selfishness. If we are to succeed, if we are to be the nation we think we are, if we are to be the people that we think we are, we ought to go back in our belief and follow some of the religious tenets that we have been taught to follow: "Love thy neighbor as thyself." That is applicable in this case. This is a cry of appeal for the health, happiness and contentment of two million people, and I say to vote against this bill is unpatriotic, selfish and only intended to be for the financial reward of a few people; not for the miners,—they can take care of themselves,—it is the mine owners whom we in Philadelphia support.

Mr. CORDIER. Mr. Speaker, it is not my intent to prolong the debate on this measure. I believe it has been threshed out pro and con, and every Member of this House knows the import of this measure. I rise at this time merely to answer one point raised by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, and that is the question or the implication that he made, that the miners are not complaining about this legislation. For his information I attended a public hearing about two weeks ago, at which the duly constituted officers of the United Mine Workers of America attended a public hearing and they definitely and very positively opposed this piece of legislation, stating at that time that its passage would result in the throwing out of work of many thousands of miners in the mine fields.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, I happen to be in a unique position on a bill of this kind. I spent twenty-three years in the coal regions, and I worked in the coal mines. I have seen the silt go into the creeks and into the rivers. My attitude toward the miners on all occasions is very sympathetic and I think the miners, if they are really opposed to this bill, are taking the wrong attitude. When I worked in the coal mines I worked for the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company. They made provision by barges to take the silt out of the coal they got. In a trip to the coal mines two years ago, I find that they have abandoned all those barges, which means that the operators are not making any sincere effort to take this silt out of the stream.

I say to the miners, and I am sincere about this because I am sympathetic to the miners, but the miners are not going to lose today in my opinion if the operators are compelled to clean the dirt out of the streams. This question of silt in the stream has been going on in Pennsylvania for quite a number of years. The story is put out every time that the miners will be put out of work. That is unadulterated bunk. The matter how this silt is to be taken out of the streams is up to the operator. Anyone who works in the coal mines, and that is particularly true of all the Members of this Legislature, knows that the miner is not going to stop work because he has to spend a couple of days to clean out the stream. I say to you that the operators today are not doing as much to clean out the streams as they did when I was a boy working in the mines, and it is about time that we give a break to the people living along the Schuylkill river. I might also suggest as a practical matter that Philadelphia happens to be a pretty good customer that last winter used two million five hundred thirty thousand tons of anthracite. I would say to the coal miners that good business would dictate that you do not antagonize one of your best customers, and for that reason I think we should vote for this bill.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, only one more word. I have been told that a landslide of coal can cause a lot of damage and some deaths. I would like to feel that the Members of this House are ducking under a lot of coal and to those that are not here and have not the courage to vote on this bill, I say to them, look out, there may be a landslide of coal that will come home to you.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

SENATE

TUESDAY, May 4, 1943.

The Senate met at 3:00 o'clock, p. m., Eastern War Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Lord of all being, whose majesty and might we see in the world about us, and whose love we experience every day of our lives, impress our minds and souls with Thy reality, lest we forget that all we are, and all we in our best moments hope to be, depend upon our faith in Thee and in our obedience to Thy righteous laws.

So prone are we to pride ourselves for our attainments that the fact of God being the source and sustainer of our lives and the producer of all that is good in them is forgotten. Now, at this moment, may we return to sanity and humbly pray for forgiveness for our self-glory and give glory to God.

May we begin this part of the day in the fear of the Lord, firmly resolving to honor Him by our every act. By so doing we shall serve our Nation and State with the best we have. Anything less than our best will be to our discredit.

We pray for victory for our Nation at war. We pray for all serving at the front, for all serving loyally at home, for all our civil and military leaders, that God may through them work out His purposes and hasten the coming of peace.

In the name of Him whose name is above every name. Amen.

REQUEST THAT BILL GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 471, on third reading, entitled:

An Act limiting the time within which suits or actions, hereafter begun, shall be brought for damages to surface land and property resulting from the mining of coal and operations in connection therewith go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I object to the request that Senat Bill No. 471 go over in order. This bill represents one of the recommendations of the Anthracite Subsidence Commission, and a number of people living in the affected area, the mine cave region in the anthracite coal territory, are interested.

This bill has been on the Calendar since April 21. It contains provisions that have been studied at some length. A delay of another day will be fatal to the bill, because as I understand it, we are going to adjourn this week, and if it is the intent of the gentleman to bring about the death of this bill, let us do it on the floor of the Senate.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, for the information of the gentleman from Lackawanna, one of the sponsors of this bill, Senator Watkins is not at the moment on the floor of the Senate, and that is the reason for the request that this bill go over in order.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to inform the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Coleman, that the citizens of that community can not be very much interested in the passage of this bill. All this does is to aid the mine owners, as I read the bill, as it puts a statute of limitations on the time within which suits can be brought, which protects the mine owners and not the citizens.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Philadelphia is in error. This is a bill which would permit people in the anthracite area to institute proceedings against mine owners, within a period of six years after surface land damage occurs. Under the existing law that must be done within six years after mining, so that a mining company that has gone out of existence twenty years ago can not be penalized for the damage done the property.

Mr. President, I would like to ask the gentleman from Delaware if he would amend his motion so that this bill may go over in its order temporarily, until the return of one of the sponsors.

Mr. HEYBURN. I have no objection, Mr. President.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 471 on third reading go over in its order, temporarily.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

NAYS—1

Shapiro,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same without amendments.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 516, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to provide protection to estates interests funds and property rights of minors mental and incompetents and absentees secured or to be secured by individual surety or sureties in courts of record or proceedings therein by specifying the requirements of such suretyship the qualifications of such sureties and imposing liens upon the collateral realty involved as well as providing for the revival thereof for execution thereon and for the release discharge or satisfaction thereof go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 517, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend section ten of the act, approved the twenty-ninth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five (P. L. 29) entitled "An act to provide for the incorporation and regulation of natural gas companies," providing that natural gas companies shall have the right of eminent domain for the storage of natural gas and manufactured fuel gas beneath the surface of any lands situate within the territory of production, pipe lines, or of supply of such corporation be recommitted to the Committee on Corporations for the purpose of further study.

Mr. DEITRICK. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Majority Floor Leader.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HEYBURN. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, if this bill is sent back to committee for further study, the bill automatically will die; am I right?

Mr. HEYBURN. Pretty nearly, for this session.

Mr. BARR. Will the gentleman from Delaware tell me the reason for killing this bill?

Mr. HEYBURN. There was serious objection to it in the Republican Caucus.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, can the gentleman from Delaware tell me if that objection came from members of the Republican Caucus from the western part of Pennsylvania?

Mr. HEYBURN. The objection was wide spread, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. I do not think, other than gentlemen from western Pennsylvania, any of them know anything about natural gas.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, down in the Caucus most of the natural gas experts seemed to come from northern Pennsylvania, Senator Thomas B. Wilson, Senator Chapman, all gas experts.

Mr. BARR. There was some objection, Mr. President, last week, I remember, against this bill by the oil industry of Pennsylvania. That objection has now been taken care of in the bill, as it is amended, and in the form in which it is now before the Senate.

We in western Pennsylvania who use natural gas are much concerned about this bill. This past winter we know that natural gas was a lifesaver to us in Western Pennsylvania, with the transportation problem as it was. I know that on two different days one of the largest gas companies in Western Pennsylvania had to take from its pool 79,000,000 cubic feet, at one time, and on another day 76,000,000 cubic feet, in order to maintain factories, mills and the homes of Western Pennsylvania.

This bill simply does one thing, Mr. President. In setting up these pools of natural gas over abandoned gas mine areas we ran into a situation where there may be fifteen farms involved and some gentleman that has no conscience may live in the middle of the district and may try to hold up the whole district by demanding from the gas company some outrageous price.

I think to send this bill back to committee is a crime and I think the people of Western Pennsylvania will so tell you when they go to the polls at the next election.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will proceed.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, if copies of this bill are not on the desks of the Senators, a motion can not be made. According to my records the bill is not up from the printer; a copy of the bill is not on my desk.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I submit that the point of order of the gentleman from Philadelphia is not well taken. It is only when we are debating the merits of a bill and voting on a bill that copies of the bill must be on the desks of the Senators.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, you can not recommit a bill to committee when copies of the bill are not on the desks of the Senators.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. I differ with the gentleman from Philadelphia.

Mr. SHAPIRO. That is one of the reasons the Senate has a presiding officer. Will the Chair rule?

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. The bill is on the Calendar, Mr. President.

POINT OF ORDER WITHDRAWN

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I withdraw my point of order so that the gentleman from McKean may speak. I did not mean to preclude him from speaking.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. What this bill does, Mr. President, is to give utility companies the right to take the properties of small owners of land by eminent domain. What it means is this, that if a gas company, which has geologists and engineers, finds from their geologist that a certain property that a man has owned—maybe his father and grandfather have owned it, if he finds there is gas under that property and it is profitable to own it, they let him pay taxes and pick up the stones and plow the ground until it gets profitable to take it, and then the public utility takes it away from him.

Now, Mr. President, may I say this: in Northwestern Pennsylvania there are thousands of properties that people are paying rent on, that they own or have inherited, or perhaps a man had bought a farm, and they are all hoping that some day there will be gas under the property and this bill lets them hold it until a public utility wants it and then they take it away from them under the right of eminent domain.

I have opposed this bill since the time it was introduced. Some of the people back of it are my close intimate friends, some of the people back of this bill come from my district and are people to whom I have to give some attention politically if I am to come back to the Senate as a result of the election next year. I do not care, Mr. President, who is back of it, but the fact of the matter is I say that it is immoral to give a public utility the right to deny a small property owner his property when they find that it is profitable for them to have it.

I want to make it clear to the Senate that I think it is perfectly proper for these people—and it is in the ordinary course of the development of their business—to bring gas into Pennsylvania, and the natural tank for gas is the ground, the gas sand, but there is not any system known in Pennsylvania by which you can take a piece of land by eminent domain and file in the prothonotary's office a map and say, "we take this part of the land that is between 1,603 feet and 1,645 feet and the rest of it we leave with this other man, the surface, the first sand, the second sand, but we take the sand that is from 1,603 feet to 1,645 feet."

Mr. President, there is not any such system of eminent domain that has ever been known any place in the United States. There is no state in the Nation, so far as I have ever heard, that gives to a public utility the right to take a poor man's property by eminent domain.

May I say this to the members of the Senate, there are any number of properties held in Northwestern Pennsylvania on which people are paying rent, and if the geologists of one of these big companies shows that it is profitable to take a particular parcel of property, they go into the prothonotary's office and file a paper and say they take it by eminent domain, and from that minute the property belongs to the public utility; there is only one thing remaining to the owner of that land that is, how much he is going to get for it. I would like to ask any one here how he is going to show there is any value in it, how he is going to show that it amounts to anything; he has no engineer, he has no geologist to tell him that the trend is towards his property. The only thing he can show is that some one paid him fifty dollars a year for rental. I think this is one of the most immoral bills which has ever been before the Legislature of Pennsylvania in any session.

Mr. President, as I have said in Caucus and as I have said on the floor of this Senate, it may be that in the election next year my district may have a lucid interval and will send someone else here in my place, but I want to say now—if I am not here—I want to say to the members of the Senate of Pennsylvania that the proposition of giving the right of eminent domain to a corporation for any other purpose but transportation is wrong.

They have the right by eminent domain to lay pipe lines, they have the right by eminent domain so that they can move their goods but when they look around and their greedy eyes light on somebody's property that is going to make them money, and they file a paper with the prothonotary and say, "this is our property; you can have all the stones, you can cultivate the land and pay the taxes for a hundred years, but when it begins to pay a cent then it belongs to the public utility," and I say that is immoral.

I never heard of such a proposition as allowing a public utility to take land by eminent domain, and there is no such law in Pennsylvania, except for transportation.

May I say another thing to the members of the Senate? They say, they are only going to take exhausted land, but I say to the members of the Senate that nobody but God knows whether the gas has gone out of the sand; there are twenty sands there, and nobody but God knows whether that is exhausted territory or not.

I say to you that if there is land that has no gas under it, a public utility or a gas company would have no difficulty in renting that for $50, $75 or $100 a year from that farmer, because all they would do would be to put a well in the corner of his property that would not bother him and put gas a thousand, fifteen hundred or eighteen hundred feet under the surface, and he would not be hurt.

If they wanted to get this piece of land for a reservoir they could purchase the land. That is what the coal companies have to do, and that is what the oil companies are doing; if anybody in our country wants a piece of land, he has to buy it. We have not given the big oil companies the right to say "we want this land, therefore we will take it for a reservoir to furnish our customers with oil."

There is not anything in this bill that has a particle of merit, except the very respectable and honorable name of the sponsor of the bill; otherwise, there is not a thing to it which merits the attention of this Senate.

Mr. DENT. I find myself in a funny position. I find now that the arguments that I usually use for the small home owner and small land holder are being used in opposition to this bill and I have to take the side of the big utilities, but I think I can do so gracefully, because what some men seem to forget is that we we are in the middle of a war. I do not usually go in for flag waving, but I happen to live out in a district where gas is a very vital element and a necessity in the continuance of the proper prosecution of the war.

I want to say to you that this bill does not do any of the things my good friend from McKean, Senator Wilson, says it will do, because they can not take any gas from any land except the gas that they put in there. When they use these gas lands for a reservoir the gas that goes in there is metered, which is done at the present time, because that is the only way that they know what their reservoir pool amounts to, and the only gas that they can take out of there is the gas that they put in.

The reason for the passage of this bill at this particular time is that there is a shortage of natural gas being produced in the gas producing counties, so essential to the war effort, and we are pumping into Pennsylvania at this time millions of cubic feet of gas from out-of-state fields. You can not build tanks to reservoir gas, you have got to put it back down into the ground from whence it came, and the only thing they are using and the only thing this bill allows is the use of wells that have been pumped dry, particularly in Western Pennsylvania, as reservoirs for gas brought in from out of the state for the war effort. They do not need it at any other time, they have sufficient lands of their own, but the necessity for this bill has been caused by the war effort. If they want to restrict it only for the duration of the war, if that would satisfy the objections of the other side, I would be glad to go along with that. I want to say to you that out in Western Pennsylvania they had a coal strike—in fact they had it all over the country—and everybody was raising a hullabaloo about the damage that was being done to the war effort. You are going on a gas strike today when you do not allow storage of natural and manufactured gas for next winter's use.

Many persons at home have tried to change from coal consumption to gas consumption in their domestic furnaces, and also some of the industrial furnaces but the proper governmental agency has restricted the use of natural gas simply because we can not store enough of it during the summer months to take care of consumption in the winter months.

All that this bill does is to give the right of eminent domain when some farmer or some land holder refuses to allow the gas to be pumped into his ground; it does not take any of the surface whatsoever; it does not take any of the surface to reservoir any of this gas.

Just recently, I believe it was April 13, we passed a bill giving eminent domain to oil companies to put their own pipe lines all over creation if they want to; they are allowed to cut right through the middle of a man's barn if they so desire, and put down their pipe lines. That is eminent domain which permits destruction of private property and private privileges but that, of course was given to the oil companies. I voted for that because I thought that it was a necessary proposition. I also think this is a necessary proposition for the prosecution of the war and I, therefore, believe that the time has come that we should vote on this bill here on the floor. If you are opposed, vote "no," but do not hide behind what you call caucus action, because I tell you that if you have come to that type of government then there is no longer any necessity for electing individuals to come to Harrisburg, the thing to do then would be to elect a party and let it send a couple of representatives down here to pass upon legislation. You are wasting the money of our taxpayers if the individuals concerned in a matter are not to be considered.

If an individual member of the Senate has to subjugate his desires and will to the desires of the caucus, if the caucus must rule on each and every matter before the Senate, then no longer is he an individual member of the Senate the title does not mean anything, the office does not mean anything, and I say to you if that is what you are doing then you do not reflect the desires of the membership, and a vote ought to be taken on the bill.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I want to say that I am a great admirer of the Senator who has just spoken, but I am afraid I have more admiration for him now, when he is able to keep his face straight after making the statements he just did. It certainly is refreshing to hear a Senator from the Democratic side advocating the taking of a small man's property and describing this stubborn cuss who owns a piece of property he had acquired, or his father had owned, as so unreasonable and so stubborn that he would not give it up to a public utility without being paid for it. It certainly is refreshing to hear the gentleman from Westmoreland, Senator Dent, speaking disparagingly and sarcastically of the owner of a property who was so stubborn and self-willed that he would not give up his property to a public utility which did not want to buy the property but wanted to take it by eminent domain.

The Senator from Westmoreland should have studied this thing more thoroughly, because if he says this is to help the war effort he is mistaken. This is a scientific development of the gas business—it is not because of the war. Gas companies all over the United States very properly are going to make reservoirs of the gas sands under the ground and they are going to pump gas from states where it is plentiful and where there is no sale for it and pump it into states where there is sale for it and where they can pump it into the ground, and with that I am in entire accord, I am glad to see them do it, as it will give them a surplus in the winter months, when they have use for the gas. It does another thing which the gentleman from Westmoreland evidently did not think of, it takes a little well that produces a few hundred feet or a few thousand feet of gas and lets a gas company pump that well summer and winter. In other words, when summer time comes they can not sell the gas from this small well and they shut it down. This system of forming reservoirs has the advantage of saving natural resources by allowing them to continually pump these small wells and put the gas into the reservoirs, and with that, as a man born on a gas lease property and living on one all my life, I say I am in entire accord, but I am not in accord with the thought that these people should take it by eminent domain when they have plenty of money with which to buy it. There are tremendous numbers of these resrvoirs and this is not something they are putting in for the war.

West Virginia is full of them, all the states are full of them, this is the modern scientific way of handling gas, and it will be handled during the war and just as long as they can pump this gas in, but I do say to you that if these gas companies want the property of anybody within their sphere as a place where they want to make reservoirs, let them do what the railroad companies do, and what the coal companies do, let them put their money in there, let them put their hands in their pockets and take the money out and pay the farmer for his land.

I certainly am very much intersted in the Senator from Westmoreland defending the public utility against the small land owner and saying "gobble him up, give him what you want to give him, because he is not worth considering anyway, the utility is the only one of any account.

Mr. DENT. I can not help the expression on my face. I was tempted to tell a story, Mr. President, but I will not—I will tell it privately to the Senator later, a story concerning expressions on a man's face. However, whatever expressions may show on my face were given to me by my mother and my God and they are there permanently.

The sentiments that I express are usually my own. At no time during my remarks—and if necessary I will have them read back to the Senator—have I in any way referred to small land owners sarcastically; I do not do that because, you see, I happen to be that type of citizen, I am a small land owner; I am not fighting or pleading for any of the large utilities, other than in the sense of the necessity of action.

I said, and I repeat, the necessity for this bill has been occasioned by the war effort. I know because I, too, was raised on a gas lease; I, too, know that it is a scientific development of the gas fields to reservoir their gas in old pumped out wells. However, I also know, because of the huge demand today for this gas, that there is an increased use for the so-called reservoir system and I know that some certain land holders are holding up an entire field; an entire gas field may be held up by one person who denies the right of the use of his land for reservoiring gas.

That is the only thing I was trying to refer to when I said some person may stubbornly refuse to grant that right, that person is not only withholding the right under his own land, because once gas has started down into the fields no one but God knows where it will go, it may go to the extreme end of the gas field, and and perhaps a hundred yards of that gas field may tap into some farmer's land, although thousands of acres may belong to his neighbor, and yet that one person can withhold the reservoiring of millions and millions of cubic feet of gas, and that gas, I say, and repeat again and again, is essential to the war effort.

I do not care if you take this right away a day after the war is over, but I do say that this is important to the people of Western Pennsylvania, the workshop of the entire nation in the production of war goods, and it is just as important to do this or something similar to this in order to increase facilities for the storing of gas as it is to settle the coal strike.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, coming from a coal county, I know very little about gas, but I do know that every since the gentleman from Westmoreland, Senator Dent, became a coal operator, his trend has been toward big business.

As an example of the same kind of an act to help the war effort I may refer to a situation in the coal fields, where a coal operator may own two tracts of land, not contiguous, and between those two tracts of land is another piece of land owned by an individual, there happens to be no coal at all on the land between the two tracts of coal land, but the shaft, in order to get to the coal, is on one piece of land, and in order for the travelway to get from one tract to the other it is necessary to pass through this middle tract of land.

It is just as important for the war effort that we have the greatest production of coal possible, as it is that we have reservoirs for gas, so perhaps it would be wise to include in this bill that a coal company should have the right of eminent domain and be able to insist that this man who owns this middle piece of land sell or give his land, let the coal company take it by eminent domain, regardless of the fact that that man may not desire to sell it or regardless of the fact that it means a big income to him as a land owner, by reason of the tonnage price that is generally paid for each ton of coal that passes over it as a travelway.

I think there is no question about this case; I think it is a case of the big gas companies trying, if possible, to get this right of eminent domain in order to take over the little man's land who is stubborn and decides he is going to own his own property and let no corporation tell him when it is going to take his land away from him.

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I hesitate very much to prolong the debate on this important question, but coming from the gas region of western Pennsylvania, and knowing a little bit about the business, I feel constrained to tell just a few things I know about this proposition.

The first thing I want to say is that when this bill was introduced I went home and I talked to a gentleman who is in the gas business in our community, a man who has made several millions of dollars out of it. I said, "Mr. Phillips, we have a bill on the Calendar down in the Senate that proposes to give the right of eminent domain to gas companies, to permit them to take properties that might be used for storing gas underground, and it is now proposed to amend the bill so that it will cover only exhausted territory; what do you think of this?" Mr. Phillips' answer was, "That would be very, very susceptible to great abuse."

Mr. President, when that word comes from a man who is engaged in the gas business and who, naturally, would be expected to be looking after his own interests, I may say to you that it seems to me there is something very shady about this proposition.

In the second place, my knowledge of the gas business has taught me that there are several different sands in which gas may be found. You may drill down to one sand and there you may find nothing; you may go a little deeper and still find nothing; you may go on deeper into another sand and strike a well that will produce millions of feet of gas per day. No one on earth knows anything about what lies in these various strata of the rock formations and sand formations of the earth, until after they have been penetrated at any particular spot. You may penetrate one of those sands a hundred feet away from a well that is producing and get nothing; you may penetrate one of those sands a hundred feet away from a well that has been called a dry hole and get a real gusher. Under those circumstances no man can tell when land will be productive of gas.

Another thing about this that has been stated here, no one can say how far this gas is going to penetrate, and I say to you no man can know how far out he is going to have to reach in taking in properties of other people in order to protect his own interests.

Another thing let me say, gentlemen, is this, that in Western Pennsylvania at the present time there have been many gas wells drilled, wells that are capable of producing millions of feet of gas, and because the gas companies will not buy that gas it is still kept in the ground, and those wells must be plugged and the man who paid for drilling it can get nothing out of it. They say they are keeping that there for future use.

If the condition exists that has been stated here, that there is a shortage of gas which interferes with the war effort, and if I had the voice of a Caruso, I would now sing the Star Spangled Banner but I am not going to do that. If this gas is still retained there and can be sold, what use is there of bringing gas in from somewhere outside the state of Pennsylvania and storing it away?

We have been told that the reason for this is that a gas company will be able to get leases on all surrounding properties excepting the one of the mean little fellow in the middle. This mean little fellow has been played up very strongly as being the one stubborn juror, and all that sort of thing, but as a matter of fact that man has a right to protect his property, he has a right to claim as his own that which has come down to him or that which he has bought with his own money.

In connection with this proposition of taking only exhausted land, I may say to you men that there was a way whereby these people could have retained that which they once had, the right to use that property; they might have paid to the owner of that land a little rental for it and he would have been glad to let them do the thing they want to do now.

They tell us too that this man in the center, this little mean fellow, who is going to hold up all human progress by insisting on his right to own that which is his own, is going to drill a well down there and take out gas someone else has produced, someone else has put in there under his property.

No man in the world can tell you who put that gas in there, because, they do not mark it in any way, they do not identify it in any way, they simply stick it in there, and just like all other natural gas, when it comes out it will be gas, a hydro-carbon product, and it will be the same kind of gas that might have been in there naturally in the first place.

Taking all these argument and adding them all up, they simply add up to the one fact that someone wants to get something by means of a law that he could not get by means of any moral law or any other law that we know anything about.

These, I think, are reasons why I am justified for sticking up in this case for the men and women whom I believe to be the owners of these farms, and in this case I believe them to be the underdogs.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Watkins, was talking about something else. The wells that we are talking about are located far underground but the right of eminent domain he speaks of in connection with coal operators would be something entirely different.

I was much surprised to hear the statement of the gentleman from Butler, Senator Carr, who says he comes from that part of the country and knows whereof he speaks. The gentleman from Butler apparently does not know that you can not put a pool in a place where there is active gas, because the rock and the sand separate, and in any of those pools gas will only go in where the sands have been dried out.

I also want to ask the gentleman from Butler how he is going to protect a gas company which has one of those pools from this bad fellow we are talking about, this farm or land owner, from pumping into that pool.

I am very consistent, and you do not need to say that I am up here protecting the gas companies, because I think some of my colleagues from Western Pennsylvania know I belong to that tribe that started or instituted some of the gas rate proceedings against some of those companies and we are going through with it because we have taken an appeal from the decision of the Utility Commission to a higher court and we are still fighting for a reduction.

The gentleman from McKean, Senator Wilson, had some arguments and I can not answer them correctly right now because the bill is not before us, but when the bill is up for action tonight I hope the gentleman from McKean is here, as I will have a few words to say about his argument.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am not one of those whose blood pressure goes up when the question of doing something for a utility arises. I am going to vote against this bill, and I am going to vote against it because I do not believe that these utilities should have the right of eminent domain. In looking at the record here and listening to some of these arguments, Mr. President, I greatly suspect that there is more back of this bill than appears on the surface. Maybe some other fuel companies are interested in seeing that this fuel should not be stored. I do not care about that, but it strikes me as peculiar that the same people who are objecting to giving eminent domain to these companies have not yet answered why Senate Bill No. 478 passed this Senate by a vote of 41 to 1, my vote being the only negative. That bill gives to oil companies the right of eminent domain—and the gentleman from McKean, Senator Wilson, may shake his head as often as he wants—but that bill gives to oil companies the right to take private property by eminent domain.

I voted against that bill because I had an experience with an oil situation this last summer, and if this bill had been a law then, that oil company would have taken the land and my fee would have been ten per cent of the amount that they paid, but I put my opinion on the matter above my personal experience.

I still say, with the confusion that legitimately exists here in the Senate, with the inability to determine what you mean, whether you think gas and public utilities of this type should be publicly or privately owned—you must approach it from another angle, for we have seen all matters having to do with public utility given into the hands of public utilities—they are started off with special privileges and they must be given special privileges or they can not function. My quarrel with the utility law will never be on that score, because in my opinion that is necessary for the carrying out of the functions for which they were created, and there is no reason why anybody should get high blood pressure in this day and age because a public utility comes in and asks for a special privilege in connection with performance of the duties for which it was created.

There is a great deal of reason why we should object when public utilities attempt to get privileges beyond the necessities of their incorporated purposes and the purposes for which they were created. I am opposed to this bill, much as I would like to help my colleagues.

I think, just as they say, that the time for government by Caucus has not yet arrived but the time for treating matters of public import is here more than ever now, and it is important that this proposition should be treated like any other.

There is no necessity for eminent domain, in my opinion, because if those people in that district need this situation so much then there ought to be no reason why they can not get together reasonably and provide a means under that ground for storing the gas at a reasonable price.

If two parties are in an emergency situation, each knowing that they need the other, and they can not get together by agreement, then I am not in favor of making one party get together at the expense of the other by a law and, therefore, I shall vote against this bill.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, it seems to me that this question resolves itself down to this: if this bill passes let it do the most good for the most people. What is eminent domain? From arguments here this afternoon you would think this was the first eminent domain bill that ever passed. What does eminent domain mean? It means this, that when public interest demands something and ought to have it, private property must give way, with just compensation, certainly. Every farmer in Pennsylvania under this bill can go into the courts of Pennsylvania have his rights and his values protected to the last dollar.

It is admitted, on the other side, that this is the scientific, this is the modern way of storing gas, and who could be harmed if millions and millions of feet of gas that are needed by human souls, in homes and factories in Pennsylvania are so stored where is the harm coming to us; how are we going to be harmed and hurt by this gas that is used in many of our factories of western Pennsylvania, where they are manfacturing war goods, and in many a home for cooking purposes, and in many a home that is heated by gas, and why some poor farmer, innocent or stubborn, as he was called here, should stop a movement like that, when he is going to be paid for it—eminent domain pays every dollar of value that he can prove, and that is all he should get, and he gets it under this bill, and for us to sit here in Pennsylvania, in the Legislature, in the Senate, and simply because some farmer does not like it and is stubborn, as has been said here, to think that he can stop progress in Western Pennsylvania especially in war time, shows how little we are really thinking about winning this war and about our service to the common people of Pennsylvania.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I am a little ashamed to speak again on this subject but I must do so because of some things that have been said here which must be answered.

In the first place the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, is not at his best when he intimates that private interests back of some of the men who are speaking may effect their judgment.

I want to say to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, that in opposing this bill I am opposing every interest I have in the world, political, personal, financial and everything else. My district is full of gas companies, my communities favor them, political leaders have asked me to vote for this, and yesterday afternoon one of the political leaders of Pennsylvania told me that the oil men were going to meet yesterday afternoon and notified me they were for this bill, and every oil man in my county, and it is full of them, told me that they were for it and asked me to vote for it—and I would not vote for it. This afternoon the secretary of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Oil Producer's Association called me up and told me what his situation was, that there had been pressure brought on him. I told him I was not going to vote for it and I want the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, to know that there is nobody back in the eel grass over my shoulder looking at me, because I have been opposed to this from the start, and if anyone says anything about Caucus action, the Republican members of the Senate will bear me out that there was no one controlling or surrounding the Senator from McKean or surrounding the Republican Caucus or routing them up on this bill, and every Republican member will bear me out, because if I had kept quiet and done what was politically and financially wise for me to do, I would have gone along with this bill.

I want to say to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, that he does not comprehend what the oil bill was and what this bill is. The oil companies which were given the right of eminent domain were given it for transportation, and for transportation alone; the gas companies have it for transportation, and for transportation alone, and we have never given it to any one else for any other purpose except transportation.

Every one here is in favor of gas companies bringing gas into Pennsylvania and storing it in the gas sands. That is where we keep our oil and that is where the gas ought to be. The only difference between me and the gentlemen on the other side is that I want the gas companies to pay for it and they advocate something which, while it does not reach it, approaches a desire to steal it from the man who owns the property.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, I have nothing to add excepting, as to the remarks of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Barr, I might say I am rather surprised today to find the Chairman of the Democratic County Committee of Allegheny County and the Secretary of the County Committee of Allegheny County both gas men but, be that as it may, giving him full credit for his knowledge of the gas business, I want to assure him that anthracite coal is not mined on the surface of the ground—you have to go down fifteen hundred or two thousand feet—and the land I was talking about was the travelways, fifteen hundred feet below the ground, carry the cars from one seam of coal to another.

I might say to both the gas and oil people here that maybe all our troubles would be solved if everyone would stick to anthracite coal.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I would like to sum up this debate in one terse pithy sentence, by making the observation that if all of the wind used in the speeches on this particular bill were placed in a reservoir and sealed there would be no necessity for any action, because the gas problem would be solved.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, may I correct my friend from Lackawanna, Senator Coleman, by saying that instead of wind he should say the gas was sealed up.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I do not want to speak further on the bill, but I do want to make a statement to my friend from McKean, Senator Wilson, and say that I did not intend to indicate—and if I did I want to correct it—that there is any particular individual back of Mr. Wilson or anybody else here. We all know that we get pressure opinions, let me put it that way, from groups and various interests, and I said I can sense in this and other bills that there may be reflected interest—maybe one industry does not want another industry to get what it wants for itself—but I did not mean to indicate anything improper and if I did I want to correct the impression that the gentleman from McKean, Senator Wilson, or anyone else voting on this particular bill, is voting because some individual wants him to vote that way.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DENT and were as follows, viz:

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise on a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland may proceed.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I thought I understood that the bill just reported from committee was a Senate bill; is that right.

Mr. PRESIDENT. It was.

Mr. DENT. I wish, Mr. President, when a bill is reported from committee, it could be explained whether the bill being reported is on second reading or whether it was returned from the Governor, or whether it is a House bill, because as I understand it we are quitting some time this week, and I would not like to see the Calendar cluttered up with Senate bills when it would be impossible to pass them before adjournment.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, in answer to the inquiry of the gentleman from Westmoreland, Senate Bill No. 138, which I just reported from the Committee on State Government, is a Senate bill which was recalled from the Governor and which previously has passed both Houses.

RECESS

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 9:00 o'clock p. m.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia tell the Senate the difference between this bill and the bill recently passed compelling the accounts of the Auditor General to be under the supervision of the Governor? What is the difference between this bill and the bill which we recently passed and is now up for consideration in the House?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I yield the floor to the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Heyburn, for the purposes of answering the interrogation of the gentleman from Westmoreland.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, the other bill amended the Administrative Code and this bill proposes to make the same amendment to the Fiscal Code, as I understand.

Mr. DENT. In other words, Mr. President, as I understand it, after slapping him once and now he is down you want to kick him.

Mr. HEYBURN. No, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. I just want to say, Mr. President and members of the Senate, that I notice that there are two bills, Senate Bill No. 589 and Senate Bill No. 590, one following the other. One bill, I believe, deals with the Auditor General and the next one deals with the Secretary of Internal Affairs. I am very much interested, as a citizen of Pennsylvania, to watch the action on this bill and then to watch the action on the next one.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I suggest to the gentleman from Delaware that if that is the intent I can not understand that the one bill amends the Fiscal Code and the other amends the Administrative Code, because they are two different bills. Senate Bill No. 165, which is, I think now in the House, provides that the Governor shall have the right to appoint certified public accountants to audit the accounts of the Auditor General. This bill provides that the Governor shall have the right to audit the affairs of the Auditor General, which is an entirely different matter.

I suggest that you are dealing with two different matters and that they are not the same bills. I have examined both bills and I would like to call the attention of the gentleman from Delaware the fact that I read both bills tonight, I read Senate Bill No. 165, and I am suggesting that if you read Senate Bill No. 165, you will find that it is an entirely different bill. The gentleman keeps shaking his head, but I have just gotten through reading the bill and one deals with appointment by the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania of certified public accountants to audit the accounts of the Auditor General, and this bill on the Calendar tonight deals with an amendment providing for the Governor to audit the affairs of the Auditor General. That is the exact wording—"affairs of the Auditor General."

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, this bill makes necessary amendments to the Fiscal Code. It is a companion bill to Senate Bill No. 165.

However, I have no objection to the bill going over in order temporarily, for the purpose of further study.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 589, on final passage, go over in its order, temporarily.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I object to this dilly-dallying on the part of the majority. We were accused here of attempting to filibuster, at which time it was said that we held up legislation. The time has now come when it is twenty minutes to ten o'clock; today we were supposed to meet at three o'clock and we met at five; yesterday we were supposed to meet at three o'clock and again we met at five o'clock. There is no filibuster on the part of the Democrats, as you know. If the necessary votes are not over there at this time, I suggest that we take bills up and vote on them and quit passing bills over in order to keep the Calendar up as it is today.

I ask my colleagues to vote "no" on the motion that this bill go over in order.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, raised the question that this bill is not a companion bill to Senate Bill No. 165. Therefore, I move that this bill go over in order so that the two bills can be checked. It is at the suggestion of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro.

Mr. SHAPIRO. That was not my suggestion, Mr. President. The gentleman should not put words in my mouth.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 590, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to amend section six hundred four, section six hundred five, and to add section six hundred eight to the act, approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 177), entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments, boards, commissions, and officers thereof, including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools, or Teachers Colleges; abolishing, creating, reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments, boards, and commissions; defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers, and of the several administrative departments, boards, commissions, and officers; fixing the salaries of the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, and certain other executive and administrative officers; providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers, and of all deputies and other assistants and employes in certain departments, boards, and commissions; and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employes of certain departments, boards and commissions shall be determined", by further defining the duties of the Auditor General, the State Treasurer and the Secretary of Internal Affairs, and requiring fiscal reports to be filed with the Governor by all administrative departments, boards, and commissions.

be recommitted to the Committee on State Government.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President and members of this Senate, in my remarks a minute ago I called attention to the fact that we had a bill on the Calendar, Senate Bill No. 589, which deals with the Auditor General of the state of Pennsylvania, an elected official of the state of Pennsylvania, elected to perform certain duties. That man happens to be a Democrat by the grace of God and some votes.

Senate Bill No. 590 deals with the same subject, except that it deals with a Republican office holder, Mr. William Livengood, and so, in order not to place the same imposition upon the Republican Secretary of Internal Affairs, the majority is now sending that bill back to committee. I anticipated that action. Why? Because a mistake was made by the majority when the bill was reported to the floor.

Mr. President, I know how Mr. Livengood feels and I know Mr. Ross feels the same way; he believes that he was elected to office in good faith by the people of Pennsylvania, as I said, to perform certain duties. Mr. Livengood feels the same way. We will vote with you to send this bill back to committee because I believe that is where it belongs, but we also believe that if you are honest, you ought to send Senate Bill No. 589 back to committee because it deals with the very same subject, it deals exactly with interfering with efficient administration of an elected official of the state of Pennsylvania.

I want to say to you members of the Senate here that for the last eleven years I have read in the newspapers and heard over the radio, throughout this country of ours, about dictatorial powers being given to the President of the United States by a subservient Congress. I call your attention to the powers being given to the present Governor of this state by a subservient House and Senate. For years here, while we were in power, I was called a rubber stamp, but I never saw a more absorbent piece of rubber in my life than I have seen here now.

I want to say to you members of the Republican Party that when you say to the Auditor General of the state of Pennsylvania, that all of his affairs and all of his duties shall now come under the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, contrary to the duties as they are imposed by the Election Code—and when you happened to report out Senate Bill No. 590, which gives the same dose of bitter medicine to the Secretary of Internal Affairs, you rise up and send it back to committee—I say to you that you are playing partisan politics to the nth degree.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President and members of the Senate, I think that there is a real reason for this bill, and the real reason is the difference in the way the Republican members of the Senate deal with the Auditor General and the Department of Internal Affairs. Governor James in his last message to a Joint Session of the Legislature, accused the Auditor General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania of misdemeanors in office, and so far nothing has been done about it, and if I were a member of the Democratic Party, one of the first things I would insist upon would be a full investigation of the office of Auditor General in order to clear the skirts of the Democratic Party.

With regard to the Auditor General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and in further support of this bill, I want to call to the attention of the Senate an editorial appearing in the Philadelphia Record, dated February 18, 1942, which reads as follows:

"Is The Nomination For Sale?

"Swapping jobs for votes is the oldest political trick in the bag.

"Few politicians, however, have ever done it as brazenly and on as wholesale a scale as Auditor General F. Clair Ross. Ross proposes to be the Democratic candidate for Governor even if he has to hire half the registered voters of Pennsylvania.

"With returns from outlying districts still coming in, the count shows that Ross now has:

"Forty-four Democratic State Committee members (out of 113) on his official payroll.

"Thirty-six Philadelphia Democratic ward leaders (out of 51) on the same official payroll.

"The only limits to this kind of campaigning are the State Treasury and public patience.

"Public patience long since became exhausted with Republicans who operated for a century on just those lines. It is the kind of political job bartering for which Ross used to denounce the GOP in lofty language.

"It may be possible for the Auditor General to purchase the Democratic nomination this way—with taxpayers' funds—. If the truly liberal elements of the party do not block him, he may have not only the committee members, but their sisters, their cousins, and their aunts on the State payroll before the deadline.

"But that kind of a victory for Ross in the primary means almost certain defeat in the general election. If the Democratic party is to offer Pennsylvania voters nothing more than pie-counter nominees—

"The independent voters will shun the polls and the normal GOP machine majority will again swamp the normal Democratic machine minority."

Mr. President, that prediction came true. Of course, the purpose of this bill is to make sure that the office of the Auditor General in the future is checked up by proper audit so that this kind of conduct can no longer go on in the Commonwealth.

The Philadelphia Record is not the only outstanding organ which called attention to this matter. Mr. Arthur Colegrove, Secretary of Property and Supplies during the Earle administration, in an editorial in the Corry Evening Journal appearing May 6, 1942, said this:

"This is not the first time that campaigns for public office have been financed with state funds—with the taxpayers' money.

"But never before in the history of Pennsylvania politics has such worker-buying with state funds been conducted on such a wholesale scale.

"Every active Democrat knows that Ross agents for months past have been operating in every county in the state contacting every available potential vote-getter. Those worthwhile who agreed to support Ross were immediately put to work rounding up votes for Ross. Their pay came not from the Ross Campaign Committee but out of State Funds and Inheritance estate fees in the form of state salaries for unneeded jobs."

Senator Guffey made a similar charge during the primary campaign. In a letter sent to prominent Democrats throughout the state Senator Guffey said this:

"Ross secured the State Committee indorsement with jobs. He is endeavoring to secure the nomination with jobs.

"Should he be nominated it is reasonable to expect he will be called upon by his Republican opponent to justify the many high salary jobs created since and prior to the campaign and the using of these jobs to secure the support of individuals in every county in this State.

". . . . . not only will he have to explain his unprecedented payroll increases to the taxpayers but to get back within his budget there must be wholesale lay-offs in his office before the general election.

"The Ross campaign is largely a payroll proposition."

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will proceed.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I want to hear what the gentleman from Schuylkill has to say, he is entitled to be heard, just as much as I want to be heard. I want the privilege of answering the remarks of the gentleman from Schuylkill, but I can hardly hear what he is saying.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, it is strange if the gentleman from Philadelphia can not hear me. Does the gentleman from Philadelphia want me to again read what Senator Guffey said?

The PRESIDENT. The gallery will come to order.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I want the same thing to happen when we have on the floor. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Geltz and Senator Walker, needle me when I am on the floor.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is attempting to keep order. The gallery will come to order and keep order; otherwise, the galleries will be cleared.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, before proceeding I will tell the gentleman that I enjoy needling, I do not mind it and if he wants to do it, let him go right ahead.

Mr. President, here is another thing Senator Guffey said—I will say it again, in parenthesis—

"Ross secured the state committee indorsement with jobs. He is endeavoring to secure the nomination with jobs.

"Should he be nominated it is reasonable to expect he will be called upon by his Republican opponent to justify the many high salary jobs created since and prior to the campaign and the using of these jobs to secure the support of individuals in every county in this state."

Mr. President, I read this only for the purpose of calling attention of the men on the other side to the fact that charges have been made against this Auditor General by a former Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. So far as the Republican Party is concerned, we are content to make sure that it does not happen again and that the accounts of the Auditor General, regardless of whether he is Republican or Democrat, are properly audited so that he does not use his office to create many high salaried jobs either to get a nomination or to get an election.

In conclusion, Mr. President, I just want to say again that if I were a member of the Democratic Party, the most insistent piece of legislation I would have advocated in this Session would have been a full and complete investigation of the office of Auditor General, so that he, his office and the party to which he belongs and through which he was a candidate for the highest office in this Commonwealth, would be cleared forever.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, it seems to be a favorite trick every time we have a piece of legislation that is particularly obnoxious to members of both sides, that they dig up editorials out of the Philadelphia Record or a statement by Senator Guffey or a statement by somebody else, that some Democrat may have made.

How would the men on the other side feel if I dug up editorials or statements made by Senator Davis against Governor Martin, how would you feel if I dug up charges made by—

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, may we have order? I can not hear the gentleman.

Mr. DENT. Never mind, Mr. President, I will get order. Mr. President, I want to say that during the years I have been here I have learned that there are a few men who hide the shallowness of their opinion behind a heckling mood; I have watched certain men in this Senate, every time a Democrat gets up, heckle him and I might say whimper and make remarks while he is talking—we do not object—but the minute one of their members gets up we are supposed to remain quiet in our seats. We do not mind that, Mr. President, because we know we are in the minority, but we are a minority that knows its rights and we will have those rights.

I do not object to the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Watkins, reading editorials. In the primaries, I was against Mr. Ross, but that does not give me the right to slap Mr. Ross around, it does not give me the right to slap any elected official of the state of Pennsylvania around. Governor Martin is now our Governor but that does not give me the right to air here in the Senate of Pennsylvania charges leveled against him—which incidentally by some reasoning might have implicated the fine gentleman who is the Lieutenant-Governor of this state—we do not believe in that kind of politics.

You have no reasonable excuse for placing upon the Auditor General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania certain restrictions and impositions that you will not place upon any other elected official of the state.

Why do you not include all the elected officers of the state in this particular Gestapo movement that you are starting here? I call it a Gestapo movement because you do not even restrict yourselves to the expenditures of the Auditor General, because by an amendment inserted in the House you go into his private life, you go into every private deed that man has performed, in or out of office, by saying you can investigate and put under the power of the Governor of the Commonwealth every affair of the Auditor General. That might be all right, that might be smart politics. We know that we are in the minority and we know that you are going to rip every job out of our hands that you possibly can, and we are submitting to that, submitting to it because we believe that it is the way you think you can thrive.

I want to say to you men that we did not have any offices in the state, we did not have any jobs in the state of Pennsylvania, and the people, aroused, by the degredation of the Republican Party, elected a Democratic Governor, and they will do it again when they sum up the issues of this particular session and the votes cast for and against the common people.

I am not fearful of the jobs you take, but I do not want you to blame the Philadelphia Record or Senator Guffey for your actions. You know that Senator Guffey's statements did not influence you in your action, because if Senator Guffey's statements could influence you in your actions, gentlemen, you would pass some labor legislation, you would dig down into that musty hole and pull out some of the bills that would benefit the working people of this Commonwealth; you would dig down and sweep aside the cobwebs off the bill that would give unemployment compensation to its fullest amount to every soldier when he comes home; you would dig down and sweep aside the cobwebs and bring out the bill that would pay partial unemployment compensation to men who will be employed one or two days a week when the war is over and industry is readjusting itself to meet the peace time needs of this country; you would reach down into that cellar and pull out the bills that mean something to every man and woman in the state of Pennsylvania. Senator Guffey would approve of that too, since you are so solicitious about taking care of Senator Guffey's needs.

And, Mr. President, if you want to please the Philadelphia Record, then you should not have passed the Farrell Bill last week, because they were against it, but you know that the only time you use the Philadelphia Record or Senator Guffey or any other Democrat is when it suits your purpose. Then the devil quotes the devil for his own needs.

Mr. SI[illegible]O. Mr. President, I am sorry to interrupt this peaceful party that we are having, but I am talking on legislation, and I very frankly say I would much rather be somewhere else.

I am quite sure that I am not going to get worked up about the fact that somebody said that Mr. Ross made political appointments—I am sure he did—and if the political appointments were made to the extent to which the Philadelphia Record referred, I think that was wrong. I think that the time may come when that will be stopped.

I also think it is wrong when the Republican Party in Philadelphia, on the Registration Commission, which is to register Democrats and Republicans alike, has out of 112 employes, 52 committeemen. I think that is wrong because we found one of those committeemen last month who was dismissed because he was illegally registering people in his district or in other districts. That is what happens when Mr. Ross appoints people who should not be appointed, and that is also what happens when Mr. "X" Republican appoints people who should not be appointed to office.

I made the statement four weeks ago that the Governor of this Commonwealth, before he retired, had made some very serious charges against Mr. Ross, and it does not lie in the mouths of the Republicans now to say that we should introduce a resolution. I said that the Majority Party has the power and should, if they believe those charges, introduce a resolution to investigate Mr. Ross.

I said then, and I repeat now, that if Mr. Ross or any other Democrat or Republican, while I am in this Senate, has committed acts which are a violation of his oath, I will be very happy to vote for his impeachment. I repeat it now because I mean it, but I also point out to this Republican controlled Senate that instead of investigating Mr. Ross and instead of showing that he did use a considerable amount of his money, as they charged and as the Governor said, for political purposes—and therefore certainly he was not entitled to any compliments from this organization—yet the House and Senate practically unanimously gave him a deficiency appropriation of $175,000.

Mr. President, the two things are inconsistent. If I were the Governor of Pennsylvania, before I would have agreed to give Mr. Ross another five cent piece, I would have had an investigation. I might have said in the end "there is nothing we can do about it and we have to pay it," but I certainly would not have given him the very appropriation which Governor James said Mr. Ross was going to ask for.

Governor James told us, in the speech the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Watkins, was reading from—he told us in that very same speech—that this man was going to be short of money and was going to ask for additional funds.

I want to take this opportunity of saying that I did not move or suggest that the bill which raised this question go over in order. I called attention to the fact that there were two different bills, and the excuse was then given by the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Heyburn, that they had to have a second amendment in order to conform with the first amendment to the Fiscal Code. That is not necessary at all. The first bill is complete in itself. It gives the Governor the right to make the audits, and I do not object to the Governor making the audits; I do not care how many times you audit the accounts of this man, but I say it is done for political purposes, and you can not deny that, whether you make an audit or not. If I were the Auditor General, I would not complain, but say, as I have said before, that it is rather unusual to set up a watchman to watch the watchman, and before you get through you do not know where you will end with that kind of a proposition.

This bill is a necessary bill in my opinion, and should not go back to committee, because this bill brings all elected officers in conformity with appointed officers and only brings the Secretary of Internal Affairs on a par with the other two officers, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer, and provides that those gentleman shall all furnish the Governor of the Commonwealth with a report as to what their expenses for the biennium will be, so that, in accordance with the bill as I see it, the Governor may have an opportunity to know what they will want.

I do not see anything wrong with the bill, and I do not care whether the bill passes or not, because we have gotten along many years without it, but I do not think there will be any great harm to the Commonwealth if it were passed.

I am not making a fuss on this bill, but I am saying to you that I don't think it comes with good grace for you to say to us that we ought to investigate the Auditor General. You have the power to do it. I welcome it. Put a resolution in and I will be glad to vote for it, because, I repeat, I agree with everything the Philadelphia Record says and I want to say this, which I said once before to the Governor of this Commonwealth and I would like to say it to you, it is true that when the Republicans are in power they grab the jobs and hate the Democrats, and it has also been true that when the Democrats were in power they grabbed the jobs and hated the Republicans, and it has also been proven to be true that Mr. Hitler comes along because of that and he destroys the democracies, and I suggested to the Governor, as I suggest to you now, you have the power and the opportunity; let us assume that what we did was wrong and what you did was wrong, unless we all agree to that, recognize it and understand it was because of that that we have this war, we will never prevent wars.

I do not agree with my colleagues on my side, that they shall resent the fact that you have been doing what we have been doing when we were in power, and when I say "we," I have to say "we," because I was a member of that party. I do not agree with it, I do not think it is necessary, but let us assume we made those mistakes, unless we see the consequences, the real consequences of the mistakes, we will never get anywhere and we will never establish a democracy.

It is time that those of us who want to do a job should do it; it is time that we should recognize the fact that the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Watkins, can not get any credit by getting up and pointing to the fact that Mr. Ross made political appointments; he can not do that, when you at the same time are taking good care to see that the political appointments that were made by us, true, should no longer be made by the Democrats, but should now be made by the Secretary of Revenue, and with all due respect to him, a man I know very well and with whom I have no quarrel, I say he will do exactly what Mr. Ross did, he will make political appointments too. You transfer the inheritance tax collection to him and he will do the same thing that Mr. Ross did.

I am standing here and saying to you, admit both sides to be wrong, and they acknowledge that is so, because this has been going on for years, not only in Pennsylvania but in every state in this nation and in every nation in this world, admit that is the cause that has brought about this catastrophe, and then maybe we can do something about it, but do not stand up here and tell me the Democrats did this or that, when the Republicans are doing it now, everybody knows that, and no one gets any credit for pointing it out but you do get credit for acknowledging it, and I might also say you have the majority power and you can do something about it, start it now, and then no one else will have the chance to do it again.

Mr. McGINNIS. We Democrats well remember the smear campaign and investigation of the Earle Administration, and I want to say here that that was the cleanest and most honest and best government this state ever had. $300,000 of the taxpayers money was used. They rented a building down here and filled it with investigators. For a year they pried into every office in Pennsylvania, every contract that was made during the Earle Administration, and they did find one poor man up in Luzerne County, and convicted him for doing something or not correcting something that the Republicans had done for forty years in Luzerne County—during the Pinchot and Sproul administrations they did exactly the same thing in Luzerne County—but outside of that they did not find a thing wrong in Pennsylvania.

Here now I want to say to you tonight, Mr. President, that Clair Ross has been the best Auditor General this state has ever had, and the record shows it, by the collections that have been made; the record shows that there has been no favoritism in that office, the poor taxpayers of this state and the rich taxpayers of this state have got to pay their taxes alike. Mr. Ross has collected more delinquent taxes from taxpayers who have been favored in the past than any other Auditor General, and I regret that in the midst of a war this smear campaign is starting again.

I heard Governor James make that speech. He was perhaps a little disgusted because he had to leave the Capital, a little grouchy, and I heard those wild charges, but I have not seen them followed up. I do not know what the game is. Are you trying to dig up something with another investigation, or grand jury investigation, or what not, and smear honest men? You may get away with that; I think you did in the Earle Administration; you have got the people of Pennsylvania scared of these grand jury investigations, with a building here in Harrisburg filled with investigators, snoopers and snipers that investigate, as I said, every contract that was made and every act that was made during the Earle Administration and now here, as I say, Clair Ross, one of only two Democrats left in state offices here, to think that in the midst of a war we can not go on with war legislation here instead of digging up these quarrelsome and mean and smeary thing.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, of course, a great deal of the debate which has been carried on here has been out of order, as most of it refers to a bill that has gone over in order and is not now before us.

That bill is a companion bill to another bill which passed the Senate. It is not aimed at smearing anybody, Clair Ross or anyone else. It does provide that at any time in the future the Governor may employ auditors to audit the Auditor General.

In connection with Senate Bill No. 590, one of the gentlemen on the other side said that the reason this bill was being recommitted was that it pinched Secretary Livengood, who is a Republican, and I just want to tell the gentlemen on the other side that they do not understand the bill. Secretary Livengood at the present time is under the budget control of the Governor and this bill today brings under the same control the Auditor General and the State Treasurer.

There was quite some demand on the part of friends of both the Auditor General and the State Treasurer that this thing be done. There are two schools of thought on this matter. One is that the budget officer become the Controller to control the expenditures of the three elected offices, the Secretary of Internal Affairs, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer. That is the case now, so far as the Secretary of Internal Affairs is concerned, and what this bill does is to bring under the same control the Auditor General and the State Treasurer.

I say, Mr. President this bill in no way affects Secretary of Internal Affairs Livengood.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Heyburn.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HEYBURN. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Will the gentleman from Delaware look at page 4 of the bill and tell me whether it is not true under the present law the people who are required to do the things that this bill requires are the Auditor General and the State Treasurer and the amendment inserts the words "and the Secretary of Internal Affairs."

Mr. HEYBURN. No, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, if the gentleman from Delaware says "no," I would like to state that the present law now reads as follows, page 4, section 605; "Estimates of current expenditures. The Auditor General and the State Treasurer shall from time to time as requested by the Governor, prepare and submit to the Governor estimates of the amounts of money required for each activity," and the bill as amended now reads "the Auditor General, the Treasury Department and the Department of Internal Affairs."

Therefore, I say the gentleman from Delaware does not read the bill properly; the bill does not affect the Auditor General and the State Treasurer, it only affects the Secretary of Internal Affairs and that is why I said it is a good bill, because there is no reason why the Secretary of Internal Affairs should have any different method of forwarding his accounts than the Auditor General and the State Treasurer.

Mr. HEYBURN. I do not want to prolong this debate, Mr. President, except to say that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, is not aware of the present law; the Secretary of Internal Affairs at the present time is under the budgetary control of the Governor.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. SHAPIRO and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—36

Barr,	Ealy,	Letzler,	Taylor,
Bowers,	Farrell,	Mallery,	Thomas,
Carr,	Geltz,	McGinnis,	Tyler,

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 617, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to repeal section twenty-three of the act, approved the twenty-sixth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 1076), entitled "An act to provide for the organization, incorporation, operation, and supervision of cooperative savings and credit associations, to be termed credit unions; designating such credit unions as corporations, and defining their powers and duties; conferring certain powers and duties on the Department of Banking; and providing penalties," which section exempts credit unions organized under said act, and the shares thereof, from certain tax and bonus liability.

be recommitted to the Committee on Banking.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 619, as follows:

An Act to further amend section four hundred fifty-two of the act approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 179) entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments boards commissions and officers thereof including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools or Teachers Colleges abolishing creating reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments boards and commissions defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers and of the several administrative departments boards commissions and officers fixing the salaries of the Governor Lieutenant-Governor and certain other executive and administrative officers providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers and of all deputies and other assistants and employes in certain departments boards and commissions and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employes of certain departments boards and commissions shall be determined" as amended by changing the provision regarding the maximum compensation of the State Civil Service Commission

Section 1 Section four hundred fifty-two of the act approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 781) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 452 State Civil Service Commission The State Civil Service Commission is hereby created and shall consist of three members not more than two of whom shall be of the same political affiliation Of the original members all of whom shall be appointed within thirty days after the effective date of this act one shall be appointed for a term of two years one for a term of four years and one for a term of six years from the date of his appointment and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified Thereafter each appointment shall be for a term of six years or until a successor is appointed and qualified The members of the commission shall hold no other public position to which a salary is attached shall have qualifications for appointment and shall be removable from office as provided by law The Governor shall designate one of the members as chairman

Section 2 This act shall become effective immediately upon its final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, can the gentleman from Philadelphia tell me, since you are going to abolish civil service in the state, why at this time you are going to increase salaries of the civil service commissioners?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, as I understand it, the statute under which the state civil service commission was set up did not go into effect and the commissioners were not appointed until some six months or more after it was intended under the law that they should be appointed, and as a result they had a lot of work to do at first and the bill provided for a greater starting salary, a higher salary at the beginning, than they would have been paid later.

This is to make an adjustment so that they get the right amount, the amount the Legislature intended when they set up the commission, for the extra work they would have to do to get the thing under way.

Mr. BARR. I desire further to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. Under this bill, of course, Mr. President, they will not get paid any more money until after this bill is passed, if it is passed finally, therefore, I can not see how you are going to help them out for the work they have done previously.

Mr. KEPHART. It means a temporary adjustment of the payroll to take care of the money they did not get paid, that the Legislature intended to pay them, for the first six months before they were appointed.

Does not the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Barr, understand that they were six months late in being appointed and the higher salary started to run six months prior to the time they were appointed, the intention being that for the first six months they should be paid a higher salary; they did not get that, so this makes an adjustment to give them what they were entitled to because of the additional work they had to do.

Mr. BARR. Has the gentleman from Philadelphia read the last section of the bill which provides that after the war is over there is no ceiling put on the salary that could be given to a civil service commissioner; he can make $500, $5,000 or $15,000 a year. We pass bills here daily regulating the pay of county commissioners and county controllers throughout the state. Does the gentleman from Philadelphia think there should be a ceiling put on that?

(The Senate was at ease.)

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I withdraw my last question because I have found out that there is a ceiling on wages that civil service commissioners will be paid.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred.)

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I ask that the roll be verified.

The PRESIDENT. Request has been made to have the roll verified.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted "aye".

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted "aye" as follows:

Chapman,	Heyburn,	Snowden,	Walker,

Crider,	James,	Tallman,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crowe,	Jones,	Taylor,	Wilson, T. B.,
Deitrick,	Kephart,	Thomas,	Woodward,
Ealy,

The PRESIDENT. Are there any corrections.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "aye".

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Blair will be so recorded.

Mr. SCARLETT. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Chester will be so recorded.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his point of order.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I do not think any one can vote after a roll has been verified.

The PRESIDENT. For the information of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Barr, the roll has not yet been verified. The Chair inquired whether there were any further corrections.

If there are no further corrections the affirmative roll will stand as corrected.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted "nay."

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted "nay" as follows:

Barr,	DiSilvestro,	Jaspan,	McQuiddy,
Cox,	Gourley,	McCreesh,	Shapiro,
Dent,	Holland,	McGinnis,	Stiefel,
			Woodring,

The PRESIDENT. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, the reason I rose on a point of order concerning the roll call being verified was because I wanted to call the attention of the members of the Senate to something that happened in the House today where the newspaper men and a number of members of the House counted the votes on a certain bill. There were 100 votes counted and the Clerk announced 106.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President and members of the Senate, in 1935 when I first came to the General Assembly, along with my colleague in the House who is now a Senator, the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Haluska, we introduced a far-reaching piece of legislation. At that time we had difficulty in getting the bill through the House because of the fact that it was a step that had never been approached before. The bill died in the Senate.

In 1937, as a member of the Senate, along with my colleague, Senator Haluska, we also introduced this piece of legislation. Today we find on the Calendar a bill affecting that legislation. For many years, in the state of Pennsylvania, it was lawful for a woman to work 54 hours a week. After much deliberation and many public hearings, in practically every important city of the state, at which time I took the affirmative side of debate against a person selected by the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters—I believe an attorney—we debated this question in many of the principal cities and towns of the state, and as a result we finally enacted a law which limited the hours of labor of women to forty hours a week.

We find ourselves today, under the guise of a war legislative act, increasing the hours of labor to forty-eight hours in any one week to ten hours a day, six days a week, or for six consecutive days.

I do not know whether or not the members of the Senate realize that many married women are now in industry, family women, women with children. Concern for the children of those war workers ought to prompt every man in this Senate to realize the seriousness of keeping a woman away from her home for a long day, six days a week. We hear every day about juvenile delinquency and we are doing our best, as I understand it, to diminish delinquency amongst our juveniles.

In this bill we go further and remove, if you please, night restrictions. It has been felt for many years in industry the wrong thing to do was to allow women to work in industrial plants at night. Further, it was also agreed, I believe unanimously, that no woman ought to be required to work more than five hours without a rest period of about thirty minutes. I see here where we remove that rest period also. But you say to me, of course, it is under the jurisdiction of the Department of Labor and Industry and the Secretary may make the decisions, but I say to you that under the War Powers Act that we are giving the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, if any conditions exist that this bill tries to contemplate, the Governor of Pennsylvania will have every right to set aside any restrictive legislation where it interferes with the war effort.

I say to you, Mr. President, and members of the Senate, there is absolutely no need for this bill. There is no need whatsoever. There are very few industries where women are employed, where a longer work week is required, and in those few industries I am sure the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will use his good judgment in allowing longer hours, night work, and ten hours straight through without a rest period.

There is a difference, you know, in the make-up of men and women in their constitutional ability. I sometimes wonder whether or not women can work ten hours a day without some rest period being provided. Having been an employer myself at various times in my life, I know that there are employers who will make women work ten hours a day without a rest period.

Gentlemen of the Senate, this is not partisan legislation. A few hours ago we debated the question of big industry, and I was accused of taking the side of big industry, because now, fortunately enough, I am operating a small coal mine—when I am allowed to. I want to call to the attention of the man that made that remark that I am also standing here the same as I first stood the first day I came to the General Assembly, fighting for every decent right and every decent law that gives men and women who labor some consideration for their efforts, and I shall continue to do that no matter how rich I may become in worldly goods.

I say to the members of this Senate that this bill is not needed. If you need this bill then, of course, you do not need to give the Governor the absolute right to set aside and abrogate any law that interferes with the war effort, if he so desires.

I say, Mr. President and members of the Senate, that under the terms of this bill the Secretary of Labor and Industry wields a big stick, one never intended by the laws of this state, and I ask the members of this Senate to review carefully the full intent of this bill.

We had child labor in Pennsylvania, we had fly-by-night sweat shops in Pennsylvania, and it was a Republican Governor who started the stick swinging that wiped them out. We came along in 1935 and 1937 and finished the job where he started.

I hate to see decent legislation going backwards. There are still unemployed men in Pennsylvania, regardless of what the index figures might show, and if you do not believe that just look over the relief report that you received last week from the Department of Public Assistance.

Women can work now up to ten o'clock at night, which I think is sufficiently late for women in industry to work. Any of you who have been in industry, I believe, will agree with me that I am trying to call your attention to a very serious piece of legislation. I can see it has no effect on you. When this bill becomes a law of the state of Pennsylvania, the Secretary of Labor and Industry can open up for abuse, if you please, the very things that we fought against for four years before we enacted a law to protect it. I know some of you will say, well, women are entitled to equal rights, and I agree with you, maybe they are entitled to rights to suffer with men, I do not know, but so long as I have a voice in my body, I will not allow with my vote legislation to pass which will cause hardships on the mothers of today. Remember, you are dealing with a different type of family labor condition than you ever did before. Many patriotic women leave their children in the hands of their neighbors. We do not have in Pennsylvania a carefully set up child welfare or child care center; we do not have in Pennsylvania, and have not provided through our legislative acts, any system whereby the children of those mothers can be taken care of, and, at least under the present set up, women get home after a reasonable day's work and feed their children and instruct them a little. You men who during your lives have worked well know when you do ten hours of work anywhere you are not ready to give anybody any counsel or advice, all you are ready to do is to go to bed. They do it here and they do not work ten hours.

I ask you gentlemen to consider this from a serious point of view. I regret that you have taken caucus action, because I do not believe this is that type of legislation; I believe that this is the type of legislation that merits decent consideration from every man on the Senate floor. I ask you not to disturb the law as it stands. You are giving the Governor, with our support, sufficient powers to set aside any act of the legislature when it interferes with the war effort. So I say to you, gentlemen, I would study it before I pass this bill.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Westmoreland, Senator Dent, is unduly alarmed about this bill. As the woman hour laws now stand, of course, a female is limited to forty-four hours of employment per week. Mr. President, this same sort of relaxing of the women hour laws has been done in a great many states of the Union; it is something which has been made necessary by the tremendous war effort to which we are now putting ourselves. It simply provides that a woman may work as much as forty-eight hours per week, not more than ten in any one day, not more than forty-eight hours in a week, and not more than six consecutive days.

The gentleman from Westmoreland, Senator Dent, spoke of certain provisions in the bill which provide that the Secretary of Labor and Industry may, with the approval of the industrial board, relax certain provisions such as the thirty minute lunch period and thirty minutes rest period.

Mr. President, I have talked with the Secretary of Labor and Industry and I find that there is a problem that probably the Senator from Westmoreland has not heard about. The Department of Labor and Industry is simply flooded with applications for special permission so that women may work more than forty-four hours per week and at the same time to readjust rest periods.

Any one knows, Mr. President, that those engaged in war industries in Pennsylvania are not out to work any woman to death or anything of that kind, but there is a situation here which is out of the ordinary, and this bill simply provides for a relaxing of the law for the period of the war and six months thereafter.

This bill, Mr. President, I have given to some labor leaders to read and I have heard no criticism, except one or two minor amendments which they suggested and which were inserted here on the floor of the Senate. The bill is in line with that which has been done in other states.

Therefore, Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to vote "aye" on this bill.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, when you start to read this bill, as I did, you feel there is a need for some of the provisions -there has been some question concerning seven consecutive days, or when a Sunday begins or when you have to pay overtime, and there is also a provision in the bill as to six consecutive days.

The Secretary of Labor and Industry has, for the last year at least, been granting special permits in the war areas, not only to factories but to persons who are in any way connected with the war effort in a war area, he has made allowances, but this bill goes even further, and that is the trouble with all of this legislation—when you get enough you do not seem to be satisfied. This bill provides that the thirty minute rest period which has always been accepted as a necessity for female workers may be eliminated, and that to me is the thing that makes this bill all wrong.

It is not necessary. They are permitted to work ten hours and they are entitled to a thirty minute rest period, but now you say even the thirty minutes rest period can be taken away.

I know that the more sensible industrialists and business men will not take advantage of that because they will realize that there is a limit to endurance, certainly of women, and they will not take advantage of that position, but I know there will be unscrupulous people who will take advantage of it, and it seems to me unnecessary to include a provision not necessary for the basic purposes of this bill.

We put ourselves on record not only of allowing these women to work ten hours a day but we now say to ourselves, during the war effort it will be all right, but we are going to give some unscrupulous people the right to take away the rest period from them and that is why I think the bill goes too far.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that House Bill No. 871, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections two three hundred five paragraph (4) of section six hundred two and section six hundred three of the act approved the twenty-ninth day of November one thousand nine hundred thirty-three (P. L. 15, 1933-34) entitled as amended "An act to regulate and restrain the sale manufacture possession transportation importation traffic in and use of alcohol and alcoholic and malt or brewed beverages conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board and its agents the Department of Public Instruction other officers of the State government courts and district attorneys authorizing the establishment and operation of State stores for the sale of such beverages not for consumption on the premises and the granting of licenses subject to local option to sell such beverages for consumption on and off the premises forbidding importation or bringing of such beverages into the State except as herein provided prohibiting certain sales or practices in connection with and transactions in such beverages by licensees and others providing for the forfeiture of certain property making disposition of the receipts from State stores and of fees and imposing penalties" by defining "Official Seal" and authorizing the designation of wholesale or retail stores and suspending for the duration of the present war and for a period of one year thereafter the holding of Local Option Referenda on the question of granting liquor licenses and malt and brewed beverage retail dispenser licenses by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board be recommitted to the Committee on Law and Order, for the purpose of amendment.

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. KEPHART. I have amendments already prepared for this bill and I would like an opportunity to present them. I was unable to be recognized by the Chair. I see no reason why this bill should be delayed by being sent to committee and then come out again, or maybe not come out again, when it is now already on the Calendar and I have amendments which are ready to be offered.

The PRESIDENT. For the information of the gentleman from Philadelphia there is a motion now before the Senate to recommit House Bill No. 871.

Mr. KEPHART. I am speaking against that motion. I would like to vote against the motion to recommit and I would like to present amendments at this time.

Mr. HEYBURN. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, was present in a caucus meeting and agreed that this bill should go back to committee for the purpose of further amendment, and that was the only reason, Mr. President, that I moved that this bill be recommitted.

Mr. DENT. Confucius once said "Once bitten by a snake, you fear every rope." I was bitten by that snake, Mr. President, and now I am afraid of the rope. I have had a perfectly good bill on the Calendar, which I thought was very important to the so-called war effort, it was sent back to committee for amendment and it died there, and I am afraid that is what is going to happen to this bill, so I believe at this time I should make my arguments on the bill, on the motion to recommit.

I will not go into all the details of the bill but I will refer to an amendment which was inserted, if the members of the Senate will bear with me, which reads "and suspending for the duration of the present war and for a period of one year thereafter the holding of local option referenda on the question of granting liquor licenses and malt and brewed beverage retail dispenser licenses by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board."

Mr. President and members of the Senate, that is the meat of this particular bill, that is the objection some people find with it. Recently one of the non-wet magazines made a survey of the soldiers home on leave. They were asked a group of questions on what they wanted to find when the war was over back here at home, plus what they wanted done while they were away.

The first thing that they asked, Mr. President, was that there should be a job waiting for them when they came home; some provision should be made so that they would not find themselves in the same position that the men who defended our democracy in the last war found themselves in when they came home.

The third item that those men were interested in, Mr. President, was the question of prohibition; they asked that we as members of the General Assembly of the various state legislatures and the members of the Federal Congress should in no way allow the enactment of a prohibition law while they were away.

The American Legion in convention assembled passed a resolution which bears directly upon this question. They oppose, Mr. President, any optional vote on the question of prohibition while the men and women, too, are away defending the freedoms and the rights that we here enjoy.

Can you imagine taking a local option vote in communities where thousands upon thousands of young men are away and can not exercise their proper franchise to vote?

All this bill does is to maintain the status quo. Dry communities will be dry communities. When the men come home who left those communities they will find them in exactly the same condition as they left them. Wet communities will be wet communities. When the men come home they will find them in exactly the same condition as when they left.

That is important, very important; we should not take away from those men the liberties that they are fighting to uphold. We should not under any circumstances allow men and women to vote on a question that vitally interests the men in the armed forces.

The American Legion in its resolution and in its arguments against prohibition during this war time, was very explicit in its statements about breaking faith with the men who were serving in the armed forces.

I know what the amendments might be if the committee is called to act on this motion. I know, because the gentleman from Washington, Senator Gourley and myself, introduced a bill covering this specific item, proposing that there should be no local option vote while the boys are away and can not vote. That bill died in committee and I warn you now that this action will do the same things, it will kill this particular section of the bill that protect the rights of the men and women who are defending our right to be here to protect them, and I say to you, with all the flag waving that has been done in the Senate every time we have a question that really affects the vital interests of the soldier, we find ourselves sending that interest back to committee.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Majority Floor Leader.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HEYBURN. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. COLEMAN. I understood the gentlemen from Delaware, Senator Heyburn, to make the statement that his motion to recommit was in deference to the suggestion of the gentleman from Philadelphia, that he had amendments which he proposed to offer in committee, but I understand the gentleman from Philadelphia is agreeable to offering the amendments on the floor.

I wonder if the gentleman from Delaware would agree to withdraw his motion, since he admitted that he made the motion to recommit at the suggestion of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, and permit the amendments to this tremendously important bill to be inserted in the bill on the floor of the Senate.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, in answer to the statement of my esteemed colleague from Lackawanna County, I did not say that the Senator from Philadelphia suggested that this bill be recommitted. I did say, however, that the gentleman from Philadelphia was present at the caucus and agreed by his silence to a motion to recommit the bill. The reason for the recommittal, Mr. President, is that there seems to be so many sets of amendments that we decided the only place the bill could be properly amended would be in the Committee of Law and Order, or some other committee.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, the only man I saw rise on his feet in order to present amendments was the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart. If the Majority Floor Leader insists on his motion to have this bill recommitted, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. WALKER. May I suggest to the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Coleman, that there are a number of us who are interested in various phases of this bill and that provision of the bill which will prohibit any referendum until the war is over is merely one of them. I think we are all aware of the fact, particularly those of us who are old enough to remember, that it was during the last world war that this prohibition the country suffered from was inflicted upon a long suffering and long patient public, and that is the thing that various service organizations such as the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars have taken a decided stand against, and with that we all are in sympathy, with what the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, is trying to do.

However, there are other phases to this bill which I think should be studied, and that is one of the reasons why I am willing to let this bill go back to committee, because I understand that the Committee on Law and Order is going to make an honest attempt to amend this bill and bring it back so we can pass it.

One of the phases of this bill that interests me, and, of course, the minute you mention this a number of very sincere statesmen will tell you "it can't happen here," but I think the best way to approach legislation of this type is with suspicion, and then you really gain your objective.

I also would like to direct the attention of the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Coleman, to that apparently harmless portion of the bill which permits the State Liquor Control Board to have exclusively wholesale stores. I think that you will appreciate this fact, that if the State Liquor Control Board can have wholesale and retail stores that there would be nothing to prevent them from putting all their available supplies of whiskey in the wholesale stores, and then those of us who have to buy for ourselves a fifth at a time will go into a retail store and, like old Mother Hubbard, we would find that the cupboard would be bare and the only place we could get a drink would be to buy one from a retailer.

Of course Mr. President, a lot of the younger statesmen will jump up and say "that can't happen here," but, Mr. President, in defense of the thousands in Pennsylvania who still have to buy their whiskey a quart at a time, I think we ought to make certain, when we get this bill in committee again, the Liquor Control Board can not pull a fast one and sell liquor at wholesale only.

Mr. MUNDY. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WALKER. Gladly, Mr. President.

Mr. MUNDY. Mr. President, since this bill is now on third reading and there has been opportunity to consider it on several other readings, may I ask the Senator from Allegheny why, when this bill was on second reading, none of the objections had occurred to him at that time?

Mr. WALKER. In answer to the interrogation of the gentleman from Luzerne, Doctor Mundy, the answer is yes, they did.

Mr. MUNDY. May I further interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny?

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. WALKER. Certainly.

Mr. MUNDY. Mr. President, if that did occur to the gentleman from Allegheny at the time this bill was on second reading, which has been deemed the best and the easiest time, probably, with less interruption of legislative progress, to amend bills, I can not understand and perhaps the gentleman from Allegheny can explain why this bills has been allowed to go to third reading for amendment.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, what is the specific question of the gentleman from Luzerne, so that I may attempt to answer with some intelligence?

Mr. MUNDY. I will repeat, Mr. President, as near as possible; if this bill was considered on second reading, and on second reading I think the gentleman from Allegheny will agree with me that that is the usual time to correct bills with less interference with legislative progress, did it occur to the Senator from Allegheny at that time that that would have been the best time to amend this bill?

Mr. WALKER. That is correct, Mr. President, that is absolutely correct, and I fully appreciate the fact that the proper time to amend a bill is on second reading. I would like to call to the attention of the gentleman from Luzerne, however, that this bill was reported out of the Committee on Law and Order—and I should like to remind the gentleman from Luzerne, by the way, that is a committee of which I am not a member—on April 27, it passed first reading April 27, it passed second reading on April 28, which was Wednesday of last week.

When the suggestions for these amendments were first made they were not made to the committee, they were made informally in caucus—and I do not want to create the impression that it was a lonesome drum beating in the wilderness—it was rather a coalition of ideas; we were trying to crystallize our thoughts so that we could preserve this freezing of a referendum, which was the first idea promulgated, and then these other ideas came afterward.

I will say, for the information of the gentleman from Luzerne, it was not a question of negligence or sleeping on our rights that precipitated this present action, it was merely an attempt to crystallize the ideas presented by various members of the Senate with reference to this bill.

Mr. MUNDY. May I further interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny?

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be further interrogated

Mr. WALKER. I will, Mr. President, with pleasure.

Mr. MUNDY. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, tell me of some other bills that have been treated by the majority in just this fashion at this session?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I do not think I understand the question of the gentleman from Luzerne.

Mr. MUNDY. Mr. President, the gentleman from Allegheny has been present at most of the meetings of the Senate, and I now ask him how many bills have been permitted to come up to third reading and final disposition and then have been referred back to committee, say within the last month.

Mr. WALKER. May I say, Mr. President, there have been a number of bills that I can recall. I hope the gentleman from Luzerne does not ask for the number because I can not give him the number of bills introduced which got as far as third reading and then were rereferred to committee for further study, but I do recall some procedures of that kind.

Mr. MUNDY. Does the gentleman from Allegheny now have in mind some bills which have been permitted to reach third reading and then have been sent back to committee?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I do not want to lend support to the statement "permitted to get to third reading." I want to suggest to the gentleman from Luzerne, Dr. Mundy, that nothing is in the form of "being permitted" because, as the gentleman from Luzerne knows, there are times when there are mistakes, for instance in language, and we do not catch them until the final moment.

Another thing, Mr. President, there are approximately thirty Republican Senators in our caucus and a lot of them are young and effervescent and full of original and independent ideas, and they get ideas of their own and they express those ideas very forcibly in caucus, and every now and then they convince or persuade a majority of the caucus that such and such would be the thing to do, and when that happens we get in a position like we are in now.

Mr. MUNDY. Is it not a fact that on a number of occasions on this floor bills have been permitted to be amended on third reading?

Mr. WALKER. I think that is entirely correct, Mr. President. I think the gentleman from Luzerne has been here when that has taken place, and so have I.

I see no objection to this bill being amended. In fact, I am one of the silent rooters to get this bill amended, because I am interested in freezing local option, but I want to get it back in committee to amend the bill, because that was the procedure I understood had been agreed to.

I am in favor of freezing local option and I am in favor of personally seeing to it that the Liquor Control Board can not, through a technicality in the bill, have nothing but wholesale liquor in Pennsylvania for sale, and I thought the best place to do that would be back in committee.

For the information of the gentleman from Luzerne, Dr. Mundy, I am of the impression that this bill is being sent back to the committee for amendment, and is not being sent back to be killed.

Mr. MUNDY. Mr. President, may I ask the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, from his experience with bills which have been sent back to committee after reaching third reading, what, from his experience, has happened to them.

Mr. WALKER. I would say the majority of times, Mr. President, and especially when we reach this stage of a legislative session, when a bill is taken from the third reading Calendar and sent back to committee, there is a Chopin funeral march accompanying the recommittal, but I do say to the gentleman from Luzerne that I am thoroughly of the opinion, and I am operating under that opinion, and because of the impression I have been given, this bill is not being sent back to committee to be killed but actually is being sent back for amendment.

Mr. MUNDY. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, if he is so enthusiastic about so many phases of this bill, why he would object to this bill going over in order temporarily, in order to have a discussion and then have proper amendments prepared, and then permit the bill to be amended on the floor?

Mr. WALKER. The gentleman from Luzerne is reading into my statement something I have not said. I am sorry if I conveyed that impression and to correct that impression, might I say to the gentleman from Luzerne that I am not objecting to the bill being amended? I am very much interested in the bill.

Mr. MUNDY. I am sorry, Mr. President, that this happens to be a dialogue instead of a monologue. It is of great interest to me to ask these questions but if there is serious objection and it harrasses so seriously the Senators I will close my interrogation.

Mr. COX. I am one member of the Committee on Law and Order and can only speak for myself. I know from my attendance at meetings of the Committee on Law and Order that the local option provisions of this bill were discussed many times.

When this bill was reported from committee, it was reported with the approval of more than a majority of the members of the committee who were present that particular evening. I do not think that the members of the Committee on Law and Order want this bill to come back again.

I have sat here and I have seen batch after batch of amendments offered on the floor of this Senate; time after time I have risen on my feet and objected to that procedure. It just happens that the amendments offered tonight are very short and I think two minutes would be all that would be necessary for the members of this Senate to acquaint themselves with the contents of the amendments.

Therefore, Mr. President, I see no reason for the bill to be recommitted.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, why not have this bill amended on the floor and save a lot of time? We have a little group over here who will support the amendments of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, on the floor, and I think it is a foolish waste of time to send it back to committee. We have held a caucus of our own.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. JASPAN and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—21

Bowers,	Geltz,	Scarlett,	Tyler,
Carr,	Heyburn,	Snowden,	Wade.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. DENT asked and obtained leave of absence for himself for the balance of today's session.

RESOLUTION

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer a resolution at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. McCREESH, offered the following resolution which was twice read, as follows:

URGING SENATE TO REMOVE JAPANESE EMBLEM FROM SENATE MURALS

Whereas, the Members of this Senate are all supposedly patriotic and in no way want to give aid and comfort to our enemies, and

Whereas, the Members of this Senate are all American citizens and by the Act of Congress of December 8, 1941, are at war with certain nations in this world, and

Whereas, this country of ours was born and cradled here in this great Commonwealth in the early, early days of the eighteenth century before the signing of the Declaration of Independence, and

Whereas, the people of this Commonwealth have always been liberty loving and defenders of the freedoms of assembly, speech, religion and the press,

Therefore Be It Resolved, that we, the Members of the Senate, do this day each contribute one dollar ($1.00) in United States currency to be used to pay for the necessary labor required to paint out the emblem of the Sun of Heaven—the Rising Sun—which is in the murals on the left front panel, of this Senate Chamber.

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be dispensed with and the Senate proceed to the consideration of the foregoing resolution.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I object, and suggest that the resolution be referred to the Committee on State Government.

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, this is a very simple and easy matter to have adjusted and I do not think the gentleman from Delaware is the type of person who would try to stop something like this. This is a good resolution and with very little effort this can be done. For the past three or four months I have been continuually bothered by people along the side rails, referring to that flag up there. I will be glad to m ke a contribution, if that is necessary, and I would like to have a roll call on this matter right now, so that I will not be bothered in the future. I think for the sake of men who are fighting for the freedom of our country, we should adopt this resolution, and I do hope that we will have less debate on this resolution and put it to a vote.

Mr. EALY. There are a great many symbolic pictures on these walls that I do not approve of. I could never imagine Benjamin Franklin or Thomas Jefferson looking like those pictures portray them as being. Up there on the corner of the wall there is apparently a representation of the Japanese flag—there is also an Italian flag up there, if I am able to distinguish it. These are symbolic pictures. I do not know what it would cost to change them, but that question should not be determined hastily here on the floor. I do not see that any one would be more patriotic by contributing a dollar to blot out that Japanese flag—perhaps that is the thing to do—but we should give it a little more consideration than to hastily vote to change the painting. I think it is entirely proper to hold this resolution over for consideration.

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I will be glad to abide by the decision of the gentleman from Somerset, Senator Ealy.

The PRESIDENT. The resolution is referred to the Committee on State Government.

RECESS

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess for five minutes.

Mr. SCARLETT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

BILL ON SECOND READING AMENDED

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 827, entitled;

An Act to amend section two thousand four hundred and four of the act approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 177) entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments boards commissions and officers thereof including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools or Teachers Colleges abolishing creating reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments boards and commissions defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers and of the several administrative departments boards commissions and officers fixing the salaries of the Governor Lieutenant-Governor and certain other executive and administrative officers providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers and of all deputies and other assistants and employes in certain departments boards and commissions and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employes of certain departments boards and commissions shall be determined" as amended in order to provide automobile liability insurance on vehicles owned by the United States of America and its instrumentalities which are loaned to and operated by State employes and certain other persons

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?

Mr. WADE offered the following amendments:

Amend the title, line one by inserting after word "To" and before the word "amend" the word "further"; amend the title, line one by striking out the word "section" and inserting the words "sections five hundred and eight and"; amend the title on page two by adding in the last line after the word "persons" the following "and to authorize the Department of Property and Supplies to construct certain buildings and facilities under contract with the General State Authority"; amend page two, Section 1, line one by striking out after the second word "Section" the words "two thousand four hundred and four" and inserting the words "five hundred and eight"; amend page three, Section 1, lines eleven and twelve by striking out the words "to read as follows" and inserting the words "by adding the following new paragraph thereto"; (h) The Department of Property and Supplies shall have the power and authority with the approval of the Governor to enter into agreements with the General State Authority whereby the Department will construct buildings or other facilities for the use of the Commonwealth to be paid for from funds of the General State Authority.

Section 2 Section two thousand four hundred and four of said act as last amended by the act approved the twenty-first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1865) is hereby further amended to read as follows: amend page five, Section 2, line thirteen by striking out the figure "2" and inserting the figure "3."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments;

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask that House Bill No. 827 go over in order before second reading. These amendments seem to put a lot of material in the bill and the original bill only has a few words in it.

This is an insurance bill which has to do with the covering of insurance on vehicles loaned to the Commonwealth by the United States of America, and these amendments apparently have something to do with the right of the Department of Property and Supplies to construct buildings.

AMENDMENTS WITHDRAWN

The SPEAKER (Ira T. Fiss) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Rev. J. Richard Crawford, Ph. D., Uniontown, a guest of the Chaplain, offered the following prayer:

Our Father in Heaven at this moment we come to Thee thoughtfully, humbly, prayerfully, but fearless and firmly, realizing that we are the creatures of Thy Creation and are subservient to Thy will Divine.

We thank Thee for the blessings Thou hast given us to know, the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, keep us we beseech Thee from presumptious sin, that we may know, Thou Oh! God dost keep watch over our every act.

Help us to keep always befor eour mind's eye, that these are perilous days in this World; that this present generation is seething and unless mankind turns whole heartedly to Thee like the great and wicked City of Ninevah of old, we are in danger of greater calamity.

We thank Thee for Thy protecting arms, and guiding Spirit in directing the business of this House, and pray that all which has been done here, may be to Thine honor and glory.

We ask Thy blessings on the President of these United States, the Governor of this state, and members of their Official families, giving them wisdom to execute justice and maintain truth.

We pray for all prisoners and captives, those who are desolate and oppressed, make them feel Thou lovest them still. This we ask in Christ's name. Amen.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, many times Members of the House through no fault of their own vote on legislation which appears on the face of it to be not harmful and innocuous, and I would say, when this bill was before the House before I voted for it on the basis of certain information that I received and certain assurances that went with it. Since that time, however, I have found out the real reason for the bill. Usually, every bill that comes before us has a real story behind it because it would be an insult to Members of the House to suspect that they were interested in a bill that had no purpose.

Very briefly, the background of this bill is that some time ago an elevator inspector of the Department of Labor and Industry was inspecting an elevator in one of the coal mines in Pennsylvania, and because of certain recommendations he wanted to make, the foreman of the mine and the inspector got into a very violent dispute, and the angry charge was then made by the mine foreman "We'll get rid of you fellows on inspecting these elevators, and don't you think we won't. We'll make sure that you inspectors won't bother us up here any more."

The result is this bill. I have no quarrel with what the mine foreman and what the elevator inspector had to say between them, but on further inquiry I find that this is what the situation will be in the future: the men who work in the Department of Labor and Industry in the elevator inspection bureau are all qualified elevator men who know the elevator business from many years of experience in industry and in this department. This bill will take inspection of the elevators in mines away from that department where they have experienced men, and the inspection will be made by mine inspectors under the supervision of the Secretary of Mines. This is no accusation against the Secretary of Mines, nor is it a statement derogatory to the ability of the mine inspectors, but I submit, that mine inspectors are not elevator inspectors, and that the complex mechanism of elevators not within the ken of the mine inspector.

The proposal is that the elevator inspection bureau give to the miner inspectors a printed list of the things to look for and things to check when they inspect the elevators in the mines. I submit that mine inspectors, as cautious and as honest as they may be do not have the qualifications to inspect these elevators. The result will be that as conscientious as the mine inspector wants to be, he is not fitted for the proper technical tests and proper inspection of the mine elevators, and my only fear, is that should one elevator in a mine be not properly inspected there could be an awful calamity, because when a mine elevator falls it has no respect for whoever happens to be riding on it.

It is for that reason that I find I must reverse my stand on having originally voted for this measure and now vote against it and I ask all the Members of the House to do the same.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection Senate Bill No. 241, Printer's No. 420, was passed over at the request of Mr. LICHTENWALTER.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 944, as follows:

An Act to further amend the first paragraph of section nine of the act approved the twelfth day of July one one thousand nine hundred thirteen (P. L. 711) entitled "An act establishing a court for the county of Philadelphia prescribing its jurisdiction and powers providing for the service of its writs process or warrants by the proper officers of the county or city of Philadelphia regulating the procedure therein and appeals therefrom and providing for the expenses thereof" by providing for the appointment of a director of probation and other employes and providing for the fixing of their salaries

Section 1 The first paragraph of section nine of the act approved the twelfth day of July one thousand nine hundred thirteen (P. L. 711) entitled "An act establishing a court for the county of Philadelphia prescribing its jurisdiction and powers providing for the service of its writs process or warrants by the proper officers of the county or city of Philadelphia regulating the procedure therein and appeals therefrom and providing for the expenses thereof" as last amended by the act approved the twenty-seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred twenty-three (P. L. 850) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 9 The board of judges of the municipal court shall appoint a [chief] director of probation [officer whose salary shall not exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000) a year] and such additional probation officers and employes as it may determine at salaries [not to exceed two thousand five hundred dollars ($2,500) a year] fixed by the board of judges of the municipal court of Philadelphia whose powers and duties shall be similar to those heretofore appointed by the court of quarter sessions of the peace for said county.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gorman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GORMAN. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I should like to know from the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gorman, whether this bill would automatically give the judges of the municipal court of Philadelphia the right to pay a probation officer employed by that court any salary that they felt like?

Mr. GORMAN. In a way it would, Mr. Speaker. There is nothing contained in the bill about salaries. This bill is a simple home rule bill for the purpose of allowing the judges in Philadelphia to set the salaries and number of employes. There is nothing in the bill about salaries.

Mr. CHUDOFF. I should like to know, Mr. Speaker, from the gentleman from Philadelphia if it is not true that now under the present law which this act seeks to amend, the ceiling on salaries of probation officers is not $2,500, and does not this bill further provide that the $2,500 ceiling shall be taken out and the judge can pay an unlimited salary to a probation officer?

Mr. GORMAN. Will the gentleman please repeat his question?

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I say is it not true that the bill in its present form without amendment sets a ceiling of $2,500 on the pay of probation officers under the act, and this bill would take that ceiling of $2,500 off and give the judges of the court the right to pay any salary that they felt like?

Mr. GORMAN. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. And is it not true that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania contributes over $200,000 to the municipal courts of Philadelphia?

Mr. GORMAN. For what, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. CHUDOFF. For payment of salaries of judges, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GORMAN. Probation officers?

Mr. CHUDOFF. Of judges, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GORMAN. Yes, it does, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Now, Mr. Speaker, I would further like to know from the gentleman as to whether or not under House Bill No. 2 which was passed by this House in the early days of this session, each and every probation officer in the municipal court of Philadelphia would receive a pay raise of $400?

Mr. GORMAN. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. And this, Mr. Speaker, would permit the judges to give them a further pay raise? Is that not correct?

Mr. GORMAN. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Allow me to read the bill, Mr. Speaker: Section 9 of the act of 1913 which establishes a municipal court in Philadelphia now reads as follows:

> The board of judges of the municipal court shall appoint a probation officer whose salary shall not exceed $5,000 a year and such additional probation officers and employes as may be determined at a salary not to exceed $2,500 per year, fixed by the board of municipal judges in Philadelphia.

This amendment of Mr. Gorman's strikes out "not to exceed $2,500 a year" and would provide an unlimited amount as far as the probation officers are concerned.

I should like to know further from the gentleman from Philadelphia if it is not true that one hundred thirty-seven employes in the courts of Philadelphia received raises of $54,100 for the year of 1943 as the result of House Bill No. 2?

Mr. GORMAN. Approximately that, Mr. Speaker, as a bonus.

Mr. CHUDOFF. I thank the gentleman from Philadelphia.

Mr. Speaker, I am trying to find a name to describe this bill. Early in the session we into the General Assembly and decided that due to the increased cost of living employes of the courts in Philadelphia and elsewhere in the Commonwealth should receive a cost of living increase. As a result of this House Bill No. 2 was passed by the House, the Senate and was signed by the Governor, so that the city council of Philadelphia could give to each of the employes of the courts of Philadelphia a raise of $400.

Now there comes before us another bill that tries to sneak an additional raise to employes of the municipal courts, and especially the probation officers. There are ninety-eight probation officers in the municipal courts of Philadelphia, and under this bill the judges of the municipal courts could pay a probation officer $10,000 or $15,000 a year and there would be nothing to stop them.

I am not against the cost of living increase; I believe that the cost of living has increased sufficiently in this Commonwealth and that these employes are entitled to an increase in the amount of $400, but if we are going to give the board of judges of the municipal courts the right to take the ceiling of $2,500 off the probation officers, we might as well give that right to all the judges in the courts of Philadelphia.

I say that this bill is an insult to the intelligence of the people of Pennsylvania, it is a sneaker—I think you might call it a "lallapaloosa;" it is an attempt by the Board of Judges of the Municipal Court of Philadelphia to give a double raise to their employes by this bill, and I ask all the Members of the House to vote against it.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the gentleman from Philadelphia has misconstrued the import of this bill. The motive of this bill is to give the judges the authority to fix salaries of probation officers. It is not intended to raise the salaries. As a matter of fact, Mr. Chudoff knows that the judges of the municipal courts are almost equally divided between Democrats and Republicans, and it has been found more practical to give the judges authority to fix salaries of their officers rather than that they be fixed by the Legislature. It is well known that the men constituting the Board of Judges of the Municipal Court are men of learning and integrity and we know that those men would not abuse the power that the Legislature gives them, and for that reason I ask that the bill be approved.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I desire with the indulgence of the House at this time to refer to the section of the bill that is amended. I shall read the bill prior to the proposed amendments and under each section the salaries that are now fixed.

Under the present law the > Board of Judges of the Municipal Court shall appoint a chief probation officer whose salary shall not exceed five thousand dollars a year, and such additional probation officers and employes as it may determine at salaries not to exceed twenty-five hundred dollars a year, whose powers and duties shall be similar to those heretofore appointed by the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of said county.

The amendment permits the appointment of a Director of Probation instead of the Chief Probation Officer, and eliminates all stipulation as to his salary, and the amendment strikes out the ceiling of twenty-five hundred dollars and states that the salaries may be fixed by the Board of Judges of the Municipal Court.

Now, I have no quarrel with the Board of Judges as such in the Municipal Courts of Philadelphia County. They are all very fine gentlemen, they are all learned in the law and they do a good job, but nevertheless the people of the City of Philadelphia have elected a City Council to determine the budget policies of the city of Philadelphia. This City Council sits for many months each year hearing arguments pro and con from the various departments of the city and county of Philadelphia as to the relative merits of their budget requests. In many cases the requests are adjusted to the advantage of the department and in many cases it is pointed out that it is not possible to grant an increase.

I recall full well during the dark days of the depression and when the city and county government was sorely pressed because of the delinquencies in the collection of taxes, because people were unable to pay their taxes because of the depression, that the President Judge of the Municipal Court refused to back down on his budget request and said "Gentlemen, these salaries are fixed by the Legislature of Pennsylvania and you cannot change them one iota." That has been the attitude of the President Judge of the Municipal Court who controls that court, and he tells the people of the City of Philadelphia "The Legislature has fixed these salaries and you can't change them."

Now, he comes knocking at the door of the Legislature and he wants control, because there is a ceiling of twenty-five hundred dollars in the present law. He wants it fixed that he can control those salaries at any sum that he may see fit, and the people of Philadelphia must pay the freight. I say in all fairness to the people of Philadelphia with its two million residents that are already overburdened with a wage tax that this bill should not pass.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The roll was called by the Clerk.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield? The time has arrived for the special order fixed for this time.

Mr. TATE. I will, Mr. Speaker, on the condition that the roll be verified.

The SPEAKER. The roll will be verified when we resume consideration of this bill.

SPECIAL ORDER ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

The SPEAKER. The Chair lays before the House the special order of business fixed for this time, on page 1 of today's calendar, House Bill No. 1111, Printer's No. 705, bill on third reading and final passage.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1111, as follows:

An Act providing for the payment by the State Treasurer of one-half of the amount of the tax on premiums paid by foreign casualty insurance companies to the treasurers of the several cities boroughs towns and townships and for the payment thereof into police pension funds and in certain cases into the State Employes' Retirement Fund for certain purposes

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 On and after the first day of January one thousand nine hundred and forty-four and annually thereafter there shall be paid by the State Treasurer to the treasurers of the several cities townships towns and boroughs within the Commonwealth one-half of the net amount received from the two per centum tax paid upon premiums by foreign casualty insurance companies The amount to be paid to each of the treasurers of the several cities townships towns and boroughs shall be based upon the return of said two per centum tax upon premiums received from foreign casualty insurance companies doing business within the said cities townships towns and boroughs as shown by the report made to the Department of Revenue Each city borough town or township receiving any payment from the State Treasurer hereunder shall forthwith pay the amount received into the police pension fund of such city borough town or township or into the county police pension fund maintained for the benefit among others of the police of such city borough town or township where in either case such police pension fund exists or is hereafter established if the said police pension fund is duly recognized as such by the council commissioners or supervisors as the case may be of such city borough town or township In any city borough town or township in which there is no police pension fund the amount received by the treasurer of the city borough town or township from said tax shall be forthwith paid into the State Employes' Retirement Fund and shall be credited to the accumulated deductions of members of the Pennsylvania State Police in proportion to the respective amounts contributed by such members during the period said tax was collected Warrants for the above purposes shall be drawn by the Auditor General payable to the treasurers of the several cities townships towns and boroughs in accordance with this act whenever there are sufficient funds in the State Treasury to pay the same

Section 2 All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, the history of this bill should be reviewed very briefly. As originally introduced the contents of this bill were in another bill as an amendment to an act which provides for the payment of moneys from a tax levied on fire insurance and fire insurance premiums for the benefit of the firemen's pension fund in this State. At the time the bill was originally considered in the House protests came in from various parts of the State on behalf of the firemen's pension fund. At my suggestion, and with the approval of the sponsor of the bill, Mr. Tiemann, we agreed to drop that bill and redraw a new bill which has to do with policemen only. The only thought in doing that was to make certain that the firemen's rights and privileges were in no way affected by the passage of what is contained in this bill. The bill now comes before us on its own.

Only a few moments ago I heard some disturbing rumors that some of the Members of the House on both sides were under the misapprehension or the belief that this bill would affect the firemen's pension money. Let me say that the firemen's pension money comes from a two per cent tax on the fire insurance premiums only; that House Bill No. 1111 provides that half of the two per cent tax on casualty companies, which are in no sense fire insurance companies, shall be paid into the fund for the benefit of the policemen. It was our fervent hope that the discussion and the passage of this bill would in no way, shape or form, have anything to do with the firemen's matters. I believe the treatment accorded to the firemen was proper, and I believe that the treatment accorded to the policemen should be on the same basis, and I sincerely say to you that this does not affect the firemen in any shape, manner or form; it is for policemen only and has nothing to do with the fire companies or fire policies or anything to do with fire. I want that to be clear, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tiemann, joins with me, that this is for policemen and policemen alone.

Mr. TIEMANN. Mr. Speaker, I wish to state that what Mr. Cohen of Philadelphia has said is correct, and I ask all the Members on both sides of the House to vote for this bill and help the policemen.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I just want to say for the majority side of the House, that we on this side in no way want to interfere with the firemen's funds that they are now receiving from the foreign fire insurance tax paid into the Commonwealth, and when those objections were raised, we on this side of the House did everything possible to speed the enactment of this new bill which was drawn to take care of the policemen's pension fund. We at that time agreed and promised that we would in no way block a speedy passage in the House, and I want to state and to go on record as saying that in doing that I feel we have shown our interest in the work of these men throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and their efforts to protect human life and property.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I want to call to the attention of all the Members of the House that the Mayor of Philadelphia, the Director of Public Safety and all the people in Philadelphia, Democrats and Republicans are in favor of the passage of this bill.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tiemann, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TIEMANN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask the gentleman, in a borough or township where you do not have a pension fund, what are you going to do with this money there?

Mr. TIEMANN. If you do not have a pension fund the bill provides that the money is to be turned over to the state police, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. What fund is it going to go into, Mr. Speaker? You understand the state police have two pension funds. Which one of those funds is going to get this money?

Mr. TIEMANN. The State Employment Retirement Fund, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Then it can be used for all state employes after it is in there, is that right?

Mr. TIEMANN. I will read from the act:

> In any city, borough, town or township in which there is no police pension fund, the amount received by the treasurer of the city, borough, town or township from said tax shall forthwith be paid into the State Employes' Retirement Fund and shall be credited to the accumulated deductions of members of the Pennsylvania State Police in proportion to the respective amounts contributed by such members during the period said tax was collected.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. They contribute to two funds, do they not, the state police?

Mr. TIEMANN. I do not know, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. In a county like Allegheny county where the police are already under a pension fund, supposing they organize another pension fund; would they be entitled to money under this act?

Mr. TIEMANN. Provided they are recognized by the council, commissioners or supervisors. It states that in the bill.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. They are already under a pension fund now. They form another pension fund of their own, and then get a certain amount of money under that, is that right?

Mr. TIEMANN. They must be recognized by the council, commissioners or supervisors.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. That is all, Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Section 2 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill which provides for the advertising of the intention of any association or any business which will do business under a fictitious name. There is presently on the statute books a law which requires the registration of a fictitious name, and the failure to register also has a penalty for said failure. Therefore, I do not see the necessity for this bill except that it entails a cost to every individual or every group of individuals who are doing business under a fictitious name or who want to do business under a fictitious name, by requiring them to advertise their notice of intention to register the name. It is really an unnecessary bit of legislation. In addition I can say that this bill is defective in this respect, that it does not provide any time within which the advertising shall take place. This might mean that the advertising may occur a year prior to the actual registration, or any unlimited time.

I understand that the purpose of this bill is to give an opportunity to the public to know who the members of the firm may be. There is no necessity for that, because when a person under the present law who wants to ascertain the real names of the owners of a business doing business under a fictitious name which has been registered he need only go to the prothonotary of the county where the place is doing business, or to the Secretary of the Commonwealth and there he will find the names and addresses. This bill does not provide anything that would make it easier.

I understand also that this bill is supposed to place the fictitious name law in line with the corporation law, but, gentlemen, it does not do that, because under the present law when the advertising of the incorporating of a corporation takes place, you do not advertise the names and addresses of the incorporators or the directors. You only advertise the name of the corporation and you omit the names and addresses. This bill would only entail an additional and unnecessary cost and be a burden upon the business men who want to do business. The present law is sufficient; the present law has a penalty attached to it for failure to register. Under the present law you can find out the names and the owners very easily and very readily. This bill is only a bill to make it more expensive to go into business. I say to you that this is unnecessary legislation and that it is not proper to be on the statute books.

Mr. McKINNEY. Mr. Speaker, all that this bill does is to put the fictitious names act in conformity with the corporation act as it now stands on the statute books and has stood since 1909.

The constantly growing tendency to operate small businesses under fictitious names rather than in corporate form is traceable directly to the great expense and bother of operation in corporate guise under the federal and state regulations. The result of this tendency has been to deprive the public of the protection given by the legislature in the case of corporations by requiring public notice of each proposed organization.

It is highly desirable that such notice be given also before commencement of business under a fictitious name. There is a real necessity that existing organizations of similar name be given an opportunity to protest adoption of the proposed fictitious name before serious danger has actually been caused. This necessity was recognized in the case of corporations as long ago as 1909 and an appropriate requirement for public notice has been on the statute books ever since. The amendment of the fictitious names act to be made by this bill conforms to the requirements imposed upon corporations and thus closes a loophole otherwise productive of serious harm.

I ask the membership to vote for this bill.

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Venango, Mr. McKinney.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Venango permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McKINNEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker, as I was unable to hear Mr. McKinney clearly, in the reading of his statement, I would like to ask Mr. McKinney whether or not the present law relating to the advertising section of the bill and the filing of corporation records requires also the advertising of the names and addresses of the incorporators and directors?

Mr. McKINNEY. I believe not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SKALE. And the filing of the articles of incorporation under the present law is with the Secretary of the Commonwealth and not with the prothonotary in the county where the corporation is to do business, is that correct?

Mr. McKINNEY. That is true, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SKALE. And under the present fictitious name act is it not true that where a fictitious name is to be registered that it is registered in the county where the owners of the business intend to do business and also with the Secretary of the Commonwealth?

Mr. McKINNEY. That is correct.

Mr. SKALE. And is it not true that those records, those books are open to public inspection?

Mr. McKINNEY. That is true.

Mr. SKALE. And is it not true, Mr. Speaker, that where a fictitious name is registered, the names of the owners appear in the legal section of the newspaper without any cost?

Mr. McKINNEY. No, I believe that is not correct.

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman's indulgence on this bill. I can show him the legal section of the newspaper where that appears and if I am incorrect I will apologize to the gentleman.

Mr. McKINNEY. That may apply, Mr. Speaker, to Philadelphia but in general over the state it is not true.

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker, does the Legal Intelligencer serve the gentleman's county?

Mr. McKINNEY. It does not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SKALE. That is all. I thank the gentleman.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken.

Messrs. Levy, Herman and Bently asked for a verification of the roll.

Senate Bill No. 478, Printer's No. 352 and

Senate Bill No. 68, Printer's No. 304

were passed over at the request of Mr. LICHTENWALTER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 956, as follows:

An Act making an appropriation to the Department of Commerce out of the Motor License Fund for the proper conduct of a specific portion of its work

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 The sum of three hundred thousand dollars ($300,000) or as much thereof as may be necessary is hereby specifically appropriated to the Department of Commerce out of the Motor License Fund for the two fiscal years beginning June first one thousand nine hundred forty-three for the proper conduct of the work of the department in advertising publicizing and otherwise promoting the tourist travel facilities advantages and attractions of the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof in the manner provided in the Commerce Law the sum appropriated by this act shall from time to time be transferred from the Motor License Fund to the General Fund in such amounts as the Secretary of Commerce with the approval of the Governor shall direct and shall be used in continuing the functions formerly exercised by the Pennsylvania State Publicity Commission The sums so transferred shall be credited to the current appropriation made to the Department of Commerce out of the General Fund

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, we are about to appropriate $300,000 of good money for a purpose which I insist during war time is unnecessary. The purpose of this bill is to give this money to the Department of Commerce out of the Motor License Fund, which has been raided several times before this session, for the biennium beginning June 1, 1943, for the proper conduct of the work of the department in advertising, publicizing and otherwise promoting the tourist travel facilities, advantages and attractions of the Commonwealth.

Tourist travel in Pennsylvania is on the decline. Those people who live in Pennsylvania know of Pennsylvania's beauty, and they know the many advantages to be offered to Pennsylvanians to tour the state and take advantage of its vacation spots and its lakes and its woods, but, we are going to spend $300,000 to advertise to people all over the nation that Pennsylvania is a good place to come to, and the people all over the country are being asked not to use their automobiles, they are being asked not to use their tires and not to use gasoline. They are being asked not to travel unnecessarily on the roads and the railroads so that they can be kept open for war purposes. And what we propose here to do is to spend $300,000 to tell these people about the beauties of Pennsylvania, when they should patriotically desist from vacation travel and desist from tourist travel. The bill does not suggest that business facilities of Pennsylvania be advertised; it does not propose anything promoting business in Pennsylvania, but "come and see how beautiful Pennsylvania is". I don't know whether this is for the purpose of keeping the Department of Commerce alive, because recently we passed a post war planning bill which took away from the Department of Commerce these functions that the State Planning Commission has been doing. This was commented upon favorably last year, but early this session we repudiated that by setting up a post war planning commission as a separate agency, and took it away from the Department of Commerce.

Now, we are going to waste $300,000 in advertising Pennsylvania to tourists, when the national administration demands that tourist and other driving be cut to a minimum.

I do not like to say this, Mr. Speaker, but it seems to me that certain publications such as the Saturday Evening Post have got to get their advertising in, and advertising of a useless nature is to be done during the next biennium to the extent of $300,000 of good money. I suggest that when the proper time arrives we should shout Pennsylvania's advantages from the rooftops, we should shout it to the world, because we will then be able to receive and be good hosts to these people who come from other parts of the country, but in war times, the procedure should be different. I suggest that we should defeat this bill and not waste this money.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, I would like to read the section of the act creating the Department of Commerce and conferring powers. Section 4 of the act provides:

> The Department of Commerce, in order to promote and develop business, industry and commerce in the Commonwealth, shall have the power and its duty shall be to plan and conduct a program of information, advertising and publicity relating to the business, industrial, commercial, agricultural, educational, recreational, scenic, historic, highway and residential facilities, advantages and attractions of the Commonwealth, including any political subdivisions thereof.

There certainly has been a change in this Department of Commerce as far as its conduct in spending this appropriation is concerned. I would like first to put out the thought that the word "tourist" is not being used as far as this department is concerned during the duration of this war, because there are many worthwhile projects, many worthwhile things in Pennsylvania that can properly be advertised and publicized, even during war time to the advantage, not only of Pennsylvania but the entire nation, and in so doing we would only be carrying out the provisions of the law under which the Department of Commerce carries on. We have cut this appropriation by $100,000, and I would like to say that I am informed by the Department that there is an amazing demand for facts about Pennsylvania at this time. There has been a particular demand from soldiers in the camps of Pennsylvania, from mothers and fathers that are coming to visit their sons in the camps of Pennsylvania. Requests for route maps covering the entire state and many of the scenic beauties that we have in Pennsylvania,—many letters are received daily by this department from people of that kind who are coming into Pennsylvania probably for the first time and wanting to know certain things about this great Commonwealth of ours.

Then there is also a program being advanced for wartime recreation. We have heard a great deal of talk, even on the floor of this House, as to the number of hours people should spend working every day and every week, and certainly I think advertising of wartime recreation within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, while men are putting their full energies to producing war products so badly needed for the boys on the far flung fronts of the world, certainly those men should know the facilities Pennsylvania can give to them.

As I stated there is a war time program of recreation, publicity and advertising. Besides, I believe there has been no ban put on vacationing, but there has been an urge, even by the Federal government, that people should spend their leisure time and the time allotted to them by employers to take vacations, and they should spend that time just as close to their homes as possible. So, therefore, I certainly see a great advantage in the appropriation that we are making to the department, and I for one feel that we will not in any way misuse or misspend this money during war time.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I have endeavored to do something in the way of amending House Bill No. 842, Printer's No. 636 in order to make it acceptable to us who are opposed to certain proposals within the measure, which certainly are detrimental to the safety of the miners working in mines of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Certain differences in this measure have been ironed out by amendments, but may I say to the membership that they have not been taken care of as regards the entire safety of the coal miners of this Commonwealth. The bill which we have before us eliminates the provision that was contained in the act which was endorsed by the membership of a previous session of the Legislature in setting up a procedure in obtaining miners' certificates in order to better safeguard the safety of the lives of those men who toil by the sweat of their brow in the bowels of the earth to eke out a living for themselves and their families. This measure would jeopardize the safety of those people who are today engaged in mining out a fuel that is used for the production of essential war materials. These men certainly need a certain amount of protection, not for their jobs, because they already have that, but for their lives, so that they need not jeopardize themselves and leave behind them families, widows and orphans to the mercy of what little meager sums are contributed to the social units that we have in this Commonwealth.

I oppose this measure on the ground that it discriminates against the safety of the miner in Pennsylvania, and I request the membership on both sides of this House to vote against House Bill No. 842.

Mr. LANE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill, Mr. Ewing, of Allegheny County.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EWING. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LANE. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me if motormen are classified as miners under this act?

Mr. EWING. They are.

Mr. LANE. Is it necessary that they have the miners' certificates?

Mr. EWING. I think it is necessary.

Mr. LANE. Mr. Speaker, in reading the bill, it is my interpretation, it is not necessary that they be certified miners.

Mr. EWING. I did not hear the question, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LANE. In reading the bill, it is my interpretation that it is not necessary that they be certified miners or that they possess a miners' certificate. Can the gentleman show me where in the act it is necessary?

Mr. EWING. It is not in the act, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LANE. Then why, Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman make the statement that they do not need a certificate?

Mr. EWING. Maybe I misunderstood the gentleman in the first place. Mr. Speaker, I misinformed the gentleman as to the motormen. They do not need to have a certificate.

Mr. LANE. Mr. Speaker, does a brattice man have to have a miner's certificate?

Mr. EWING. No, he does not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LANE. Does a motorman's helper have to have a miner's certificate?

Mr. EWING. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LANE. Does the wire repairman have to have a miner's certificate?

Mr. EWING. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LANE. Mr. Speaker, as a representative from the bituminous coal mining district of this state, we oppose the bill on the ground that those important persons who work in coal mines are not required to possess a miner's certificate, and therefore they would jeopardize the lives of the other coal miners. I ask the Members on both sides of the House to take this into consideration and defeat this measure. This is not a partisan measure; this is to protect the lives of Republican coal miners as well as Democratic coal miners, and before you vote on this matter, I urge that you give it serious consideration. It is important to the coal mining industry of Pennsylvania, and we do not want to jeopardize the lives of thousand and thousands of coal miners in this state.

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, I oppose House Bill No. 842 because mining coal is a dangerous occupation and I am sure everybody in this House has not forgotten the catastrophies that have taken place in the coal mines of our country, wiping out hundreds of lives at a time, leaving wives as widows and children fatherless. Isn't that sufficient evidence that to work in the coal mine the strictest rules should apply? After all that has happened in the coal mines of our country we at this late date have a measure before us that would weaken the restrictions now required to become a coal miner. It is not necessary to go into a lengthy talk in opposition to this bill. We all realize our duty in the matter to help protect the coal miner and his family, and I am asking the House to vote this bill down.

Mr. THRASHER. Mr. Speaker, I as a representative of a coal mining district, not only a representative, but I am a coal miner myself. This law as it stands today provides that a certified coal miner is permitted to take one apprentice in the mines. That apprentice must serve two years under the certified man before he can take an examination. This bill as it is amended reduces the period of time of the apprenticeship to one year. The law as it stands classifies all men in the mines as miners, and they must all have certificates. This bill takes in certain parts of the mine; it takes in the timberman, the tracklayers, the coal loaders, the machine miner, the helper, the driller, the shot firer—at this time the shot firer must have a separate certificate also, also the machine runner. It takes in everybody who works up the face; it does not take in the transportation end. As one of the Members asked the question, does it take in the brattice man? It does not, but as a rule in the coal mines the brattice man is a timber man. That is universally carried out in the bituminous region.

There has been some contention that one man cannot control more men, that is that he cannot supervise two men intelligently. Now, I served fifty-two years in a coal mine and thirty-one years of that as a foreman. and

I feel well satisfied that one man can take care of two men very well. I promised myself one thing, that when I came to the State Legislature if there was anything I could do for the coal miner while I was here that is what I would do.

In this bill I do not see anything that is injurious to any coal miner, but there are other things that might do some good for them. Let us give them a chance if it is needed to take a young man as an apprentice who has not been certified. He can be employed as a snapper—that is what some of you call a brakeman. He can do that work after making two trips just as intelligently as he could after making two hundred trips or serving two years. It is no more than riding on the wagon and sometimes taking off or putting on the brakes, but they will learn that in two or three trips.

In my experience as a mine foreman, I know I can put a young man on as snapper, and I will feel perfectly satisfied after he has been under the instruction of an older snapper over a period of half a day, and I will be perfectly satisfied that that man is competent to perform that work. This bill as amended and presented here to the House for passage, I can't see for the life of me where it can be construed that it is going to be injurious to the coal miner, and I want to reiterate that if I thought it was injurious to them, I would be absolutely against it, because miners are always coal miners, and I am sort of proud of that fact.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I wish to elaborate a little further on the experience that is necessary for a motorman and snapper. Under the provisions of this bill the loophole would be open wherein the motorman and snapper could be employed without any necessary experience. To me and to anyone associated with the coal field, we can readily assure you that a motorman and snapper at a time when taking in a man trip, has in his hands the lives of the entire man trip. Certainly an inexperienced motorman and snapper, knowing the condition of the road, the hills and the downgrades that he must travel will certainly jeopardize the lives of those men on the man trip. There is certainly no intelligent person that would dispute that statement, inasmuch as we know it takes an experienced person to drive an automobile out on the street, and so by the same token, Mr. Speaker, it takes an experienced motorman and snapper to drive that man trip in the mine.

The same holds true in the operation of the shifting of coal cars in and about the mines, the rooms, the entries and what have you? Certainly we are not objecting to the feature of the one year apprenticeship to become certified. We feel at this time that it will do good and will add to the production that is so vital today, but in a great many coal mines at this time more so in the third and fifth district of the United Mine Workers, I say to you, there are many mines in those districts which have two men in each room of work, and certainly no certificated man can leave the man and go to an adjoining room. It will take care of certain cases, yes, but I say to the Members of this House that certainly, as we contended before, the safety of the coal miner is jeopardized by the enactment of the provisions of this proposal before us, and I ask the membership on both sides of the House to vote against the bill.

Mr. THRASHER. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Petrosky made a point that it was possible for one certificated miner to take two uncertificated men in the mine with him and place one in one working place and another in another working place. That is not in accordance with the bituminous mine law in Pennsylvania. The certificated miner has no more right to place a man anywhere than you have as Speaker of the House. The law strictly says that it is the duty of the mine foreman and the assistant mine foreman, and I have faith enough in the bituminous mine foremen of Pennsylvania to know that they are not going to place uncertificated men in a place alone and not leave a man there to supervise them. As we work our coal there is no trouble at all in putting three men in the place. That is the way they work them, three and four, and I have faith enough, as I have said, in the foremen of the bituminous region to feel satisfied that they are not going to place uncertificated men to work in a place alone. I think it is an injustice to the mine foremen.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Thrasher.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Fayette permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. THRASHER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MAXWELL. Will the gentleman tell me again, Mr. Speaker, how many years he worked in the coal mines?

Mr. THRASHER. Fifty-one years, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman also tell me how many of those fifty-one years he served as a boss in the mines?

Mr. THRASHER. Thirty years, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MAXWELL. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

In view of the fact that the gentleman served the latter part of those fifty-one years, probably thirty years as a boss, I think his attitude toward the coal miner probably has changed a little bit in the last thirty years. He is probably looking at this bill from the attitude of the Frick Coke Company. I believe if this bill is allowed to pass, after this war is over these large coal companies will be able to bring in about seventy per cent of uncertified miners in the mines and put them at work and thereby break the coal miners' union in Pennsylvania.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I think that anyone who is really, sincerely interested in the miners and the miners' union should be against this measure.

Mr. HEWITT. Mr. Speaker, there is one point that I wish to draw to your attention in particular, and that is that at the present time with the present laws under which we are now operating, passed in 1937, it does not require these motormen and snappers and men of that kind to have miners' certificates. The law is now operating in that manner. The only thing in this bill of any great importance is the reduction from two years to one.

The situation in the coal fields is this, we have a number of men who have worked twelve or thirteen months in a mine, but they must work twenty-four months before they can be certified as miners. The old experienced miner is not opposed to taking in a man with twelve or thirteen months' experience, because that man has to know about as much as he does. The trouble is to get the older men to take younger men in who have never been in a mine before.

If this bill were to pass in its present form it will only do one thing, to take two apprentices instead of one, and reduce the time from two years to one. Mr. Petrosky says that he doesn't object to the two years reduction to one. That takes in the class of what is known as timbermen, tracklayers, cutters and so forth, men working at the face. The point that I wanted to stress particularly was that the things he is complaining about are now in the law.

To answer the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Maxwell, where he insinuated that this bill was intended to destroy the mine workers' union. When this bill was passed in 1937, the miners were working open shop. Today they are organized into a closed shop. He talks about seventy percent of uncertified men in the mine. The moment they get to the shanty, they automatically become members of the United Mine Workers and step around and pay their dues, so it is not possible to put into the mine a man who does not immediately become a member of the Mine Workers Union.

If this bill is passed it will increase the tonnage by several hundred thousand tons in the mines, and I think in view of what happened in the last week we had better do something to make up this lost tonnage.

Mr. THRASHER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make this remark, that for the last thirty years I have not served as a foreman. The last five years I have served as a miner, and I belong to the United Mine Workers. I think the statement was unjust saying that I was interested in the H. C. Frick Coke Company. I was sincere, gentlemen, when I told you that my heart is with the coal miners. I want you to believe that, and not accuse me of being in sympathy with any company or corporation.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, there is no one in this House for whom I have a higher regard than the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Thrasher. I certainly believe that he has the interest of the mine workers at heart. I am sure that in no way would he hurt the mine workers of America. I am positive of that. In fact I have been following his advice on these bills and I have been during the past few weeks contacted by members of the United Mine Workers in my district. For the information of the House, I have between seven thousand and nine thousand coal miners in my district, and these representative miners back home say they are definitely in favor of cutting down the period from two years to one year, but in the Russelton mine in my district it is impossible to replace two uncertificated miners with one certificated miner. They say it is absolutely impossible to do that in lots of places, and for that reason they are opposed to the bill. For that reason I, too, am opposed to the bill. If it is possible to put it down where one certificated man could put one man in there, I would be for it, but in its present form I must oppose it.

Mr. HEWITT. Mr. Speaker, the only feature of any importance in this bill is the reduction of time. It is a very clever idea to use the two apprentices to defeat the bill. A miner in the anthracite region can take in six or seven apprentices, but in the bituminous mines up to this time only one can be taken in. This bill has been on the calendar for some time. I am chairman of the Mines and Mining Committee, and I have yet to receive any contact by letter, telegram or anything directly opposing it.

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, I do not understand the statements being made here. I have all kinds of official correspondence from the official representatives of the United Mine Workers telling me that this bill is no good insofar as their mines are concerned.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I hesitate to rise at this time, but in order to keep the record straight, under the present act that we are operating on, I say to the membership of the House that a motorman must have a miner's certificate. That man is charged with hauling the men into the mine, and he has in his hands the lives of those men. In conclusion might I say that under this act a person may come into the state of Pennsylvania and obtain a miner's certificate with one year's experience in any mine in the United States or elsewhere, it need not be a bituminous mine in the Commonwealth and therefore a person coming in from an iron ore mine or any other mineral mine would be a qualified candidate for a miner's certificate under the provisions of the act.

Mr. HEWITT. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Petrosky, of Westmoreland county, has traced the hauling of men on what is known as the man trip. In the large mine it is customary to have a certain starting time, where the men would be hauled to their work or to a certain side track nearby from where they can scatter out and go to their different places. The present mining law requires that motormen must not run their motors in excess of sixteen miles an hour, and in all my experience I have never known of a man trip being wrecked.

Further, this law requires that a man must have one year's experience in bituminous mining in this state, not other states. The present law calls for two years of experience in bituminous coal mines in Pennsylvania. A man from an anthracite coal mine cannot come into our bituminous fields and get a certificate to go to work in the bituminous mines of Pennsylvania. A man cannot come from West Virginia. On this matter of reducing the period from two years to one, that one year's experience must be spent in the bituminous coal mines in this state.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken.

Messrs. Lane, Petrosky and Heatherington asked for a verification of the roll.

The roll was verified and was as follows:

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, it will only take half a minute for me to tell you why this bill should again be defeated. This bill has been before the House as much as any bill that has been on the calendar; it has been on the calendar since January 5th and when it finally was defeated on third reading it got seventy-five votes, and from that time to the present time I haven't heard one single person say that he wants the bill, except those who are sponsoring the bill. Even the sponsor of the bill, I am satisfied is not in favor of the bill today, because he ought to know those who asked him to present the bill and congratulate him on the efforts to have the bill passed, that now since the bill has been defeated, everything was in O.K. shape as far as we were concerned.

The bill has been off the calendar, and on the calendar, and here it is again. I don't know just what to think when the provisions of this bill are being taken care of right now. These boys are driving these trucks with the provision in their minds that if anything goes wrong through their carelessness their family, their father and mother will be responsible. Those in favor of this bill want to take that responsibility away and tell those young boys of sixteen years of age: "Go ahead, drive as you please with that truck and the law will protect you."

In last Thursday's Philadelphia Bulletin there is quite an article showing numbers of people hurt, especially when a young boy drives an automobile. You and I with our wives are walking along the street, feeling perfectly safe, and along comes a boy with an automobile, tears up over the curb and sends us to the hospital and in many cases to the morgue.

I am sure that if we ourselves are careless and are able to walk out when this young fellow comes along, all right, but let us be big enough to protect this boy from doing the things that he won't do if we restrain him. Let us not turn him loose. I am again asking those who helped to defeat this bill the last time it was presented in the House, that they help me this time to again vote the bill down.

Mr. ERB. Mr. Speaker, this bill is of no benefit to me personally at all. This bill was introduced by request. I have several letters in my file from all over the state of Pennsylvania, not only my own county, but several counties asking why this bill cannot be brought out and passed into law. Last week I made a visit to our county jail. I have checked on drunken drivers. There are some of them confined in our county jail for drunken driving, and yet not one of those men is of the age of twenty-one; they are all over that age, so therefore I will say that this bill has been amended to meet the approval of the majority of the Members of the House.

I volunteered to go along with the amendments of Mr. Gillan, Mr. Cook and Mr. Hewitt in correction of conditions in their respective counties. Now, I feel that this bill has been studied long enough, has been well studied and this bill should be now passed to help out as a war measure. The gentlemen on the other side of the House, I feel, want to do their part in winning this war. Here is a privilege and an opportunity for them to do so in voting for this bill. We need these men, the boys of seventeen. The army and Uncle Sam are taking these boys over eighteen, and why shouldn't we who are eager also to win the war let these boys go on and drive the truck? I am not afraid of them, and if this bill has been amended to read seventeen and not sixteen as the gentleman across the Hall said, these automobiles can be driven by boys and girls over sixteen after passing examination; therefore I do not believe there is any harm. I am not asking any Member to go out and do any act but to go along and support this bill. I thank you.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Erb.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Blair permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ERB. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman stated that he had quite a number of letters from people all over this state asking for this particular bill. Is that correct?

Mr. ERB. I have, sir.

Mr. LOVETT. May I ask if those letters are from farmers?

Mr. ERB. They are from factory men, from bakers, from mailmen, farmers, yes sir.

Mr. LOVETT. Fathers of the boys or employers of the boys?

Mr. ERB. Fathers of the boys, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. In the cities?

Mr. ERB. Yes sir, in the cities, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. And from the farms?

Mr. ERB. Yes sir, of forty-one counties, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. That is all. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, I know that the United States government is taking the eighteen year old boys into the army, but where are they going? They are going to school, that's where they are going. I know where they are going. They are not going in there with the men twenty-one years old.

I want to make a point here, and I say it in all sincerity, I brought to your attention last Thursday in Philadelphia a seventeen year old boy who ran up over the curb into two old people and killed one and seriously injured the other. If I were to vote for this bill I would consider their blood upon my head. That is exactly the way I would feel if I gave them the right, or rather remove the responsibility that still hangs over a boy sixteen years old.

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, for the information of the gentleman from Allegheny county I would like to advise him that I have a son eighteen years old in the Solomon Islands and three or four other buddies with him.

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. Speaker, in order to clarify the opinion of Mr. Leonard, the gentleman from Allegheny County, we are not removing the responsibility of a person seventeen years of age when he has an accident. When any of these boys drive trucks for employers they are the agents of the employers and the employer would have the responsibility for any negligence of which that boy was guilty, and anyone who was injured could sue the employer. Under the present law where the boy seventeen years of age is driving the car on his own business, his parents are not responsible, but he alone is responsible, and if he had no property or no insurance on it there would be no chance to recover any money from the boy, so therefore I think this places the legal responsibility on the employer or the boy who drives the truck.

I know there are several specific examples of boys seventeen years of age who ran into somebody, but so also we might cite examples of people of every age, thirty or forty or up to seventy years of age driving recklessly and running into somebody and killing them, and if we are going to have cars on the road, we are going to have accidents regardless of the age of the people who are driving. I feel that if these boys are old enough to go into the army and fly planes going four hundred miles an hour they are certainly qualified to drive a truck at thirty-five to forty miles an hour. I think this is a proper law to enact at this time in order to help us win this war.

On the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection Senate Bill No. 345, Printer's No. 359, was passed over at the request of Mr. LICHTENWALTER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1066, as follows:

An Act to add section eight and one-tenth to the act approved the thirteenth day of April one thousand nine hundred and forty-two (P. L. 32) entitled "An act to protect property and prevent sabotage by prohibiting for a limited period of time certain intentional injuries to and interferences with real and personal property prohibiting certain intentional defects in workmanship limiting the privileges of certain witnesses prohibiting certain entries upon real property and waters authorizing the closing of highways or the regulation or restriction of travel thereon conferring powers on the Water and Power Resources Board and providing penalties" vesting for a limited period of time game protectors foresters forest rangers and fish wardens with the same powers vested in constables and other peace officers for the purpose of enforcing said act

Section 1 The act approved the thirteenth day of April one thousand nine hundred and forty-two (P. L. 32) entitled "An act to protect property and prevent sabotage by prohibiting for a limited period of time certain intentional injuries to and interferences with real and personal property prohibiting certain intentional defects in workmanship limiting the privileges of certain witnesses prohibiting certain entries upon real property and waters authorizing the closing of highways or the regulation or restriction of travel thereon conferring powers on the Water and Power Resources Board and providing penalties" is hereby amended by adding thereto immediately after section eight a new section to read as follows

Section 8.1 For the purpose of enforcing and accomplishing the objectives of the act herein amended and for so long a period as said act shall remain in effect all fortsters and forest rangers all fish wardens and all game protectors appointed and serving as such under the laws of this Commonwealth are hereby vested with the same powers as are by law conferred upon constables and other peace officers and such officers may arrest on view without first procuring a warrant therefor persons detected by them violating any of the provisions of said act or detected under such circumstances as to warrant the reasonable suspicion that such person or persons have committed are committing or are about to commit any offense or offenses against the provisions of said act

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment and shall remain in effect during the continuance of the hostilities of the present war and for a period of six months thereafter

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentlemen from Lehigh, Mr. Lichtenwalter.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I will yield to the gentleman from Butler, Mr. Imbrie, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, on page 2 of the bill, line 17 there is a word spelled "fortsters." What sort of an animal is that?

Mr. IMBRIE. Mr. Speaker, I think that is called a typographical squirrel.

Mr. COHEN. Is it something off the track?

Mr. IMBRIE. It is a typographical error, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. What is it supposed to be?

Mr. IMBRIE. Foresters, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I should like briefly to read this amendment so that its whole import will not be wasted:

For the purpose of enforcing and accomplishing the objectives of the act herein amended and for so long a period as said act shall remain in effect all foresters and forest rangers all fish wardens and all game protectors appointed and serving as such under the laws of this Commonwealth are hereby vested with the same powers as are by law conferred upon constables and other peace officers and such officers may arrest on view without first procuring a warrant therefor persons detected by them violating any of the provisions of said act or detected under such circumstances as to warrant the reasonable suspicion that such person or persons have committed are committing or are about to commit any offense or offenses against the provisions of said act.

Mr. Speaker, to begin with "peace officers." Constables are elected officials, and they are amenable to the wishes of their electorate, but we are going to make constables out of a lot of people who are selected otherwise. We have not limited the scope of their activity, and we are going to give these inexperienced policemen the right, first, to arrest without a warrant, and secondly, upon view when they need only have a reasonable suspicion that someone is about to commit a crime. To my puny legal mind that sort of suggests a doubt upon a doubt or a possibility upon possibility, that I was taught in law school should fall of its own weight. I think the purpose of this bill could be accomplished, but certainly not by such loose language as this bill now contains. We are going to make a new host of constables who have had no experience in the detection or apprehension of violators of law, and we are going to permit them to do so without benefit of warrants and without sworn information, purely on their suspicion as to what they suspect someone else has in his mind. I am afraid, it more or less transgresses against the ordinary liberties that the ordinary citizen has. For that reason I think the bill is ill advised in its present form and I would recommend that the Members vote against the bill.

Mr. IMBRIE. Mr. Speaker, for the information of the House I wish to state this bill only affects in the state of Pennsylvania about two hundred ninety people including fish wardens, game wardens, foresters and forest rangers. These men are all trained men. They are hired and trained already by the state. There is no extra cost anywhere, and we simply make two hundred ninety-one watchdogs in Pennsylvania to watch for saboteurs. These men work out in districts where law officers such as constables or anybody of that kind would have no chance to see what is going on. What would happen on the Pymatuning Dam if somebody would happen to blow that up? What would happen to the towns below it? Perhaps the fish warden or the game warden in that district,—and they are working there all the time, could stop that. The same thing could happen at Tionesta. What would happen to the towns lying below that dam?

Incidentally, the Pymatuning dam backs up sixteen miles, and the flood would be something terrible if that thing went out. I tell you that I think this is a good bill when there is no question but that these are trained men. Remember, they are not air wardens or fire wardens; they are all trained men, trained foresters and forest rangers, and also efficient game wardens. Just what it would mean in actual numbers, the total number is two hundred ninety, because three hundred thirteen would be the ordinary number, but there are three, I believe, from the fish wardens that are now in the armed service and twenty of the game wardens. I ask you to vote for this bill as a safety measure.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Butler, Mr. Imbrie.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Butler permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. IMBRIE. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman from Butler please tell me whether or not this takes in assistant game and fish wardens, more than the number he suggested?

Mr. IMBRIE. Does the gentleman mean both?

Mr. MAXWELL. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. IMBRIE. It does not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, what is the attitude of the sportsmen in the state towards this piece of legislation?

Mr. IMBRIE. Quite in favor of it, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MAXWELL. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. IMBRIE. Mr. Speaker, I should state too, Mr. Speaker, during the other war the Governor gave the same power to the game wardens of Pennsylvania.

Mr. MAXWELL. Just another question, the gentleman said in case one of these wardens saw an act of sabotage or something being a menace or something that may be detrimental to the citizens of the Commonwealth, that these men could step in and interfere? Does the gentleman not think that any citizen, whether or not he has this power, if he saw an act of sabotage or anything similar being committed or attempted to be committed, that he could step in without this extra power?

Mr. IMBRIE. Mr. Speaker, they have no right to do it without a warrant. They would have to find a police officer or a constable to do it. The game warden or the fish warden cannot go out on his own line at the present time without this power. If they found an act of sabotage they would have to hunt a police officer to make this arrest. This way they handle it themselves.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, that does not sound sensible to me. If you saw somebody trying to set off a bomb under this building would you run and get a warrant to stop him or would you stop him?

Mr. IMBRIE. You would have to have an officer. You would have no right to take the man. He would have you arrested for assault and battery.

Mr. GRANT. Mr. Speaker, we had a similar bill called the Uniform Arrest bill before this House. At that time there were a good many of the Members of the House that felt that it would encroach upon their personal liberties. As the law stands today the only right you have to arrest without a warrant is for a felony; for all other crimes and misdemeanors and other lesser crimes, unless they are committed in the presence of the officer, they have to get a warrant out.

Now, gentlemen, we are trying to pass over legislation real fast. Every lawyer in the House knows what happens in this kind of case every day. We know from our experience with peace officers what has happened. They go out and make arrests and get them before magistrates, and if they are not represented by counsel they are convicted offhand, but when they call an attorney, and the attorney comes in, the case is continued and continued indefinitely. This bill has very serious implications. This officer, if he sees a crime committed or sees a person about to do something, he has the right to arrest him without a warrant.

We have laws to protect us, and there is no reason for this act on account of sabotage. We have power now to arrest them in such cases. I feel this bill is giving power that is not warranted and the only result of that is to have these men arrested arbitrarily. That is the only purpose it would serve. I say that most of them are honest and conscientious men, but lest we are confronted with some who are not conscientious, let us not give them these extraordinary powers.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Butler.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Butler permit himself to be interrogated

Mr. IMBRIE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, does not the Governor have the power today to appoint special police who would have the same power as the constable or State policeman ordinarily?

Mr. IMBRIE. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Does not the gentleman think that he could call in these fish wardens and have them appointed as special police under that act?

Mr. IMBRIE. We could, Mr. Speaker. It was done in the last World War.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Then why, Mr. Speaker, would we have to pass this one?

Mr. IMBRIE. Mr. Speaker, I think that the Legislature should have it rather than the Governor.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. That is all, Mr. Speaker. I thank the gentleman.

I do know that there is a present law that the Governor has the power to call in men and give them the same arresting power without warrants that the Pennsylvania Motor Police have, and I know that the Governor today is appointing men under that law, issuing cards to them and giving them authority to arrest anybody, so I see no reason why we should pass a bill like this. If, as the doctor said, there is as much danger about Pymatuning Dam, then I think the Governor should appoint one or two policemen up there to protect and watch that dam and not wait until something happens and it is all over. I would ask the Members to vote against the bill.

Mr. MOSER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Butler, Mr. Imbrie, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. IMBRIE. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MOSER. Mr. Speaker, the way I understand this bill, it will place into the hands of those wardens the same authority that a constable now has; is that correct?

Mr. IMBRIE. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MOSER. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that we are going very rapidly as far as placing authority is concerned. The constables are duly elected and constituted officials, and this would give the game wardens an equal power with the constables. Therefore, I think this bill should be defeated.

Mr. GRANT. Mr. Speaker, I feel I would not be performing my duty unless I pointed out to the Members that this not only gives them as great power as the constable, but gives them greater rights inasmuch as they can make an arrest if they have any cause to believe that there is something in somebody's mind.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, let's be fair. We had an instance out in our county no more than seven or eight months ago in which one of these constables beat a gentleman to the extent that he died in the hospital a very short time later. Let me say to you gentlemen that they freed that man. Of course I haven't any right to stand up here and say that the courts and the jury were wrong in freeing the man, but I say to you that we should be very hesitant in putting the power into the hands of men who use it very unwisely. I think this particular bill that we have before us now goes out a very, very long way in putting power into the hands of men who I feel do not have sufficient knowledge or sufficient training to be given that power. I think the Members of this House should not enact such legislation as this under the disguise of a saboteur act. I, therefore, think we should defeat this bill.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. MOSER. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Fisheries.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The SPEAKER pro tempore declared the ayes appeared to have it.

Whereupon, a division was called for, sixty-four Members having voted in the affirmative and eighty-six in the negative, the question was determined in the negative and the motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken.

Messrs. Tate, Heatherington and Grant asked for a verification of the roll.

The roll was verified and was as follows:

AMENDED SENATE BILL RECALLED FROM THE GOVERNOR RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 272.

An Act to apportion the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania into congressional districts

Said bill having been recalled from the Governor for amendment, the vote had on final passage and third reading reconsidered in the Senate and the bill amended, in which amendments the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 1, page 2, line 14, by striking out after the word "boroughs" the word "or" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "of;" also same page, line 15, by inserting after the syllable "vue" and before the word "Ben" the words "Ben Avon."

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I realize that the only question before the House now is whether or not the House should concur in certain amendments inserted by the Senate. May I suggest that the question now before us is only occasioned by the fact that they were in such a rush to roll over us with this congressional reapportionment bill that they made mistakes in them and found them now. In fact so many bills, Mr. Speaker, have been recalled from the Governor because there is such a rush to get this bill through.

In any event, the minority opposed this bill before, and vigorously opposed the bill, and since we find that the tree is faulty, the fruit can be no more palatable. The amendments are probably very insignificant, but anything connected with this bill is odious to the minority, and I ask the members on this side of the House to vote "no" on the question of concurring in the amendments inserted by the Senate.

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. STOCKHAM asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I wish, if you please, to announce that the Judiciary General Committee in recognition of the work and the effort on the part of its Chairman, being one of the most hard-working committees in this House, proposes to give to him tonight a dinner at 6:30 at the William Penn Hotel on Market Street. This is a token to this man for his work and effort as his part in the work of the House.

There was a sailor putting flowers on the grave of a dear one, when he noticed there was a Chinaman nearby putting a bowl of rice on the grave of one of his departed folks. Turning to the Chinaman the sailor said:

"At what time is he going to come up to eat the rice?"

The Chinaman said "At the same time that your friend comes up to smell the flowers."

It is somewhat in that spirit that we would join together tonight to express those sweet things that come after we have toiled and struggled, and to sit down together and have a good time.

To all the members of this Committee I say, will you please note that it will be at the William Penn Hotel on Market Street.

RECESS

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection the Chair is about to declare a recess until 8:30 p. m. Is there objection? The Chair hears none and a recess is declared.

AFTER RECESS

The House reconvened at 8:30 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Ira T. Fiss) in the Chair.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. LEONARD asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, you will recall last week we had under consideration for final passage House Bill No. 663 which affected Allegheny County, which county I have the honor to represent, and at that time I read a letter into the record from the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, signed by the president. After reading this letter the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Hannon took the floor and stated:

> I wish to state that I had luncheon with the committee of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board last Saturday, including Mr. Hettling who signed the letter read by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Leonard. That committee admitted to me openly that not one of them had read the bill and after I read the bill to them and explained the bill to them, Mr. Hettling made the statement that he would then refer the bill back for further consideration on behalf of his committee.

As you will recall, the motion was made for the previous question, which prevented me from further discussing the matter. However, to keep the record straight, I immediately wrote Mr. Hettling, and included a transcript of that discussion and received the following reply, dated May 1, 1943 addressed to me reading as follows:

> I wish to thank you for your letter of April 29th and copy of House Record.
> Mr. Hannon did not meet with the committee of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board in reference to his Bill, H. R. 663, but met a few members of our Board in a lunch room in Pittsburgh; when, naturally, his Bill was discussed.
> Mr. Hannon asked me for a letter rescinding the action of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, which I absolutely refused. To my knowledge, no person present admitted that they had not read this Bill. Mr. Hannon made the statement that several amendments had been made to his original Bill, and out of courtesy to him and one or two personal friends of his and mine who were in this group, I told Mr. Hannon I would refer his Bill back to the Committee and ask them if they cared to take further action. My action was based on the presumption that his Bill had been materially amended, as he stated.
> For your information, I did refer this Bill back to our Committee, and their statement was to the effect that the Bill had not been materially amended and that our action should not be changed and that we should opose the passage of this Bill very vigorously.
> Again thanking you for your interest in this matter, and assuring you that it is greatly appreciated, I am
> Yours very truly
> (Signed) FRED J. HETTLING, President.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HANNON asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, the statement I wish to make is this, that I will answer the remarks and charges made by Mr. Leonard when and if I feel those charges need to be answered.

PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEE TO MEET DURING SESSION

Mr. SERRILL asked and obtained permission for the Committee on Public Health and Sanitation to meet during the sesison of the House.

The SPEAKER. The report will be noted in the Journals of the House and printed in the appendix to the Legislative Journal.

BILL NOT ON FILE

The SPEAKER. Senate Bill No. 354, Printer's No. 427, is not on file and will be passed over.

Agreeably to order,

The bill having been called up from the postponed calendar by Mr. YESTER.

The House resumed the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 709, as follows:

An Act authorizing the secretary of the board of health in the various cities of the third class throughout the Commonwealth during the continuation of the present war and for six months thereafter to search and issue certified copies of birth and death records maintained by such cities after the State-wide system for registering vital statistics was established requiring that such birth and death records be made available to the secretary of the board of health for the purposes of this act and authorizing the respective city councils to prescribe fees for such services

Section 1 In any city of third class where the recordation of births and deaths was continued after the State-wide system for registering vital statistics provided for by the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred five (P. L. 330) became effective the secretary of the board of health is authorized to make and supply searches of such birth and death records and to furnish certified copies thereof upon the payment of such fee as may be prescribed by the city council Any birth and death records so maintained shall be made available to the secretary of the board of health in order that he may comply with the provisions of this act The secretary of the board of health is hereby authorized to make corrections in such birth or death records whenever upon the submission of satisfactory evidence and affidavits such corrections are found to be necessary and proper

Any certified copy of a birth or death record furnished under the provisions of this act shall be afforded the same recognition as a birth or death certificate duly issued by the Department of Health of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania it shall be prima facie evidence of all matters therein contained and shall be admissible in all judicial proceedings

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment and shall continue in operation during the period in which the United States of America is at war with any foreign country and for six months thereafter

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. YESTER. Mr. Speaker, this bill has been on the postponed calendar for more than a month. I have had several Members come to me with their objections. I even went over to the Bureau of Vital Statistics with Dr. Stewart, and the chairman of the third class cities committee. We went over the matter and they had no objections. This bill only affects three cities in Pennsylvania, that is three third class cities, Williamsport, Lancaster and McKeesport. In McKeesport, I might say there are eighteen thousand records that cannot be used until this bill is passed. It enables members of the Army and Navy, or any person that wishes employment to get their birth certificate in one day, even the boys that are in the army and had to have a birth certificate in a hurry are enabled to get their birth certificates in one day and thereby they are enabled to take examinations.

This bill does not hurt anybody and does an awful lot of good to anybody that can use those birth certificates. If there is any question regarding this bill I would like to answer it right now.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Yester.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. YESTER. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman said that Lancaster would be one of the cities affected; is that correct?

Mr. YESTER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ALSPACH. And there are two others, Williamsport—

Mr. YESTER. And McKeesport.

Mr. ALSPACH. How is the city of Lancaster affected?

Mr. YESTER. The city of Lancaster has been continuing to keep its records in the city. I don't mean in the state, but I mean that the city itself did keep that record after 1906, and they are the records that are affected by this bill.

Mr. ALSPACH. Does the gentleman know whether the records are complete records?

Mr. YESTER. They are in good shape from the reports that I get from Lancaster.

Mr. ALSPACH. What does the gentleman mean by complete records, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. YESTER. What would the gentleman from Lancaster call complete records, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. ALSPACH. Is the gentleman interrogating me, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. YESTER. I am just asking what the gentleman means by complete records.

Mr. ALSPACH. I would say the list of all persons who would be considered to be born within that particular time.

Mr. YESTER. That is absolutely o.k., Mr. Speaker. The state of Pennsylvania doesn't have those records.

Mr. ALSPACH. Would the gentleman state that the records are as complete as the records of the Commonwealth?

Mr. YESTER. I cannot even answer that, Mr. Speaker. All I have to go by is the report that I got back that the records are in good shape.

Mr. ALSPACH. Would the gentleman say that the records are entitled to the same validity in the courts as the records of the state?

Mr. YESTER. I don't know that, Mr. Speaker, but I can tell you that the records of McKeesport are absolutely good in any court and they are also good with the F.B.I. and the U. S. A., and any other person.

Mr. ALSPACH. The gentleman says that that applies to McKeesport, Williamsport and Lancaster. I would like to know whether the records of Lancaster would be just as applicable in court?

Mr. YESTER. I would say they are, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

By Mr. DILLON. RESOLUTION No. 70.

In the House of Representatives, May 4, 1943.

Whereas, a number of former members of the Pennhylvania State Police resigned their positions in the Pennsylvania State Police prior to the entry of the United States of America into the war on December 7, 1941, and

Whereas, the former members of the Pennsylvania State Police in resigning their positions were impelled by sincere patriotic motives, and

Whereas, when they resigned from the Pennsylvania State Police, the former officers obtained positions guarding vital war industries in this Commonwealth and elsewhere, and

Whereas, it has been learned that when the former members of the Pennsylvania State Police resigned their positions, entry was made in their records indicating that they deserted, and

Whereas, the former members of the Pennsylvania State Police have been performing a duty in guarding our essential war plants and other forms of industry and business directly connected with the war effort, which was, and is, more important than any service they could have performed as members of the Pennsylvania State Police prior to our entry into the war, therefore

Be It Resolved, that the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania direct the Commissioner of the Pennsylvania State Police to strike from the records of all officers who resigned from the service to enter private employment directely or indirectly connected with our war effort prior to December 7, 1941, the notation "deserter" or "desertion" and indicate in their records that they resigned.

Section 3 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire if there is anyone in the House to be interrogated on this bill, Senate No. 201, Printer's No. 72?

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I will be interrogated.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown, whether or not if this bill was enacted into law would it do away with the redemption period on tax sales that now exists under the present act?

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman is confused with another bill on the calendar. This bill has nothing to do with the quota of redemption. This bill simply amends the act of April 20, 1905 whereby tax sales are given the same validity as any other sales in the matter of the possession of the premises sold at tax sales. That is all this act does. I think the gentleman is confused with the Tahl bill which is on the calendar.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to further ask the gentleman from Allegheny whether or not upon petition to the court by the purchaser at tax sale he can get clear title upon setting forth the facts in the petition and after giving notice to the former owner of the property.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, this act has nothing to do with the efficacy of tax sale insofar as title is concerned. Under the present law, as the gentleman well knows, the purchaser at a judicial sale has certain rights insofar as the possession of the premises is concerned, and he must go into court if he cannot get possession peaceably and follow a certain procedure. Our courts have held that a tax sale is not a judicial sale, and therefore this amendment brings the tax sale within the definition of a judicial sale so that those who purchase at tax sales may have the same remedies as those who purchase at other sales.

Mr. AUKER. Would it be possible then for a purchaser at a tax sale to take the same procedure that we take now on any other kind of judicial sale and immediately make his title good without any period of redemption?

Mr. BROWN. As I said before, Mr. Speaker, this act has nothing to do with the question of title. This act has only to do with the question of possession, and by virtue of a court decision holding that a tax sale is not a judicial sale, the purchasers at a tax sale did not therefore have the right of possession as would be accorded purchasers at other judicial sales. This act has nothing to do with the question of title; it has only to do with the question of possession.

Mr. AUKER. I thank the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Speaker. I think that clears it up for me. I didn't have time to digest the act thoroughly, but I wanted to make sure that this did not affect the period of redemption. On his explanation, and following the bill with it I find that the gentleman is correct.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. WILLIAM M. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask for information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of information.

Mr. WILLIAM M. HUNTER. I would like, Mr. Speaker, to know if it would be possible to put this bill back on second reading for possible amendments. If so, I would like to offer them.

The SPEAKER. That would be impossible. The answer is no.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I did not speak on this bill when it came up for final passage the other night inasmuch as the hour was late and there had been considerable debate on the measure. I have been connected with building and loan associations, first as solicitor since 1925 and lately, within the last two or three years as trustee for five of the thirty-eight building and loan associations in Blair County that had to go into liquidation because we did not have this plan.

Both of the associations that I represented in Altoona previous to the liquidation of those building and loan associations went into that liquidating pool. Around 1932 and 1933, when things were indeed tough in Blair County and on up to 1938 when the whistles didn't even blow for eight months, I begged my two associations to adopt this plan, knowing full well that if this direct reduction plan were adopted that we would be able to help people who had borrowed money from our building and loan associations. In other words, if they had had the direct reduction loan plan in the building and loan associations we could have allowed them to have paid their interest on their indebtedness plus one-twelfth of their yearly taxes and have been able to carry them on without any loss to the investors whatsoever. Instead of that we had the old time, old fashioned covered share loan. They were forced to demand the payments. They were unable to make those payments, and on top of that they were getting back with their taxes. Then they had to come into the building and loan association and ask to be refinanced. We refinanced them and paid their taxes, and then another hard year came along and we would have to again refinance them, and we would get into trouble. Costs were piling up; they were on the increase, and all that they could do was to throw up their hands and say "All right, clean it all up; we won't try to put it off any longer." Now, that could be multiplied by thousands, and that applied not only in our section but throughout many other sections of the state. This plan is the only reasonable, logical plan for persons who wish to pay for their homes through building and loan associations. We have tried it now for about four years.

When we first started going in to this liquidating pool around forty-five associations in Blair County, we formed five new associations out of the assets of those forty-five associations. All of those new associations immediately adopted this direct reduction loan plan. All are thriving vigorously today. Everyone of the people who are buying their homes through those new associations are very, very well satisfied. They know exactly where they stand month to month. They know exactly what their indebtedness is month after month. They get a statement to that effect. If one of those associations should happen to go into liquidation—suppose one of them failed, the borrowers from those associations would not be affected one iota. They have a contract, and as long as they keep up their payments under their contract, no liquidation can affect them whatsoever. By reducing their indebtedness on the monthly payment plan they can be sure that it pays out, and I defy anyone to say that is not true. Under the old share building and loan association, if an old share building and loan association goes into liquidation the members can pay and pay and pay, and many of them did in Altoona. Many of them paid one hundred seventy-five, many of them paid as high as two hundred before they got out, and then were not out. I submit to you based on my experience as a solicitor under the old building and loan plan and being familiar with this direct reduction loan plan, it is the best thing that has hit Pennsylvania since building and loan came, and I respectfully ask the members of the House to vote in favor of that bill. I know they will if they will take my word and the experience that I have had both ways in the building and loan game.

Mr. WILLIAM M. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I am certainly glad that Mr. Auker has taken that matter up and explained it very, very clearly so far as his situation is concerned. I agree with him very heartily, but he has never said one word in reference to the investors. Where can we expect to get the money from to loan to the borrower? Every provision in this bill points to the borrower entirely. I agree with him that the borrower has no expense whatever towards the operation of the building and loans. Now, the chances are that the investor in putting his money into this building and loan association naturally is thinking of the return from it too. All the expense is saddled on the investor. If the building and loan fails the borrower loses no money whatsoever. He gets out every dollar that he puts in, plus the profits that that building and loan association has made. And he has a guaranteed contract not to lose any money from that association. The building and loan association has to go that far as to see that he gets a mortgage somewhere, but just as I say, the investor under this bill has no protection whatsoever.

There are two sections in this bill, Members of the House; it is not only the borrowers, but it is the investors. Now, if we go into this proposition of obtaining the money to take care of the borrowers to build and give him his book value on the withdrawal and that association should have to undergo financial conditions and go into liquidation, the borrower would get dollar for dollar from that association. The investor loses. We have no reserves; all of the reserves have been set aside to take care of the borrower. I have been in this game forty years I think I know something about building and loans too and have been connected with quite a number of them in Chester, of which we have about fourteen. We have been financing homes for fourteen years through building and loan associations, but this is putting it upon a banking basis in this bill. I feel that if this bill passes the House we must make some provision to build up substantial reserves in building and loan associations so that if we were to have to another depression like we had ten years ago nothing in this world would stop it from failing if they do not have a sufficient amount of money in the reserve to take care of it.

The effective date of this bill was amended to July 1, 1944. This means any building and loan association to build up a substantial reserve to take care of any withdrawals, we should go on a wholesale basis. I feel we should have more time, that is the amendment I wanted to introduce to this bill, and I figure it is more than right that we should have that privilege. I think the largest building and loan association is located right here in Harrisburg, the Capitol Building and Loan Association. We have the second largest in Chester, and they are of the opinion that it will be impossible for them to build up a sufficient reserve in this short time to guarantee against the withdrawals that we will have in case of depression. If they can't stand it how is the small institution going to stand it? They will simply have to go out of business, and you are going to hurt the very fellow that you are talking about, which is the little fellow. I think this time should be extended to at least December 1948 to give the building and loan association people sufficient time to get their money together to build up an ample reserve to take care of anything that might happen in the future. I hope you will give this your thoughtful consideration, for it is very vital for every man in this House and every man in a building and loan association in Pennsylvania. I hope you will think this matter over carefully before you vote.

Mr. WALTON. Mr. Speaker, if the only thing this bill did was to affect bonds and mortgages that Mr. Auker talked about I would be for it. In most of the building and loan associations they are doing that at the present time, but what I do object to is the lobby that we are having here on this bill at this time. There has been a lot of money spent. For instance at the time of the public hearing, people who were for this bill asked for a public hearing, and invited every member of this House that was either for or against it to dinner at the Penn-Harris Hotel. I know that the little fellows do not have that kind of money to spend. In fact I know and you know that they are the type of people that take care of it. I have a few things that I would like to say about it.

It is hard to conceive that the Banking Department is attempting to put all small old-line associations out of business. On page 3, line 23, participation value becomes an accumulating sum, less 1 per cent withdrawal payment fee, so that if a person subscribes for stock and pays in $5 his participation value immediately becomes $4.95. If he stays in the association seven months, his participation value would be $35 plus the earnings for the first six months and minus 1 per cent of the whole. Then, upon page 6, line 27, this amount is then divided by the par value of one share of stock, so that his value of shares in the association carries some number such as 34996 over 20000. It would be extremely difficult if not impossible, to explain any such fraction to the average shareholder.

Page 7, Section 602, apparently changes building and loan associations into banking institutions so that instalment shares of stock no longer carry series, but are issued at the determination of the board of directors. In other words, the board of directors might issue a new series every time it meets, and the money so deposited with the association could be withdrawn as stated on page 8, line 22, at the participation value, less not more than 1 per cent which would result in a loss to the association upon all stock upon which the reserve had not yet been built up to cover the cost of opening and closing this account.

On page 21, under Section 18, subdivision c, provision is made for closing the books semi-annually or oftener, again carrying out the principle that series may be opened at any time and calculated up to date of maturity, but there appears to be no good reason for any maturity date, execpt the avoidance of the withdrawal fee not exceeding 1 per cent. With this exception, the associations are banks of deposit with limitations as to investments. Under subdivision d, the payment of dividends on full paid shares monthly carries out the same idea with no corresponding benefit. Subdivision e, on page 22, goes still farther and permits interest to be credited to accounts of $100 and more, from the actual date of payment. Not even savings institutions have been figuring quite that close.

33, line 3. Apparently for the purpose of carrying out the banking idea, all payments with exception of interest are to be credited directly upon the principal of the mortgage loans. The section, however, provided for dues paid on each direct loan share. The only way I can understand it would be that if a loan were made for $100 upon which the borrower would ordinarily pay $10 per month, he would then be compelled to pay $11 from which the interest would first be deducted and the balance applied to the loan. To call this a share of stock is begging the question, since nothing remains with the association except the name. I presume that what was intended was to make him liable with other shareholders in case of liquidation. Since the direct-reduction shareholder has no such liability, this whole idea does not make sense.

With the exception of the change of the word "prepaid" to "full paid", I find no sense in the bill except, as I previously stated, for the purpose of driving small, old-line associations out of business. If this is intended, the bill should state so. Building and loan associations were intended to cover the need of persons to make small, regular investments to secure their futures. Unless the Banking Department and the Legislature believe that such associations are no longer necessary, they should not be legislated out of existence by indirectness

In other words, gentlemen, the building and loan associations that have been in existence for a hundred years are trying to be legislated out by this bill. If it were not for the Building and Loans that have built up the cities in the east and in the west too, we wouldn't have the type of citizens that we have in Pennsylvania today. Any man that owns his own home is a good citizen, and the Building and Loan associations are the ones that made it possible. I ask you to vote this bill down in the interest of the building and loan associations. The people of Pennsylvania do not want the building and loan associations put out of business.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware Mr. Hunter.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WILLIAM M. HUNTER. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ALSPACH. My understanding of the present bill is that under the terms thereof earnings of the association in each calendar year will be accruing and credited in the year in wich earned, is that correct?

Mr. WILLIAM M. HUNTER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ALSPACH. And I also understand, Mr. Speaker, that under the present terms these earnings are carried at the time the shares mature, is that not correct?

Mr. WILLIAM M. HUNTER. I didn't understand that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ALSPACH. The earnings under the present system, Mr. Speaker, are carried at the time at which the shares mature, is that not right?

Mr. WILLIAM M. HUNTER. That is right.

Mr. ALSPACH. Therefore I understand that any profit which may inure to the benefit of the investors will be figured or calculated as of the date and of the time at which the shares mature, is that right?

Mr. WILLIAM M. HUNTER. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ALSPACH. And therefore any Federal income tax which would be due would be due in the amount accrued in the year in which the shares mature, is that correct?

Mr. WILLIAM M. HUNTER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ALSPACH. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker. I would like to clear the air. So far the debate on this matter has been concerned with the effect of this bill upon the person borrowing, who wants to build a house and takes out "shares" and give that as collateral for his loan. I would like to call to the attention of the House a very simple situation. I would like to show you the present system and how it discriminates particularly against the investor at the present time the shares would mature in twelve or thirteen years, depending upon the earnings of the association. I might subscribe to a few shares, and I might make my monthly payments for eleven, twelve, thirteen or fourteen years, or might elect to purchase full paid shares, depending upon what association I may be in. I pay in my dollars for months, I pay in for eleven or twelve or thirteen years, and at the end of that time I find that the secretary of the association returns Form No. 1099, the little green slip to the Federal income tax authorities, and he lists, not earnings which I would have been entitled to earn in eleven, twelve or thirteen years, but he returns in the one calendar year every cent that has accrued to me during the entire period. The result is that I pay a tax not on the portion I earned in the calendar year, but I pay on the whole thing, the whole ten or eleven or twelve or fourteen years. That to me makes a tremendous difference because I may be in a higher income tax bracket. For instance, a man came to me who subscribed to some shares, and he was told that he would be required to pay income tax on his shares to the amount of seventeen hundred dollars, his entire earnings.

Understand I am not saying a person should not pay income tax on his earnings. I say it is his duty to pay income tax on his earnings, but he should only be required to pay in each of the eleven or twelve or thirteen years during the life of these shares, and should not be required to return all of those earnings in one year, the result of which would be to stick him for an income tax which would be a large percentage of his earnings during all those years.

Much has been said so far as to the position of the borrower. I am merely injecting this to show that the present system does work severe injustice to the person who is investing. Bear in mind, they are not always large investors. They are mostly small investors who save a small amount each month of their earnings through building and loan associations. I am mentioning that to show to the Members of the House how this would work with regard to the investor as well as the borrower.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like briefly to answer the gentleman from Philadelphia and also the gentleman from Delaware.

Before I do that I want briefly to point out the situation from the standpoint of the borrower under these share associations. Let us take for instance the fact that a share association goes into liquidation. A man has borrowed on a mortgage say of three thousand dollars from that association. The association goes into liquidation. He has purchased shares from that association, and if he pays out those shares before his loan is paid off, he is all right. But if the association goes into liquidation, and we will say that he still owes two thousand dollars of the debt, the association can come in and collect two thousand dollars, no matter how much he has paid in on those shares which he has assigned back to the association as security for the payment of his loan.

Now, let us take it from the standpoint of the investor. I can only cite experience, and they say that the proof of the pudding is the eating thereof. We had about three associations in Altoona that were in good shape and that didn't have to go into liquidation, but they did go into the direct reduction loan plan as set up under this bill. Those building and loans are still doing business and doing it better and better every day.

We had one Federal association start up about 1935. Today they are one of the largest associations in Altoona. In this liquidation of these building and loan associations in which I am engaged at the present time we have been paying some dividends. Fully half of the people to whom we have paid dividends, who formerly owned the stock in the old associations, are putting their money back in the new associations as set up under this plan. They are getting more money, they are getting stronger every day, they are setting up reserves every day. I myself am an investor in two of them, and I hope to educate my two boys with the money that I am investing in these two associations. I am sure if these several big associations down east will come under this bill, as they will if the bill is finally enacted and put into law, that they will not be put out of business, but will be able to do business and they will grow under this act. I again ask the Members on both sides to vote for this measure.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Amend Section 1, Page 1, Line 7 by inserting after the word "registered" the following: "or otherwise".

On the question.

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I rise at this time in support of the amendments submitted by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee, and myself. I might say at this time also that we consulted the sponsor of the bill and he agreed to the amendments. The amendments really are corrective in form.

The city of Philadelphia back in 1918 at the time of World War No. 1 had a very similar situation. It so happens that the city of Philadelphia, owing to the wage tax with which it is afflicted at the present time, has lying around at the present in the neighborhood of approximately ten million dollars. This money now is in private banks and is earning no interest. It is for that reason that the treasurer is interested and desires to invest this money in short term Federal securities, principally war bonds.

The amendments add to the bill the names of the Mayor and the City Controller so that they can act as a board and invest this money at their discretion. It covers the legal points in the situation and is a good bill.

Mr. LEE. Mr. Speaker, these amendments have the approval of the sponsor of the bill.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The second section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. TATE and LEE offered the following amendments:

Amend Section 2, Page 2, Line 4 by inserting after the word "said" the following: "mayor controller and".

Amend Section 2, Page 2, Line 5 by striking out the word "is" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "are".

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The third and fourth sections were separately read and agreed to.

The title was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the title?

Messrs. TATE and LEE offered the following amendment:

Amend first line of title by inserting after the word "the" the first time it appears in said line the following: "mayor controller and".

It was agreed to.

The title was agreed to as amended.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to as amended.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

George B. Wiltbank, an employe of this House, serving as the secretary of three of its standing committees, died on Thursday, April 29, at his home in Brookline, Delaware County.
